GLOBE FLYERS FORCED DOWN

40 CENT WHEAT; RECORD LOW FOR LAST 84 YEARS

Traders See an Upturn Coming.

U. S. government has offered to help the Grain Stabilization corporation on long wheat, but not any or all of the wheat which has been held by the farm board. Chicago traders said to be more interested in what the wheat offer, but has not yet declared whether it will buy either wheat or corn. Page 4.

Wheat sold yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade at 48 cents a bushel, the lowest price ever quoted for wheat of any category.

Starting at 51¼ cents, the grain was erratic in sluggish trading until a little before closing time when, without perceptible stimulus from the news or other source, the market took a slump. At 1:10 p. m., 20 minutes before the closing gong sounded the plunge, and the last few sales ranged between 48 and 48⅛ cents.

Other world markets, staggering under the load of a North American crop now estimated at 425,000,000 bushels, showed equal weakness in sympathy. In Kansas City July wheat closed at 41⅝ cents and in Liverpool at 55⅝ cents, the British price being the lowest recorded there since 1894. This Liverpool price was about 38 cents in Chicago, allowing 10 cents shipping charges.

Price Low 48⅝ in 1895.

In the Board records, veteran operators said they could only one occasion in the history of the Board of Trade when wheat sank to a price comparable with yesterday's close. It was in Dec. 19, 1895, when, in the ebb tide of depression following the panic of 1893, wheat went begging at 48½ cents a bushel.

Yesterday was the most dismal day for wheat in history of the Board of Trade, many operators, drawing a page from the history of earlier dark years, ventured to predict that in a reasonable time wheat would be back above a dollar.

Fundamental laws of economics are ready to work, they said, to restore wheat to a price within range of its former values.

Schultz's View of Situation.

George S. Williams of the brokerage firm of Thomson & McKinnon, president of the Grain Market Analysts association, regarded as a highly interesting spectator in the grain pit, was one trader displaying a bullish attitude toward the ultimate condition of the wheat market.

"Wheat in 1895 appeared just as dismally bearish as it does now," Mr. Williams said. "Conditions surrounding the grain trade then and now are very much similar. There was a huge oversupply of wheat in existence then as now.

"And yet, with the market glutted with wheat selling below 50 cents a bushel the winter of 1895, an acute scarcity had developed within a few years."

Recalls Leiter Market.

Recalling the shortage, Mr. Williams recalled the deal which enabled Joseph Leiter to corner the market which sent wheat to $1.85 a bushel. That was in 1898. The economic law involved in diminishing returns existed at that time to check speculation, Mr. Williams asserted, but he perceived indications that wheat was again at work.

"The wheat price now at a point of profit for the grower, the great wheat raising countries already curtailing production. Australia, he declared, has reported a 30 per cent reduction; Argentina has officially reported a 15 per cent reduction, with private estimates indicating a greater reduction as high as 30 per cent.

"It is too early to form any opinion as to winter wheat acreage in the United States," Mr. Williams said, "but it is generally believed that it will be materially cut."

Sowing Being Done.

Actual practice among wheat growers in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska bears out, is to send gang plows right behind the binders to turn the sod over after the crop is out, using discs afterwards following each rain.

In the winter wheat crop the wheat is already harvested, and little plowing is being done, Mr. Williams said.

He argued that the

LAND IN SIBERIA ON FLIGHT TO SMASH RECORD

Mishap 1,000 Miles East of Moscow.

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Civil aviation authorities were advised today that Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., round-the-world flyers, made a forced landing today at Jietiegari, about 150 miles from Kustanaisk, in the Cossack Autonomous republic.

They came down at 8:30 a. m. Moscow time (12:30 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time), the message said. Only sketchy details were available, but these indicated that the Americans had landed on premises occupied by the metal and gold trust. Officials here telegraphed representatives of the Civic Aviation society in that vicinity to give the flyers all possible assistance.

[The town of Kustanaisk is a little more than a thousand miles from Moscow and about 425 miles southwest of Omsk. It is some distance to the south of the trans-Siberian railway line, about midway between Omsk and Ekaterinburg.]

MOSCOW, July 31.—(AP)—Speeding after a new round-the-world flight record, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., left Moscow in excellent weather at 5:20 p. m. [9:20 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time] today for Irkutsk, in the middle of Siberia, 3,000 miles away. They were about ten hours behind the mark set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty up to this point during their recent record smashing dash around the globe in eight and two-thirds days.

Expressing confidence that they could reach New York from here in four days, barring accidents or unfavorable weather, Herndon and Pangborn planned to make their destination in four jumps. From Irkutsk they expect to fly to Kharbarovsk, from there to Nome across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering sea, and from Nome in one jump to New York.

Pick Up Six Hours.

Arriving here from Berlin at 11:52 a. m. [3:52 a. m. Chicago time], some 70 hours from New York, Pangborn and Herndon were almost 17 hours behind the time Post and Gatty took to Moscow, but they gained about six hours by remaining here only a little more than five hours. Post and Gatty stayed here more than eleven hours.

Mindful of the 16 hour delay Post and Gatty suffered at Blagoveschensk, when their plane was bogged in a mudhole on landing, the airmen not only planned to miss Blagoveschensk altogether, but had equipped their single motored monoplane with oversize wheels to avoid just such a mishap.

Carry 525 Gallons of Fuel.

The flyers took on 525 gallons of gasoline here. With one sleeping on a padded gasoline tank while the other was piloting, they expected to have thirty hours of continuous flying to Irkutsk. In this they have an advantage over Post and Gatty. Post piloted all the way, while Gatty acted as navigator.

A dispatch to the Tass agency tonight said Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, made a forced landing tonight near the small village of Diyazlensk, 20 miles from Marinsk, Siberia. She was flying from Omsk toward Krasnojarsk, en route from England to Tokio.

Turkey to Decorate Flyers.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 31.—(AP)—Rested, well fed and happy, John Polando and Russell Boardman basked in the adulation of Turkey today after their 4,984 mile flight from New York to Istanbul. President Mustapha Kemal Pasha telegraphed to the Turkish aviation league today to prepare two special medals, which he will present to the flyers when they go to Yalova, probably tomorrow, to be received in state.

Meanwhile, they were feasted and cheered today to the saturation point. They climbed out of bed this morning after 16 hours of solid sleep to find their hotel surrounded by a large and cheering crowd. The air heroes may leave Istanbul Tuesday or Wednesday, although they still were uncertain of the time or route.

MAY DEPORT HINDU CURATOR'S SON WHO RAN LIQUOR BY AIR

Boston, Mass., July 31.—[Special.]—International complications arose today in the arrest of Narada Coomaraswamy, 19 year old son of the Hindu curator of the Boston museum of fine arts, for running rum, by airplane, into Vermont from Canada.

The plane was owned by the father, the art curator, Dr. Amanda K. Coomaraswamy. Deportation proceedings affecting the son were expected at Newport, Vt., where today, on his admission that he made four rum flights into Canada and return for a group of smugglers, he was accused in three complaints under the tariff act.

Newport officials were ordered to keep him in custody until a hearing is held. It was intimated that the seized plane might be used along the border by customs men.

Dr. Coomaraswamy said the plane seized at North Craftsbury, Vt., was his and that he hoped to get it back. He said he would go to the aid of his son as soon as he received official notification of his arrest. He said he had presumed that Narada was working on a dairy farm in Vermont and using the monoplane for pleasure.

LAWYER DROWNS OFF GLENCOE AS FAMILY WATCHES

Attorney Reuben B. Kilgore, 38 years old, 885 Elm place, Glencoe, was drowned last evening in the lake off Park avenue in Glencoe. His wife and two children were on the beach at the time.

On account of the high waves, the beach had been officially closed, but Mr. Kilgore swam out and was apparantly caught in the undertow. He shouted for help and was heard by men on a nearby pier, but he sank before they could go to him. Coast guards from Wilmette were dragging the lake bottom for the body late last night.

Mr. Kilgore came to Chicago five years ago from Danville, Ill. He was a son-in-law of former Circuit Judge I. A. Love of Danville and a brother-in-law of Circuit Judge George Bristow, of Paris Ill.

LONDON, July 31.—Lord Kylsant, shipping "czar" who was convicted yesterday of publishing a false prospectus of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, was released on bail today pending appeal. He left the Wormswood Shrubs prison, where he was sentenced to serve a 12 months term, after only one night within its walls. With his son-in-law, the earl of Coventry, he drove to his Mayfair flat, where he was greeted by Lady Kylsant and their two daughters.

Acquit Cigaret Girl Who Shot Divorced Mate

Mrs. Bernice O'Connor, 24 years old, who used a gun effectively on her divorced husband, Edward, yesterday morning, was exonerated last night by a coroner's jury. She shot and killed her ex-spouse when he forced his way into her flat.

The Hyde Park police announced after the inquest that Mrs. O'Connor, who is a cigaret girl in a cabaret, would be held until her arraignment in Felony court next Monday.

O'Connor, a world war veteran, a lather by trade, lived at 4206 Ellis avenue. Mrs. O'Connor fired four bullets into his body in her apartment at 4330 Lake Park avenue. O'Connor had entered through a kitchen service door. Hers was the third case in the last ten days in which a Chicago coroner's jury has exonerated a woman who had killed her husband or former husband.

Thanks Jury For Verdict.

As William H. Bauman, deputy coroner, read the verdict handed him by George W. Haag, foreman, after a twenty-five minute recess, Mrs. O'Connor lifted a tearstained face to the jurors and said:

"Thank you, jury." Then she covered her face with her hands and sobbed as she had at intervals during the half hour she was on the witness stand.

Several witnesses produced by Emmet F. Byrne, Mrs. O'Connor's attorney, testified that O'Connor had pressed his attentions upon his former wife and had threatened to kill her. But it was the young woman's own testimony that apparently convinced the jury that her act was justified.

Testifies In Low Voice.

Mrs. O'Connor, slender and comely and smartly dressed in a dull blue sports ensemble with hat and shoes to match, made a visible effort to gain her composure before taking the stand. She gave her testimony in a low voice, raising it occasionally as she became excited by the coroner's questioning.

"Last night I didn't work because my boss at the Via Lago cafe said not to come back until I had got rid of my husband, who had been hanging around. I left my little girl, she's 8 years old, with my sister, Mrs. Adele Yepp, at 2101 Warren boulevard, because she was asleep," Mrs. O'Connor testified. "I went home and went to bed. I heard a noise in the kitchen and went out to see what it was. It was Eddie wiggling through the servidor. I told him not to come in, but he kept coming.

"I was frightened the way he looked at me. His eyes looked wild like a crazy man. I ran to the desk and got my gun that had been given to me when I worked in New York three years ago in a dangerous part of the city. I just meant to scare him. I didn't mean to kill." Here the young woman began to sob hysterically.

Tells of Shooting.

She quieted herself and continued:

"I thought to myself: 'If something happens to me what will happen to the baby?' I remember thinking I would shoot high so the bullets wouldn't hit him. Then I thought 'Now he's going to come after me.' He fell to the floor and for a minute I believed he was playing dead. I went over to him and then I knew. 'Why, Eddie, you're dead!' I said out loud. I sat down to think what to do. I called my sister and the police."

Mrs. O'Connor told how she had met O'Connor five years ago and the first week after their marriage had quarreled when she discovered he had $400 in his pocket. She found it when searching his clothes to learn why he had stayed away one night.

"He never bought me a single stitch of clothes," she declared, "not even so much as a pair of hose. My mother supported my baby by a former marriage to Charles Fletcher whom I divorced. Eddie had a silver tongue and always talked me into coming back whenever I left him. After a little I got to hate him.

"Eddie began to follow me wherever I moved. Once he threw a brick in a window when I lived at 28 North Hoyne. Another time he tried to attack my father with a butcher knife. On several occasions he gave me a black eye and a bloody nose, even after I divorced him. He learned somehow that I planned to go to New York and threatened before my landlord that he would kill me if I did. I just couldn't stand it any longer."

Help Pastor Feed Poor on Farm Surplus

Offers of surplus farm products, money, the use of trucks, and quarters in a building on the south side have followed the announcement of the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers in THE TRIBUNE that he planned to distribute surplus foods to Chicago's poor.

Even the unemployed had something to offer the pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, who for a generation has been helping to tide the poor through hard times. Many men and women who cannot find work have promised to help harvest crops donated to the cause, working for their food so that others may share in the distribution.

One of the most unusual offers to Dr. Myers is of 100 bushels of rye and 100 bushels of wheat, on the condition that means be found for having the grain ground and baked into bread or distributed in the form of flour to those who are out of work and hungry. Dr. Myers said yesterday that he was hopeful of finding a miller who would grind the grain.

Chicagoan Offers $5,000.

A Chicagoan, who prefers to remain anonymous, offers $5,000 to help carry out the project, with the suggestion that several others contribute similar amounts in order to enlarge the scope of the philanthropy.

Since he has started to work out the details of the plan, Dr. Myers said he had become thoroughly convinced that the plan is workable and that it will provide food for Chicago's hungry. Between calls for help and offers of assistance yesterday he spent a few minutes outlining the need for such food centers not only in Chicago but throughout the nation.

"Around Thanksgiving time and again at Christmas, the families which now have neither food nor money may enjoy for a few days the charity of those more fortunate," said Dr. Myers. "But here we are in the middle of summer, with fields full of good things to eat, and farmers thinking it useless to harvest much of the fruits and vegetables because there would be no profit on the market.

Gardens Full of Vegetables.

"In Michigan there are cherries falling to the ground because they are dead ripe and no one sees any use to harvest portions of the crop. Truck gardens in sections where rains have been plentiful are filled with vegetables. Why should a single person go hungry?

"Not only is this for humanitarian purposes, but there are the political and social aspects. There is danger in having large numbers of persons with little or nothing to eat merely because they can't get work. Why not use the simple plan of getting this food at little or no cost and bringing it to the city?"

Already various truck owners have offered to donate the use of a total of 15 machines for any type of work which Dr. Myers may find necessary. The use of a building at Normal avenue and 26th street has been obtained, so that the work will not have to be centered at the Immanuel Baptist church at 22rd street and Michigan avenue, where a bread line, sometimes numbering as many as 1,500 persons is being fed each morning. Offers of surplus crops or other aid in the enterprise should be addressed to the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, 2330 Michigan avenue, Chicago.

Truck Goin[illegible] to Michigan.

On Monday a truck will carry several volunteer workers to South Haven, Mich., to demonstrate the feasibility of harvesting and bringing vegetables here for free distribution. Food, but no money, will be supplied to the small harvest crew. The vegetables will be donated by the grower.

KING AND QUEEN MISS GENOA BOMB BY A FEW HOURS

GENOA, Italy, Aug. 1.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—A bomb exploded in a street in the heart of the business section at 1:40 a. m. today a few hours before King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena arrived for the launching of the ocean liner "Rex." The bomb shattered windows and panic ensued.

It was believed the bombing had some connection with the visit of the king and queen. They arrived in Genoa only a short time before the launching, however, coming by train from Santann a Dei, their summer residence.

The bomb was planted in front of the Italian transatlantic society building, where most of the damage was done. The city was put under a kind of martial law after the blast. Gov. Somalia Rava, the Duke Abruzzi, and several deputies were in one of the hotels near which the bomb exploded and windows of their rooms were shattered.

HOODLUM FACES PERIL OF JONES LAW PENALTY

Trial on Income Tax Fraud Next Month.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson produced further surprises in the Al Capone case yesterday and announced that he would leave today on a month's vacation in Michigan. The chief public enemy was permitted to withdraw his plea of guilty to income tax dodging, and the federal grand jury was called in and ordered to inquire into the booze conspiracy indictment.

Although the hearing on Capone's motion for a withdrawal of his pleas of guilty had been set for 2 o'clock, Judge Wilkerson summoned the attorneys to his courtroom at 10 a. m., and without asking whether United States Attorney Johnson consented, granted Capone's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty on the income tax indictment. The tax case was continued until Sept. 8, to be set for trial probably the latter part of that month.

Judge Orders New Inquiry.

"As to the conspiracy case," said Judge Wilkerson, "the ruling is reserved and the motion [to withdraw the plea of guilty] taken under advisement and continued for disposition until Sept. 8.

"The matters covered by the indictment should be presented to another grand jury. In the enumeration of overt acts, the defendant and others are charged with substantial offenses within the period of the statute of limitations for which a heavier penalty is provided than that possible under the conspiracy indictment.

"The court will not believe, unless it is forced to do so, that the language of this indictment was chosen, without probable cause, merely for the purpose of creating the impression that this defendant had been a flagrant law breaker over a long period of time. This is a matter which must be inquired into fully."

May Face Heavier Penalty.

The court then addressed the grand jurors, who had filed in, and instructed them in virtually the same language.

The statement of Judge Wilkerson indicated that if the government had sufficient evidence against Capone and his 68 co-defendants to link them with the substantive crimes of manufacturing and transporting beer, as the conspiracy indictment charges in the list of overt acts, the defendants should also be indicted under the Jones law. The penalties under this statute are five years and $10,000, while the maximum for conspiracy is only two years and $10,000.

The court's statement with respect to "the language" of the conspiracy indictment, and the impression it creates, apparently referred to the charge that defendants conspired to commit 5,000 offenses against the dry laws.

Three Year Time Limit.

Special prohibition agents who developed the conspiracy case express doubt whether they can link Capone with any substantive offenses, such as manufacture, sale or transportation of beer, within the statute of limitations. The only overt act set forth within the three year statute of limitations and in which Capone's name is mentioned, is an alleged meeting at the Lexington hotel, June 12, 1930.

Capone, Joe Fusco, beer boss of the syndicate; Bert Delaney, beer manufacturer; Jack Heinan, saloon keeper and payoff man, and George Howlett, minor hoodlum, met there to discuss "ways and means of carrying on their unlawful conspiracy," say the indictment.

Such evidence would be of value in a conspiracy case, but it would have little weight in proving the crime of manufacture or transportation, attorneys point out. Capone is definitely linked with the conspiracy through his purchase of trucks in 1922 and 1923 which were subsequently seized loaded with beer. This would be permissible in a conspiracy case, for the statute of limitations does not begin to apply until the last overt act is committed. In other words, a conspiracy case is continuous and may cover many years if one overt act was committed within the last three years.

Will Seek New Venue.

Attorney Michael Ahern indicated that he would seek a change of venue when Capone's income tax case comes up for trial. Such action presumably was prompted by Judge Wilkerson's emphatic refusal to be bound by any agreement as to punishment between the defendant and the government when Capone's case came up for a hearing on the pleas of guilty Thursday.

"May I say this to your honor," said Mr. Ahern. "I want to be perfectly frank with the court. So far as I am personally concerned, your honor, I would just as soon try a case before you as anybody. I think your rulings are fair. But I know the attitude of the defendant and I think he thinks you are prejudiced."

"There is a method provided for you in such cases," said Judge Wilkerson.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes is to be assigned to the criminal call in September, but it is possible that some other federal judge may be called in to try the Capone case.

Trial Late in September.

District Attorney Johnson informed the court that he desired an early trial for Capone on the income tax cases, but declared that Sept. 5 would be too early. Witnesses would have to be brought from various states, he said. He suggested that the case be preset on Sept. 5 for some date toward the last of the month, and the court agreed.

In his original order Judge Wilkerson called for 100 veniremen for Sept. 5, but when he was informed that the government would not be ready this part of the order was canceled.

Capone, who is free under $50,000 bond, was not in court yesterday, the judge having instructed his attorneys that the defendant's presence would not be required.

If Capone goes on trial late in September or in October, and is convicted on the income tax fraud charges, his case could not be disposed of by the Circuit Court of Appeals before next spring, even if the government made special efforts for its early hearing. The defendant then would be permitted to appeal to the Supreme court for a writ of certiorari, and even if this were denied Capone would not reach the penitentiary before the latter part of 1932.

District Attorney Praised.

Endorsement of the efforts of United States Attorney Johnson were contained in a statement issued yesterday by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and head of the Secret Six. The statement follows:

"Judge Wilkerson is reported to have said that 'there is no question about the propriety of the recommendation that the district attorney is prepared to make' in the Capone case.

"I should like to add that there should be no question in anybody's mind about the actions of the district attorney throughout this case. He has given devoted public service, under great mental and physical strain, and has acted with the complete knowledge of the attorney general. His life has been in danger and his family in jeopardy, and the public should accord him the highest degree of respect and approbation."

SIX SENTENCED IN COOK COURTS ARE GIVEN CLEMENCY

Among ten Illinois convicts who received clemency yesterday from Gov. Emmerson were six men sentenced by Cook county courts. One of them, Harry Dravilles, convicted in 1925 of assault to rape and sentenced to one to fourteen years, was pardoned.

Sentences of the following were commuted:

Edward F. Cronk, confessed murderer of Paul Loberg, jeweler, in 1922; sentence of 20 years to expire at once.

John Krygowski, convicted of killing Anton Zylan, butcher, in 1922; life sentence to expire at once.

Charles Johnson, Negro race rioter convicted of murder in 1919; life sentence to expire Dec. 24, 1933.

Edward Pinkerton, convicted of the murder of James Murphy in 1920; sentence of 25 years to expire March 4, 1932.

CAPONE'S DRIVER AND GIRL HELD ON DOPE CHARGE

Al Capone's chauffeur, Louis Prisco, 32 years old, of the Lexington hotel, and Ruth Williams, 27 years old, of the Metropole hotel, were held to the grand jury by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday in bonds of $10,000 and $1,500 respectively. The pair were arrested by federal narcotic agents working under Chief H. C. Westover when, it is alleged, Prisco went to the Metropole hotel to deliver five ounces of morphine valued at $1,500.

Bricklayers Start 5 Day Week to Increase Jobs

The five day week for bricklayers will go into effect this morning, making Saturday a full holiday. Sponsors of the plan say it will give employment to 6,000 additional men. Announcement of the five day week came a month ago following a meeting of the arbitration board of the builders' association and the bricklayers' union. The bricklayers are now the sixth major building craft to adopt the short week. The others are the glaziers, carpenters, lathers, plasterers, and painters.

Jellyfish Make Beaches Too Thorny for Bathers

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—Complaints have been received by the federal bureau of fisheries that sea nettles, or white jellyfish, are so numerous in Chesapeake bay this year that beach resorts are losing many patrons and fishing is stopped. The bureau said nothing could be done to wipe out the pests except for nature to provide a stiff in-shore breeze to blow the many-fanged fish high and dry on the beaches.

GERMAK URGES ALDERMAN QUIT FINANCE POST

Mayor Calls Clark's Hand in Economy Row.

If there was any doubt after their table-pounding altercation on Thursday that a feud had broken out between Mayor Cermak and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the powerful finance committee of the city council, over the mayor's economy policy, the mayor settled the matter yesterday by issuing a long statement. He suggested that Ald. Clark resign the committee chairmanship in favor of some one "in accord with my policy."

ALD. CLARK.

Bundesen Cuts His Staff.

With the statement came the announcement that Health Commissioner Bundesen had lopped off 91 jobs in his department after a conference with J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer, for whose economy survey of the city hall the council authorized an appropriation of $50,000 on Thursday. Jacobs, and the mayor's statement based on the efficiency expert's report that 15 per cent could be cut from the city budget next year, were the cause of the controversy between the mayor and Ald. Clark. They clashed first at the finance committee meeting which recommended the $50,000 appropriation to the council.

Mayor Cermak discussed the Jacobs survey and the necessity for economy in the city hall in his statement yesterday. He stated that the city corporate fund will show a deficit by the end of the year of approximately $11,000,000 and pointed out that savings cannot wait for the making of the 1932 budget, but must be started at once.

Mayor Makes Statement.

He described his meeting with the finance committee, and the action of Ald. Clark in disputing his and Jacobs' assertion that 15 per cent could be cut from the city budget without impairing efficiency and then stated:

"I was surprised at the attitude of Ald. Clark. He indicated strong irritation and resentment at my answer. Ald. Clark then said 'The council made the appropriation for 1931, and we'll stand by it as best we can. If we were wrong to the extent of $10,000,000 in one year, every member of the committee should resign, and I, for one, will resign, for it means $40,000,000 has been wasted in the four years I have been chairman.'

"I want to save every dollar that can be saved. Doesn't Ald. Clark want to do likewise? If he does, why doesn't he get in step with me and with the other members of the finance committee and the city council?

"He suggested yesterday that he would resign if the results of the Jacobs survey show a 15 per cent saving. He is the one who talked about resigning. I never mentioned the matter to him or said anything to him about doing so even after he had suggested it.

"But having thought the matter over since yesterday, I think there is something in his suggestion."

Ninety-one Jobs Eliminated.

The ninety-one jobholders whose positions were wiped out as a result of the economy survey in the health department will be dismissed today. Their annual salaries amount to $242,264, slightly less than 10 per cent of the $2,569,782 which was appropriated for the health department this year.

The Jacobs report on health department economies shows that $45,000 has already been saved in salaries there under Dr. Bundesen, in addition to $69,000 saved by the two weeks' pay deductions and $3,000 from the overtime account. With $41,250 which the report says can be saved in purchase of supplies, the aggregate saving for the department this year will be $276,968.

Among the higher salaried jobs abolished were those of Marcus Lane, supervising sanitary and plumbing inspector, at $4,968 a year; Dr. O. W. Junek, secretary to the morals commission, at $2,700 a year, and the position of health educational assistant, at present vacant, but for which the council appropriated $4,200 this year.

Workers to Do More Work.

Other economy moves announced yesterday by Mayor Cermak were the agreement of city plumbers to install five water meters a day in place of the two which they have been installing, and of meter readers to read 100 meters a day instead of forty. Half of the men engaged in those two pursuits can be laid off as a result of the increased efficiency, the mayor said.

City hall loungers who dropped into the council chambers yesterday in the expectation of using the telephones there free, found the booths barred by shiny new padlocks. Keys will be issued to aldermen and others authorized to use them. The move was part of the general drive to confine telephone use in the city hall to authorized persons.

The depleted city corporate fund is expected to be replenished next week by the payment of approximately $4,250,000 to the city by the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The money, when received, will be used to pay overdue salaries to policemen, firemen, and other city employes.

School Economy Starts.

The school board's economy program, which school trustees say will save $2,340,965, goes into effect today, when 98 employes, ranging from department heads down to clerks, will find themselves out of jobs.

Among the "fat" jobs abolished were those of James Todd, as special assistant attorney for the board, receiving $10,000 a year, William D. Saltiel, city attorney and official greeter under the former administration, as a special attorney at $13,000 a year, and a special attorney at $4,200 a year in the tax division of the board's legal department.

Attorney Todd was bitter over his dismissal, and pointed out a number of ways in which the school board could save money without depriving him of his job.

Forty-eight clerks in the offices of the board of assessors were informed last night that they need not return to work today. Charles E. Fox, director of appraisals, and John E. Conroy, secretary of the board, explained that they had no more money to pay salaries.

Twenty clerks who must be kept to investigate the complaints of taxpayers filed with the board of review will also be dismissed on Monday unless a transfer of funds is allowed by the county board, the assessors said. Fifty other clerks are in danger of losing their jobs.

High Tax Bill of City Shown in Federal Survey of Levies

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The federal government finds that taxes in Chicago are high. In the latest issue of "Financial Statistics of Cities" it is shown there are only 15 cities of the 250, with 10,000, or more population, in the entire nation where more taxes per capita are levied than in Chicago. And 10 of that 15 are located in New York, Massachusetts, and Connecticut.

These comparisons are on general property taxes levied for 1929. Of the 40 largest cities of the country, the federal figures show seven levied more taxes per capita than were assessed in Chicago. For 1930, when the tax rate in Chicago will again be boosted, this city will probably be surpassed by only two of the larger 40 cities, because in most of these cities the peak appears to have been reached in 1928, and since then they seem to be content to hold their tax rates rather than increase them. On the other hand, Chicago's taxes were raised more than 19 per cent in 1929, 10 per cent in 1930, and above 5 per cent in 1931.

Compare Tax with 1917.

The government figures, which are on a comparable basis between the cities, are for 1929. The following table shows the general property taxes levied per capita for that year, in contrast with 1917, for a number of the larger cities, in the order of their rank in population:

City	Taxes levied per capita. 1929.	1917.
New York	$66.84	$28.86
Chicago	63.68	22.39
Philadelphia	51.56	19.16
Detroit	60.97	28.96
Los Angeles	69.14	27.07
Cleveland	58.74	21.99
St. Louis	49.65	18.49
Baltimore	38.27	18.51
Boston	69.50	34.07
Pittsburgh	67.37	28.55
San Francisco	51.44	27.05
Milwaukee	56.14	22.98
Buffalo	65.74	27.42
Washington	49.35	18.02
Minneapolis	50.13	21.28
New Orleans	38.29	14.44
Cincinnati	52.39	22.49

It will be noted that the increase in taxes between 1917 and 1929 in Chicago is larger than in any other city in the preceding list, yet the financial plight of Chicago appears to be much worse at present than in the other large cities.

Chicago's taxes per capita for 1929 are twice as much as in a majority of the other 13 Illinois cities on which the federal government supplies data. Chicago's $63.68 per capita is comparable with $31.49 in Peoria, $31.34 in Springfield, $28.85 in Decatur, $24.74 in Quincy, $21.45 in Rock Island, $25.33 in Danville or $26.30 in Moline. It is also comparable with $37.07 in Rockford, $34.67 in East St. Louis, $38.09 in Cicero, $35.34 in Aurora, $35.08 in Joliet, $48.15 in Oak Park and $52.59 in Evanston.

Scot Gives Up $750,000 to Be American Citizen

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31.—(AP)—It cost W. B. Maining, architect, $750,000 to become an American citizen. Under a former will of his uncle, the late ex-Provost James G. Russell of Falkirk, Scotland, Mr. Maining would have received that amount, but the testator cut him off without a penny in a second will after he learned he had become a naturalized American citizen.

MOVE OPENS TO LET ORIENTALS IN BY QUOTAS

Pacific Coast Business Men Behind It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—Another far eastern question beside that of Philippine independence will be in all likelihood receive the attention of the next congress—that of extending the quota system of the immigration laws to include oriental peoples.

The immigration committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States passed a resolution today aimed at removing the discriminatory barriers now set up against immigrants from Japan and other far eastern countries.

"This matter was brought before the committee upon the initiative of business men on the Pacific coast," it was explained by Asa G. Briggs of St. Paul, chairman of the committee. "The question is a practical one covering the relations between nations. The number of immigrants would be so small as to be negligible. The quota for Japan would be approximately 185 a year and for China 105 a year.

"The statistics of the immigration bureau show that in the six year period, 1925 to 1930, inclusive, 6,000 more Chinese and 20,000 more Japanese departed from than entered the United States. Regulation can be continued under the quota limit system and without offending the sensibilities of friendly countries.

"Proper action will not only do justice but it will lead to more friendly and extended trade relations."

RUPERT F. BIPPUS IS MADE CHIEF OF BLUE SKY BUREAU

David H. Jackson, head of the blue sky department under Secretary of State Stratton ever since the latter's election, was replaced yesterday by Attorney Rupert F. Bippus of Chicago.

Secretary Stratton's office announced the acceptance of Jackson's resignation, but those in touch with politics knew that Fred Lundin, to whose camp Stratton belongs, had brought about the shift. Jackson was close to Lundin for years, but ill feeling between them began early this year and became acute when Jackson presided at a campaign meeting for the former mayor.

MOFFETT WARNS OF WAR MENACE IN LONG FLIGHTS

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—Proof that American cities could be bombed by attacking planes from Europe was seen today by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett in the nonstop flight of Russel Boardman and John Polando from New York to Turkey.

The chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics pictured the possibility of similar planes carrying only one man with a bomb or two, instead of the other passenger, flying the Atlantic to attack New York and other major cities.

"As a result of this flight America suddenly wakes up to the fact that it is within bombing distance of Europe," said Admiral Moffett, who had maintained previously that planes capable of attacking the United States coast would have to be based on airplane carriers part of the way across the ocean.

Under the stimulus of war, he asserted, the ocean would be crossed many times for each successful flight that has been made in time of peace.

DEPOSITORS WIN APPROVAL OF U. S. TO REOPEN BANK

Washington Pk. National to Be Reorganized.

The Washington Park National bank, 6306 Cottage Grove avenue, which closed on June 8, is expected to reopen its doors soon. The comptroller of the currency at Washington approved a plan yesterday for reopening the bank under a reorganization committee.

This is the second favorable public announcement in connection with the outlying bank situation this week, the other being the assumption of the deposit liabilities of the Illinois State bank of Evanston by the Phillip State Bank and Trust company.

Members of the Washington Park reorganization committee met in the bank last night to agree on the last details of reorganization. The bank is to be called the Park National Bank and Trust company. Before it can be reopened, however, certain preliminaries must be arranged with R. B. McCandless, the receiver appointed by the comptroller.

Depositors to Subscribe.

The new bank will have a capital of $50,000, surplus of $200,000, and undivided profits of $100,000. Capital is to be subscribed by the old depositors, each of whom will put up an amount equal to approximately ten per cent of his deposits. Under the program a depositor having $1,000 in the Washington Park National bank will have $500 credited to his account in the new bank, will have $100 in capital stock, and the remaining $300 will be ultimately liquidated by assets in the hands of the receiver.

It is understood that W. H. Vanderploeg, who was president of the bank when it closed, will head the reorganized institution. Mr. Vanderploeg came to Chicago about a year ago from Des Moines, Ia., to head the Washington Park National.

Affiliated with Foremans.

The closing of the Washington Park bank followed action taken by the Foreman-State banks, with which it was affiliated, whereby they were absorbed by the First National bank. Resources of the Washington Park bank at the time it was suspended were given as $10,625,000, with deposits of $8,564,000. The decision to suspend was taken by the board of directors to conserve the interests of all depositors alike.

The new bank is to operate a trust office the powers of which are granted by the federal reserve board.

Members of the reorganization committee are John C. Dinsmore, Herman C. Frey, Dr. William J. Mulholland, R. J. Cuplet, the Rev. Father C. J. Anderson, Abraham Dick, Rufus S. Dexter, Joseph B. Fleming, Dr. William F. Gunn, Andrew W. Harper, Victor R. Munnecke, William L. O'Brien, William L. O'Connell, Henry J. Reiss, John H. Reilly, Patrick W. Ryan, J. J. Stanley, Edward Steinthal, George W. Webster, Michael J. Whelan, Edwin E. Young, and Mr. Vanderploeg.

Bank Absorption Effected.

In the assumption of the $385,241 deposit liabilities of the Illinois State bank by the Phillip State bank on Thursday hardly a ripple disturbed the routine of the latter bank.

"We are greatly pleased with the attitude displayed by the depositors of the Illinois State bank," C. A. Beuret, president of the Phillip bank, said. "Withdrawals by Illinois bank depositors were negligible, the total falling far below our expectations."

Rogers Park business men saw the action of the Phillip bank as one which will instill confidence in all quarters in the locality. Emery T. Erickson, executive secretary of the Rogers Park-Clark Business association, asserts that the taking over of the deposit liabilities will be of great benefit to Rogers Park business. E. G. Lesley, a wholesale lumber dealer and a depositor in the bank, said the action by the Phillip State will do much toward restoring confidence in the community.

Work on the Garfield State.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday gave members of a depositors' committee of the Garfield State bank, which closed June 11, until Wednesday to work out a reorganization, failing in which a receiver will be appointed. He also mailed a letter to Julius F. Deuther, member of a depositors' committee of the North Western Trust and Savings bank, telling him that his plan to form a new bank is not feasible.

Another committee, headed by James F. Deuther, is to confer with Mr. Nelson today regarding a plan which it has formulated. Mr. Nelson stated that even if a receiver is appointed, the receivership can be lifted if such a satisfactory reorganization plan is effected.

Logan L. Mullins, a professional bank liquidator, yesterday was appointed receiver for the Cragin State bank, Armitage and Grand avenues. The bank when it closed on June 10 had resources of $922,000 and deposits of $687,000. S. P. Roderick was named as attorney. The receiver will be paid on a salary basis.

Depositors of 15 Banks Unite.

Depositors committees representing the depositors of fifteen banks in various parts of the city which have been closed recently, met last night in the Den Norske cafe, 2741 North Avenue, formed the United Depositors Committee of Illinois and elected officers.

Those elected are: The Rev. H. Freeman Gordon of the United Lutheran church, chairman; W. W. Harrod, vice chairman; Joseph A. Weber, secretary, and Thomas D. Bell, treasurer.

The object of the organization is to unite the depositors committees of the various banks which have been closed to investigate the situation and take such action as may be decided on to safeguard their interests. Another meeting will be held next Friday night in the same café.

Sleuth Sent to Michigan to Face Alimony Charge

Ray Melandy, 43 years old, 4240 Clarendon avenue, a private detective, was sent back to Lansing, Mich., yesterday to face contempt proceedings on a charge that he is $4,500 in arrears of alimony payment to his former wife, Catherine, whom he divorced in 1927.

BEER PEDDLER IS SLAIN IN TRAP NEAR ROADHOUSE

Body Carried Off and Left in Field.

Matt Hoffmann, 33 years old, a small time beer peddler, was shot and killed late Thursday night after a struggle outside a roadhouse in Glenview. His body, with bullet wounds in the head, was found last evening in a cornfield near the village of Aptakisic, in Lake county, about eight miles from the scene of the battle.

Hoffmann's wife, Anna, answered a telephone call at about 10:30 p. m. Thursday. The caller was Jack Hackney, owner of a roadhouse on Harms road south of Lake avenue in Glenview. He requested that two half barrels of beer be delivered at once to his place.

The Hoffmann home is on Glenview road, just inside the limits of Wilmette. Hoffmann arose from bed and, clad only in his trousers, under-clothing and bedroom slippers, left in his car with the beer.

Roadhouse Owner's Story.

According to Hackney, he had made the call on behalf of a man known to him only as Jake Schrieber.

"I met this Jake about two weeks ago," he said. "Matt introduced him to me. He said that if Schrieber ever wanted any beer delivered to him at my place I should make the call. That's what I did, and Schrieber was standing by me when I called.

"A few minutes after that Schreiber walked outside. He said he'd be back inside an hour, and to tell Matt to wait. I think there was another man and maybe two with Schreiber, but I don't know.

"Along about 11 o'clock, or maybe a little later, a car came into my yard. Then, in about ten minutes more, I heard somebody yelling 'Help, Jack!' I was afraid to go out and there was some more noise. I didn't hear any shots fired, but pretty soon two cars drove away and I called the police to tell them I thought Matt Hoffmann had been kidnaped."

Find Evidence of Murder.

Chief of Police Roy Miller of Glenview and Lieut. James Meyering of the county highway force investigated. In the yard in front of Hackney's place they found the two half barrels of beer, abandoned; two shells from a .32 caliber pistol, and a pool of blood. They were convinced then that Hoffmann had been killed on this spot and his body carried away.

Efforts were made to find the missing man, but no trace of him or his body was found until Roman Raupp and Clarence Weidner, sons of farmers living near Aptakisic, discovered the body in the cornfield.

Deputy Sheriff John De Smidt of Lake county recognized the victim as Hoffmann and Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county ordered the body taken to Libertyville.

According to the police information, Hoffmann had won the enmity of a rival gang of beer runners who hoped to take over his territory. These men are believed to have come down from Wisconsin.

Mrs. Hoffmann said that she did not know from whom her husband bought wholesale, and she had never heard of Schreiber. Hoffmann was the father of three small children.

O. K. PLAN TO GIVE CITY CONTROL OF CHARITY DRIVES

City control of all solicitations for funds by charitable organizations was approved yesterday at a conference of representatives of accredited social agencies with Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, commissioner of public welfare, and Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], author of an ordinance providing for such control.

The Hodes ordinance, which aims to curb "charity rackets," would require each person or agency conducting a public drive for funds for any purpose to obtain a permit from the public welfare commissioner. The conference group decided that a committee should perfect the ordinance before it is urged for passage by the city council.

Members of the revision committee are Mrs. Conkey, Ald. Hodes, Wilfred S. Reynolds, secretary of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies; Frank D. Loomis, secretary of the Chicago Community trust; and Henry Stewart, secretary of subscriptions investigation for the Chicago Association of Commerce.

License Bureau Discloses Further Marriage Slump

Marriage licenses issued during July, 1931, fell 14 per cent below those issued during July of 1930, and the total licenses issued for the year has fallen 14 per cent below the number issued during the first seven months of 1930, according to figures announced by Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk in the marriage license bureau, when the office closed yesterday. For the last month 2,772 licenses were issued as compared to 3,217 in July last year. Cumulative figures for 1931 and 1930 were respectively 18,860 and 21,900.

Gives Hitch Hikers a Lift and They Rob Him of Auto

When two unidentified youths asked him for a ride just outside of Chicago yesterday, William C. Ahrens, of 4723 Kiona avenue, stopped. The boys hopped on. "We're on our way to Milwaukee," they said. "So am I," replied Ahrens. At Twin Lakes, Kenosha county, Ahrens stopped his machine, and alighted to buy some cigarettes. When he emerged from the store, the two highway passengers were gone. So was his car.

WIFE DISCOVERS BROKER HUSBAND DIED A SUICIDE

Both Descendants of Colonial Families.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Returning from downtown early this morning, Mrs. Euphemia Van Rensselaer Wyatt found that he rhusband, Christopher Billopp Wyatt, 50, had killed himself in his bedroom in their old home at 13 Lexington avenue.

Mr. Wyatt, a broker, was a descendant of one of the earliest colonial settlers, Christopher Billopp, whose home on Staten island is still preserved as a fine example of colonial architecture. His wife is a niece of the late Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, one time arbiter of New York society.

About three years ago, Mr. Wyatt had a nervous breakdown and was ill at a sanitarium for some time. He left, apparently recovered, but about six months ago he became ill again.

Leaves Will Beside Body.

When his wife returned to home today she found his pajama clad body stretched on his bed with a wound from a .45 caliber revolver in his head. His will lay on a night table beside the bed, but he left no note.

Mr. Wyatt was vice president of E. H. Rollins & Sons, 44 Wall street, and director of the American Constitution Fire Assurance company, American Equities and the American Home Fire Insurance company. He was a member of the Union League club and a graduate of Columbia university, class of 1903.

Mr. Wyatt was the son of former Justice William E. Wyatt of the court of special sessions. He was the father of a large family. Two daughters have made their debuts and there are several younger children.

Family Interested in Stage.

His widow, a direct descendant of Patroon Kiliaen van Rensselaer, founder of the family which has been prominent in New York City since it was a little Dutch village, was Miss Euphemia van Rensselaer Waddington. She has been a magazine editor and is the author of a play.

The two elder daughters, Mrs. Elisabeth Wyatt Russell and Miss Jane Waddington Wyatt, both inherited the mother's love of the theater. An accomplished dancer, Elisabeth went on the stage, dancing in a musical comedy road company, three months after her dbut in 1928. On April 1, 1929, she married William A. Russell, a member of an old Boston family.

In 1928 the second sister made her debut, and last spring she followed her sister's example, making her first appearance on the stage in "Give Me Tomorrow."

Restaurant Owner Shot Trying to Seize Robber

Richard Weisskopf, 3942 Wilcox street, owner of a restaurant in the Yellow Cab garage at 4954 Flournoy street, was shot in the hip and left leg last night when he tried to capture one of two bandits who invaded his place. The robbers entered through a rear door while about twenty cab drivers were standing in front of the lunchroom. One of the bandits was armed. Weisskopf grabbed the unarmed bandit, but was shot by the latter's companion. Th robbers took $40 after the shooting and fled.

WHAT MAKES PEOPLE MOODY?

DID you know that our health and our moods are closely related to intestinal cleanliness?

When the system is clogged by constipation, poisons are generated. Often these bring on headaches and listlessness. You feel blue, or become irritable.

The poisons of constipation frequently aggravate nervous troubles, rheumatism, high blood-pressure and heart trouble.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

Try it with milk or cream. Use in cooking too. Recipes on the red-and-green package. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

POLICE CARS TO BE REFUELED AT PUBLIC STATIONS

Beginning today, police cars will be refueled with gasoline at public filling stations.

Heretofore the automobiles have been supplied with fuel at district police stations or at the 14th street garage. This system is discontinued in an order issued last night by Acting Commissioner Alcock. As a result policemen detailed to filling tank work will be returned to more important duties. At the police garage alone three men were employed simply to refill police car tanks.

Under the new system police cars will obtain gasoline at tSandard Oil company stations. It is reported the rate will be 4 cents a gallon.

COOLIDGE WILLING TO RUN IN 1932, HIS FORMER DOCTOR SAYS

DR. J. F. COUPAL. [(C) Underwood & Underwood.]

St. Paul, Minn., July 31.—(AP)—The St. Paul Dispatch in a copyrighted article today quotes Col. J. F. Coupal, former White House physician, as saying Calvin Coolidge will run for President next year if there is sufficient public demand.

Col. Coupal, on duty at the White House during the Coolidge administration and a personal friend of the former President, said the candidacy would follow a decisive expression of public wish to draft him to meet the economic situation.

The newspaper quotes Colonel Coupal as saying Mr. Coolidge did not intend to remove himself unconditionally from the presidential field when he issued his "I do not choose to run" statement.

Instead, Colonel Coupal said, he merely wished, in compliance with his sense of justice, to cast aside any advantage his position might give and permit the people to choose another man if they preferred.

Mr. Coolidge, the colonel said, was "grieved and disappointed" when his statement was interpreted as a final refusal to accept another term.

GAMBLING SQUAD RAIDS 4 ALLEGED LOOP HANDBOOKS

Four alleged handbooks were raided in the loop last evening by a gambling squad from Commissioner Alcock's office in command of Capt. George O'Connor. Detectives from the state's attorney's office aided in the arrests.

On the seventh floor at 216 South Wabash avenue, 28 customers and Louis Strellisky, Cornelius Collins, and Fred Villini, alleged keepers, were seized. At 17 North Wabash avenue, John Adams and Eddie Johnson, alleged operators, and one customer were arrested. At 230 North Michigan avenue, and 69 East Lake street, cigar stores, Harry Sootnick and Joseph Harris were arrested as the keepers.

The raids were made without warrants, the first since Commissioner Alcock's order several months ago that no raids were to be made without them.

Canadian Steamer Runs Aground Off Point Wilson

VICTORIA, B. C., July 31.—(AP)—Sixty-eight passengers of the Canadian National steamer Prince David, which went aground off Point Wilson at 10:45 a. m. today, arrived here several hours later on the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Kathleen. They said the ship was grounded during a fog. The passengers were transferred from the Prince David to the Kathleen by a U. S. coast guard cutter. The Prince David was later pulled off the rocks by three tugs and made her way into Port Townsend bay under her own steam.

MRS. BLACKLIDGE DENIES CHARGES OF NOISY REVELS

Warrant Issued by Court Not Served.

Until midafternoon yesterday Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, formerly collector of internal revenue, waited in her apartment at 940 East 32d street for the serving on her of a warrant charging disorderly conduct. But no policeman appeared, and the warrant, obtained from Judge Matthew Hartigan in the Felony court on complaint of Mrs. Cora Rowe, also of 940 East 32d street, failed to appear in the mail either at the Burnside or the South Chicago police station in the vicinity.

Mrs. Blacklidge denied the charges of Mrs. Rowe that nightly revels were held in her apartment. The former collector left home about 3 o'clock, not to return until late.

Two occupants of adjacent apartments announced that their names had been brought into the case without their authorization. They were U. S. Greener and Mrs. Charles Rink, who, it had been said, would substantiate the accusations made by Mrs. Rowe.

Parties Not Noisy, She Says.

"Mrs. Rowe has called the police every time I have entertained my bridge clubs here," Mrs. Blacklidge declared. "I am at a loss to understand her charges. My parties were never noisy, and on each occasion the police found nothing wrong, and left. I have many friends who call on me, but it is my privilege to entertain my friends in my own home. They never have stayed later than 2 o'clock. It's ridiculous to say they didn't leave until 5."

Mrs. Rowe refused a personal interview, but said over the telephone that every charge she had made was true, and that she was ready to repeat her charges in court. She said she had never spoken to Mrs. Blacklidge, and never had a quarrel with her, and that "there was no malice behind the warrant."

On Lookout for Warrant.

Judge Hartigan declared last night that the warrant had been placed in the mail after its issuance on Wednesday, and that if it had not been received at the South Chicago station it was because it was delayed in the mail. The bailiff at the station said he was on the lookout for the document and would turn it over at once for service upon its receipt, probably this morning.

Mrs. Blacklidge was forced to resign her political office last January, after the famous faro game at Springfield which caused a loss of $50,000 to Edward R. Litsinger of the board of review.

STAR ON CERMAK AUTO VIOLATES 'DRAG' ORDINANCE

City Law Mayor Signed Is Broken.

An automobile parked in front of the city hall yesterday on which a star sat proudly above the license plates announcing to the world that a member of the "I Gotta Drag" club rode therein, was found to be Mayor Cermak's car. Of course, policemen said, the mayor has a drag with the police, but nevertheless the star is a violation of an ordinance passed last June 10. The ordinance was signed by the mayor.

The council order, aimed at all persons who sought to impress the traffic police, provides a fine of from $5 to $50 for the display of a star or other emblem purporting to show a relationship to any governing body. Official police automobiles are the only ones exempted.

Another car found blocking traffic yesterday at Monroe and Dearborn streets while the driver was saying good-by to his wife for five minutes carried stars fore and aft. Its license plates showed it to be owned by Joseph Sdetiser, 14614 South Central Park avenue, Midlothian.

Over in Grant park a car with stars was parked. It belonged to Roger A. Simonson, 122 South Michigan avenue, who is in the advertising business. Mr. Simonson said he is a good friend of Mayor Cermak, but he declared he didn't know the stars proclaimed his standing in the community. His son must have put them on the car, he said.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS 200 MILLION LOAN TO AVERT CRISIS

French and U. S. Banks to Extend Credit.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 31.—The proud "Old Lady of Threadneedle street," who has handled a large part of the world's gold in her time and whose proudest boast is the proverb, "As safe as the Bank of England," tonight was forced to accept the help of those two young upstarts, the American Federal Reserve bank and the Bank of France.

The exact extent of the help has not been officially stated yet, but reliable unofficial reports name it as a credit of $200,000,000, to be split fifty-fifty between the Bank of France and the Federal Reserve bank. Not only will this credit save the British pound, which is in a much more serious straight than is commonly thought—acceptance of the offer which the British at first considered humiliating proves that—but it is called the greatest step towards relief of the German crisis since the Hoover moratorium.

Able To Leave German Credits.

For, with the aid of the credit, Great Britain will be able to "freeze" her German credits, which would otherwise have to be withdrawn to protect the pound.

The three power accord, which marks a milestone in financial history, was reached after a short conference between Gov. Moret of the bank of France and Sir Robert Kindersley, agent of the bank of England who returned to Paris today with England's acceptance of the French offer, which he had carried to London Tuesday. Sir Robert immediately on his arrival drove to the bank of France, where he was closeted with M. Moret and the private French bankers who are supporting the loan for half an hour.

He came out with a satisfied expression and immediately rushed to the long distance phone to communicate the good news to the American federal reserve bank authorities, who, it is understood, agreed to the French offer.

Will Pay 3½% Interest.

It is understood that the bank of England will pay 3½ per cent interest on the transaction. The credit will not be in the form of a straight advance. The Bank of France and the Federal Reserve bank will simply buy sterling in the market and rediscount it up to an agreed total.

Financial circles here are jubilant over the accord, which, they think, will strengthen not only the German, but the world monetary situation. But it was a hard battle to swing the course proud Britishers around. They would not give in until the last day of the month, with settling-up day tomorrow and disaster staring them in the face if they did not come through.

GERMAN BANKS TO REOPEN

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 31.—All banks in Germany which have been closed since July 14 will be permitted to reopen next Wednesday and to pay out to their customers in full, according to a decree which the government will issue tomorrow. On Monday the restrictions on interbank transfers will be lifted from members of the Mutual Guarantee bank, and on Tuesday from all organizations except postal banks.

"The outlook is clearer than it has been for months, though many difficulties are still ahead of us," Foreign Minister Curtius said tonight after the German banks had succeeded in providing money to make all weekly and half monthly payments due today. Numerous firms paid full month's salaries.

Plan Visit to Rome.

Dr. Curtius and Chancellor Bruening are planning to leave for Rome Wednesday, providing no new difficulties crop up in internal politics and finances. They will return to Berlin for republican constitution day, Aug. 11.

In preparation for the removal of banking restrictions the Reichsbank tonight raised the discount rate from 10 per cent to 15 per cent and the lombard rate, or interest on collateral loans, from 15 per cent to 20 per cent.

The government feels itself on firm ground again, since American, British, and Swiss creditors of Germany have agreed not to withdraw their credits for the next six months, except on a very small scale.

Danat Bank to Reopen.

When the banks reopen next week the Darmstaedter und National bank, which for some time seemed lost, will be doing business again. In a decree issued today the government guaranteed its payments after the financiers had succeeded in providing $10,000,000 in new money for the bank. This money was advanced by big industrialists on securities put up by stockholders of the bank.

Simultaneously, the government will be prepared to strengthen the Dresdner bank. Foreign credits at the Dresdner bank, totaling about $80,000,000, had been recalled, but under the agreement with the foreign bankers the bulk of these will remain in Germany.

Still, the officials fear there will be a run on the bank when normal payments are resumed and a plan was under discussion at the cabinet meeting tonight which may turn the Dresdner bank into the biggest institution in Germany. The plan provides that the Dresdner bank issue $75,000,000 worth of new preferred shares, which would be taken over by the government. Heretofore the capital was $25,000,000. Thus, the government would virtually buy control of the institution.

HUNGARY ORDERS RESTRICTIONS ON BANKS EXTENDED

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 31.—(AP)—The Hungarian government today ordered a further extension of banking restrictions until Aug. 17.

After Aug. 15 owners of bank accounts will be permitted to draw an additional 6 per cent of their deposits, the maximum to be withdrawn limited to 180. Money may be drawn for workmen's wages and raw materials. Signs for insurance premiums and taxes may be transferred, but not cashed. The payment of house rents must be postponed until Aug. 10.

SENTENCED

FRED L. PADDEN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Fred L. Padden, a realty dealer, brother of Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden, and Lawrence Parker, co-defendants charged with forgery in connection with the sale of a vacant lot at Glenlake avenue and Rockwell street, were sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court.

Following the decision, Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson moved that the case against John Morgan and Morris Blumenthal be nol prossed. The motion was denied.

The prosecution charged that the property involved in the case, owned by the late Charles Salstrom of California, was sold by Morgan to B. M. Berman on Aug. 27, 1928, on a forged deed. The fraud was discovered when Salstrom's son, Ralph, came to Chicago to have the estate settled after his father's death and found a 15 apartment building on the property.

Padden on the witness stand denied any part in the transaction. He said that he had been fooled into believing that Morgan was Salstrom. A motion for a new trial for Padden and Parker was denied and a stay of 60 days granted them in which to prepare an appeal.

WHEAT SLUMPS TO 48 CENTS, A CHICAGO RECORD

Liverpool Price Lowest Since Medieval Days.

southwest wheat growers, who have either been taking 20 to 25 cents a bushel or, in some cases storing the grain for fuel or burning it in the fields, are now resolved to reflect and await developments before sowing another crop. In this, Mr. Williams asserted, the farmers will be following, not the advice of the federal farm board, but the law of diminishing returns.

U. S. Agencies Viewed as Bears.

In fact the board of trade sentiment is that the farm board and its subsidiaries, the Grain Stabilization corporation and the Farmers' National Grain corporation, have unwittingly become the principal bearish factor in the present wheat market.

"With our own spring wheat crop short in Minnesota, Dakota and Montana and the Canadian crop an almost calamitous failure, the market under normal conditions would be set afire with bullish sentiment, Mr. Williams asserted. "In fact only two years ago Canadian crop damage started an advance in wheat prices which extended over 50 cents a bushel in four months."

But with the farm board now having an interest in sixty per cent of the nation's grain elevators and with its 230 million bushels of surplus wheat suspended like the sword of Damocles over the heads of private traders, speculation is at a standstill and will continue so until federal interference is removed, according to the board of trade view.

The Function of Speculation.

"The grain trade as a whole is convinced that speculation free from governmental interference and restrictions would perform its normal economic function of bridging the chasms between surplus and scarcity," Mr. Williams asserted.

In performing that function, he asserted, the grain traders have the authority and approval of the United States Supreme court, as expounded in the famous "bucket shop" decision, written by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. As a definition of the grain trader's function Mr. Williams quoted from Justice Holmes as follows:

"People will endeavor to forecast the future and to make commitments according to their prophecies. Speculation of this kind by competent men is self-adjustment of society to the probable. Its value is well known as a means of avoiding catastrophies, equalizing prices and providing for periods of want."

July Corn Holds at 72½.

Not all was gloomy in the Chicago grain pit yesterday. While oats ranged from 22½ to 25⅝ cents and December corn was at 42¾ cents, the buying coup of the last few days, attributed to Thomas M. Howell, held July corn at 72½ cents. There was no unusual activity in the corn pit, short traders having apparently made their peace and accepted their losses.

Wheat trading did not exceed Thursday's volume of 15,000,000 bushels, according to the best estimates. That the wheat decline was uninfluenced by bear trading was demonstrated when at one period just before the close the price dropped 1 cent at a time, with practically no trading.

FARM BOARD'S WHEAT OFFERED TO THE GERMANS

Cotton Holdings, Too, and on Easy Terms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—The United States government it was learned officially tonight, has offered to sell the German government any or all of the farm board's stabilization wheat and cotton on long term credits. The wheat holdings involved are estimated at some 225 million bushels and the board's reserve of cotton comprises 1,300,000 bales.

Reports that Frederic M. Sackett, American ambassador in Berlin, has made such an offer to Germany were confirmed by the state department.

President Hoover, it was explained, has sanctioned the move with a double purpose in view—to get rid of a part at least of the board's surplus holdings and to assist the economic rehabilitation of Germany by extending her in this form the long term credit she has been asking.

Neither the state department nor the farm board has received any word indicative of the German government's attitude.

A White Elephant.

President Hoover's tender is the culmination of a long extended campaign to sell the board's holdings abroad.

It has been known for some time that feelers had been put out in an attempt to induce foreign buyers to take some of the load. To make the deal more attractive, liberal credit arrangements were proposed. But until today, it was explained such dickering had not passed the indefinite, preliminary stage.

Russia was the only country to make an out and out offer. She was willing to buy approximately a fifth of the board's cotton holdings, but the board refused to give credit to the unrecognized soviet government.

Still the board continued to hope and to offer. In a recent press conference Chairman James C. Stone stated that the farm board was ready to sell its holdings on long credits to any country whose credit was good.

Such a contigency was specifically provided for when the board gave out its July 1 promise concerning the wheat held by the Grain Stabilization corporation. One of the important exceptions to its agreement not to sell more than a cumulative maximum of five million bushels a month was the reservation of the right to carry through sales to foreign governments or their agencies now pending.

Cotton Pack Has Expired.

In cotton, the year during which the board promised that the cotton stabilization corporation would hold its 1,300,000 bales was up today. It was announced yesterday by Carl Williams, board member, that the pledge would stand until further notice and that no new announcement was yet ready to be made. With the year completed, however, the new announcement might be amended to embrace a sale abroad.

In fact, should Germany prove receptive, it is considered more likely that more business might be done in cotton than in wheat.

The tariff on wheat imports, equivalent to $1.60 a bushel, which Germany imposed about a year ago, and the rigorous milling laws which require 90 per cent of the wheat ground to be German grown, have resulted in building up Germany's wheat production and reducing her import requirements.

Wheat Needs Are Few.

Germany's net wheat imports in 1929-'30 totaled only 60 million bush-

MOTHER OF 4 IN JAIL A WEEK FOR AUTO CRASH DEBT

Because she had no money to pay a $117 judgment for damages to the automobile of a Detroit man, Mrs. Eleanor Byzek, 7131 Stony Island avenue, a washwoman and the mother of four children whose only support she is, has spent the last week in the county jail. Taken yesterday on a pauper's petition before Judge J. G. Van Keuren, who is sitting in the County court, she was released on bonds of $150 signed by her attorney, Thomas P. Fitzpatrick, pending a hearing on Aug. 14.

More than a year ago, Attorney Fitzpatrick informed the court, Mrs. Byzek decided to try to expand her laundry work by purchasing a small car in which to make her deliveries. While she was learning to drive, she struck the parked car of Robert M. Trader of Detroit. Trader sued for damages.

Last Friday a capias was issued for Mrs. Byzek because of her failure to pay Trader's judgment and she was compelled to go to jail. Her three smaller children were left in the care of Robert, 19 years old, who has no job at present. Mrs. Byzek was deserted by her husband after the birth of the youngest child, seven years ago.

U. S. AID PLEDGED FARMERS HIT BY GRASSHOPPERS

Hoover Orders Relief Survey Made.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—The resources of the national government will be used to assist the agricultural northwest in contending with its dual plagues of drought and grasshoppers, President Hoover announced today.

CALOPTEMIS FEMUR-RUBRUM.

"I have directed officials of the department of agriculture to undertake, in cooperation with local and state authorities," the President said, "such organization as may be necessary to meet the situation created by local drought and grasshopper destruction in the northwestern and central states. The department is engaged in a resurvey in the light of the changes in the last two weeks. The area affected and embraces certain counties in Montana, North and South Dakota, and local sections of Iowa, Nebraska, and Minnesota.

Calls Damage Minor.

"While suffering within the areas affected is acute, the extent of the drought and damage is comparatively minor to that which we confronted and surmounted last year. The federal government has already extended assistance in some portions of those localities, and the Red Cross is actively engaged in relief work. Secretary Hyde is in touch with the situation. National and local resources are available and the problem will be taken care of."

In conformity with the President's instructions, G. L. Hoffman, director of the seed loan office of the department of agriculture, had given orders, it was announced, for a survey to be made by extension agents in North and South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota, Nebraska, and Iowa.

Of the $65,000,000 voted by the last congress for loans for seed and feed and for assisting with the extension of rural credits, approximately $17,000,000 is left. At least a portion of this amount, it is expected, will be made available for use in the drought and grasshopper area.

Reports here are that the North Dakota wheat crop has been damaged 65 per cent, first by the drought and then by the grasshoppers, and that of the Montana crop only about 30 per cent will be harvested.

Resume Effort to Raise Ship Rotarian from River

Work of raising the sunken steamer Rotarian from its berth on the bottom of the river near the Clark street bridge, where it has rested for nine months, was resumed again yesterday by a crew of ten men under the direction of John Murphy, former owner of the craft. They are sinking pontoons in the hull, which will later be pumped full of air in an effort to float the boat. Informed of the work, Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday continued charges of blocking navigation and maintaining a nuisance against Attorney Miles J. Devine and Walter J. Powers, joint owners of the Rotarian, until Aug. 20.

Dispute on 'Prevailing' Wages May Delay Waterway Bridges

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Construction of bridges to cost $882,000 over the Illinois waterway may be delayed by the new law requiring payment of the prevailing rate of wages in contracts for public works. A hearing was held yesterday at the state division of waterways, at which labor representatives presented arguments that the wage rates stipulated in advertisements for bids for five bridges are below the prevailing wage scale in Will county.

The contracts were to be awarded Aug. 25, but the state officials expressed an opinion that due to the controversy they may not be let until late in the fall.

The five bridges under discussion were at Joliet, temporary bridge at Van Buren street, $40,000; Jackson street, $178,000; Jefferson street, $264,000; at Marseilles, $100,000; at Brandon road, $100,000.

Accept U. S. Contract Figures.

The state officials say, that after the prevailing wage rate law went into effect on July 1, new advertisements for bids were drawn up and published. In stipulating the wages to be paid for various types of skilled and unskilled labor on the bridges, the state based its figures on the wages paid under contracts which the federal government let early in the year on the waterway, which it is completing.

Labor officials protested the rates were below the union scale in Will county. At yesterday's hearing they presented letters from contractors in the area to support their arguments.

One leading contention was that 90 cents an hour is the prevailing rate for common labor in the Will county scale. The state's advertisements called for 50 cents for unskilled labor. Blacksmiths and bricklayers were to be given $1.25. State officials say the rates they set forth for skilled labor were about 10 per cent below the union scale.

Consult Highway Officials.

The matter was taken under advisement by the waterway authorities, who will confer with the state highway department, where the new wage rate law led to the deferring of road contracts to the amount of $10,000,000 which were to be let in July.

Present at the conference were Henry H. Kohn, director of purchases; Benjamin H. Miller, supervisor of waterways; L. D. Cornish, chief engineer; Edward N. Nockels, who spoke for the Illinois and Chicago Federations of Labor; Ernest Westwood of the building trades of Will county; Tony Augustino, representing Will county labor; John F. Kelly of the trade and labor council of Joliet, and J. Arthur Etensen of the bridge and structural iron workers international union.

All told, the state has to build eleven bridges over the waterway, five of them in Joliet and six below that city. The estimated cost was about $2,500,000, and the officials estimate the new prevailing rate of wage act will increase the estimate by $300,000 to $500,000.

FAROE ISLANDERS HOIST OWN FLAG OVER PARLIAMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THORSHAVN, Faroe Islands, July 31.—The Nationalists who are fighting for independence from Denmark, and especially for the preservation of their native language, saw their identity gratified at the opening of the lagting [local parliament] today when the Faroe flag was hoisted simultaneously with the Danish flag.

After the ceremony of opening the parliament, crowds gathered in front of parliament house carrying 200 Faroe flags and listened to the speeches of the political leaders.

Pall Patursson, leader of the independence movement, told the crowds that the hoisting of the Faroe flag was a step in the direction of independence, but warned the islanders that if they are to remain a self-contained people they must preserve their language and fight the effort of the Danish government to rule the Faroe tongue out of all official documents.

STATE ASKS BIDS ON $6,786,521 IN ROAD PROJECTS

Revive Work Delayed by New Wage Law.

The Illinois highway department yesterday advertised for bids to be received Aug. 25 on $6,786,521 worth of road work. With an Aug. 13 letting totalling $4,556,749, this will make $11,343,270 in contracts to be awarded during the month.

The construction, delayed for more than a month due to difficulties in administering the "prevailing wage act" passed by the last legislature, will probably be started on most of the jobs early in September. The season for laying highway concrete ends about Oct. 15.

Relief to Jobless.

The construction is expected to give substantial temporary relief to unemployment in many sections of the state. The projects in the metropolitan area listed in the August lettings will cost approximately $4,582,479, and those downstate approximately $6,760,791.

The metropolitan area projects in the Aug. 25 letting are as follows:

LAKE STREET—Gap at Ontarioville.

MANNHEIM ROAD—Bridge over Des Plaines river.

GOVERNOR'S HIGHWAY—Paving subways at Matteson and a half mile of pavement in Burr Oak.

ROUTE 52—2.7 mile extension of Glenwood-Dyer road to Governor's highway.

ROUTE 83—[New north and south road]. From Evanston-Elgin road to Lake street highway, 6.94 miles; grade separation with Roosevelt road near Glen Ellyn; grade separation with Ogden avenue.

ROUTE 53—[Another new road of same bond issue number]. From Indiana line at about 159th street west for 1.74 miles.

NORTH AVENUE—Through Elmhurst, 1.06 miles.

22D STREET—Bridge over Salt creek.

ROUTE 59—[New north and south road]. From Lake street at Bartlett to North avenue, 6.53 miles.

ROUTE 65—A by-pass for Ogden avenue around Naperville, 2.3 miles.

Must Pay "Prevailing Wage."

In accordance with the "prevailing wage act", the state's advertisements specify the minimum wage scale to be paid by the contractors. The act provides that contractors on public construction shall not pay a lower rate than the wages prevailing in the community of the job.

ARLINGTON thanks you for your support and invites you to the climax of the world's richest race meet TODAY.

Post and Paddock Stakes and Arlington Handicap provide two big thrillers for racing world . . . no increase in prices

$100,000 in one day's purses. Arlington sets a new record for a western track and provides two big thrillers for get-away day—the Post and Paddock Stakes and the Arlington Handicap.

This is just one of the many records broken during the past thirty days at this beautiful racing shrine. It was the world's richest race meet, with total prizes of more than $700,000 during the season. The Arlington Classic won by Mate provided the largest purse offered this year the world over for a contest between 3-year-olds; for the first time the most distinguished thoroughbreds of the East and West meet on a western track for an entire meeting.

The result has been a brand of racing rarely seen anywhere in America. Leaders of the social world, owners, trainers and jockeys, came to view and participate in this great sport.

All this has been made possible by the unique non-profit policy in effect at Arlington. It has brought to Chicago the spirit of Ascot, Longchamps, Belmont, Saratoga—sport for sport's sake and the breeding of the thoroughbred. Not one cent of income at Arlington is for personal use—all is put back into purses and used to make Arlington more magnificent.

And today is the last chance you have this year to see the kind of racing Arlington brings. Come out. Enjoy the gaiety of the crowds, the color, thrills and excitement as the smart thoroughbreds thunder down the stretch. Don't miss the Post and Paddock Stakes, which will decide the two-year-old championship of America. See the great Sun Beau with heavy weight try to win the race that will make him the largest all-time money winner.

There will be no increase in admission prices. No charge for parking.

28 MORE PUBLIC ENEMIES NAMED BY CRIME BOARD

Newcomers in Gangland Power Are Listed.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Chester Dooley, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Fred L. Fadden and Lawrence F. Parker, forgery, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John Prystalski. Albert Miller, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Edward Herbert, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Johnson Brooks and Allen Campbell, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Philip Finnegan.

Twenty-eight additional criminals, making fifty-six up to date, were designated public enemies in a list made public yesterday by Henry Barnett Chamberlin, operating director, and Gerhardt F. Meyne, vice president of the Chicago crime commission. The new list was given in a communication sent by the commission to Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, State's Attorney Swanson, United States Attorney Johnson, Sheriff Meyering, and Acting Police Commissioner Alcock.

The communication said the continued and successful efforts of the law enforcing authorities in prosecuting the men named on the first list, which was headed by Al Capone, had caused the commission to launch an attack on the second group, which has grown to power.

Newcomers in Gang Power.

The men named in the new list were considered second rate gangsters and hoodlums at the time the first list was published, however, the commission said, some of the newcomers, including such men as Ted Newberry, have become gang chiefs in recent months. Those named in the new list are;

JOSEPH FUSCO, beer boss for the Capone syndicate, who is at present under indictment with Capone.

TED NEWBERRY, north side gang chief, who is now under indictment in Peoria on a bomb conspiracy charge.

SAM CAMPAGNIA [Little New York] known as a Capone booze hustler and gunman.

SAM HUNT, known as the golf bag machine gunner.

GROVER DULLARD, wanted as suspect in the Lingle murder case.

EDWARD KAUFMAN, south side beer hustler and at one time indicted for fixing in the conspiracy of former Gov. Small at Springfield.

ANTHONY [TONY] ACCARDO, Capone gunster.

CLAUDE MADDOX, alias JOHNNY DOYLE, leader of the west side Circus gang.

BERNARD O'DONNELL, brother of the Ozzie boo hustlers, Myles and Klondike O'Donnell, were named in the first list. He is in the labor racket.

MARTIN GUILFOYLE, northwest side gunning chief.

HARRY GUZIK, brother of Sam and Jack Guzik, who have been convicted in income tax fraud cases.

HENRY FINKELSTEIN, north side booze dealer.

SOLLY VISION, close associate of the late Jack Zuta, vice monger, who was slain in Wisconsin.

NICK KRAMER, a beer hustler of Joe Zuta gang.

PATRICK [PADDY] SULLIVAN, former policeman and Baltis chauffeur.

GEORGE [YAMA] DOWNS, south side beer hustler.

JAMES L. QUIGLEY, member of the Spike O'Donnell beer gang of the south side.

MICHAEL McGOVERN, south side hoodlum and beer hustler.

DANIEL McGOGHAGAN, once sentenced to death in a murder case. He has recently become head of a south side beer gang.

JOHN BARRY, west side booze hustler and labor racketeer.

ANTHONY [RED] KISSANE, west side gunster and labor racketeer.

CHARLES FISCHETTE, a Capone henchman.

GEORGE [DUTCH] VOGEL, Englewood beer distributor.

MARTIN O'LEARY, gambler, bootlegger, and suspected member of a kidnaping gang.

MIKE ROSSI, west side gangster and held suspect in the $2,500,000 robbery of a bank at Lincoln, Neb.

JOHN GENNA, Maxwell street district booze dealer.

MAXIE EISEN, labor racketeer.

JOE CAINSKI, Spike O'Donnell beer runner.

In accounting for the first list of twenty-eight public enemies the commission points out that two are dead, three are in the penitentiary, five are under sentence, one is awaiting sentence, one is on bail pending review in an extradition case, one has been federal deported, three are awaiting trial, five are fugitives from criminal charges, and seven have been cleared of charges brought against them since the list was prepared.

The Prosecution of Capone.

In regard to the prosecution of Al Capone the commission in its letter says:

"That has been the most significant activity of all because of his notoriety and almost mythical position as a master criminal, immune from prosecution or punishment.

"That this has been completely dispelled and that the confidence of a doubtful public has been revived in the courts has been demonstrated by the action of Judge James H. Wilkerson in his ruling in this case. It is serious to the world that the United States courts are as independent as they were intended to be by framers of the constitution. It is an encouragement to those who have been fighting the battle for years against organized crime."

JUDGE FISHER GETS KICK OUT OF SCOTLAND YARD

Marvels at Efficiency on London Visit.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—The party of Illinois legislators and judges, who are on a trip through Europe, took a look at London tonight and decided they had learned enough here. They will leave for Amsterdam tomorrow.

JUDGE HARRY M. FISHER.

The party including 10 members of the Illinois commission of prisons, probation and parole, led by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, State Senator Richard J. Barr, and Judges Harry M. Fisher and Denis E. Sullivan of Chicago, are visiting England, Holland, Germany, France and possibly Italy to study how European courts and prisons deal with the criminals.

The final day of work in London was spent in conference with Judge William C. Hall, a London police magistrate.

The Illinoisians said they have learned much of value in England. Judge Fisher was extremely candid in discussing the police system of the United States and England.

"Our police force compared with Scotland Yard is primitive," he said. "The efficiency of Scotland Yard and the protection it affords an individual coming under their charge is something foreign to our police. There is no incarceration beyond 10 o'clock of the morning after an arrest. There is no finger printing without the consent of the individual and, what is more, there is no third degree."

"The results of our studies will certainly appear in the Illinois penal code as sure as there will be rain in London tomorrow," Lieut. Gov. Sterling declared. "We have learned a lot. We landed eight days ago and have done nothing but interview officials and walk through prisons. We have not even been to a movie since we landed. We hope the people at home do not think we are junketing."

'COMRADE' SHAW AND LADY ASTOR TO LAUD THE RUSSIAN SOVIETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, July 31.—"I expect to be paid royally for my impressions about the soviets," smilingly replied George Bernard Shaw this evening on arriving at the Warsaw terminal from his visit to Russia when asked for an interview.

"Soviet Russia is a positive success and the five year plan is its greatest achievement," he continued. "To save themselves other countries must follow this remarkable example of human effort. Unlike the western politicians, who are working for their own benefit, the Russian rulers are working for the people and for their country. I am a confirmed communist, as I was before Lenin, and even more so after seeing communist Russia. Talk of forced labor in Russia is rubbish. There is more slavery in other countries. Collectivisation is a splendid success. It is regrettable that world capitalism unwisely did not cooperate previously toward the stabilization of revolution. Joseph Stalin is a most honest and able man. There is no starvation in Russia and the workmen are more happy than in other countries."

Lady Astor, who is traveling with Shaw's party, was greatly impressed with Russia, of which she remarked: "It was the most wonderful experiment that ever existed. If even only half a success, Russia will be the happiest country."

Lady Astor seemed embittered towards France and Poland's armaments, and said she was positive that Russia had no intention to attack her neighbors. She said other political difficulties could be solved by the internationalization of the existing corridors.

Three More Men Are Victims of New Yorks Gang Guns

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Another gangster "execution squad" shot up another Harlem street this afternoon, leaving two bullet-riddled men on the scene of action. Both are expected to die.

Earlier in the day a Brooklyn manufacturer was shot to death by gunmen in front of his home.

This afternoon's outbreak occurred in 103d street near 2d avenue, a few blocks from the scene of last Tuesday's shooting, in which five children were wounded, one mortally, by leaden slugs fired from a gangster squad in a passing automobile.

The victims were Joseph Gazzola, 27, reputed to be a policy game operator, and Frank Christofo, 24, both residents of the Harlem section.

Gazzola had just turned into the block in his roadster late this afternoon when four men ran out from a doorway and made for him.

Speeds Away in Vain.

Gazzalo put on all speed, but he was too late. One of the men leaped to the running board of the machine and emptied his pistol into Gazzola's body. Meanwhile the other three men were running along abreast of the car, firing at the driver as he gradually slumped down into the seat.

A bullet from some one of the guns felled Christofo, a passerby, as he walked along the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street, and others shattered numerous windows nearby.

As the smoke from their fusillade rolled up four gunmen darted into convenient hallways and escaped.

The shooting was the second gang outbreak of the day, the first occurring in Brooklyn when a manufacturer was shot to death as he stood in the driveway of his home on Ocean parkway.

Police Carry Shotguns.

Aroused by the growing brazenry of the gangs, Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney issued orders for a day and night shotgun police patrol of the entire city. Sixteen automobiles loaded with detectives, each carrying shotguns as a part of their armament, will cruise the streets twenty-four hours a day on the lookout for the mobsters.

"They want force," the commissioner said in announcing his order. "They can have it. We will meet force with force and guns with guns. Each car will carry three detectives and one chauffeur instead of one detective, as has been the case with the usual patrols from midnight until 6 a. m. They will be on duty day and night."

Four Youths Arrested.

Meanwhile four youths in a green sedan had been picked up in Third avenue near the East 107th street block, where the gunmen had sprayed the children with shotgun and pistol bullets on Tuesday. These youths were questioned for several hours and the police admitted that what they said was important. No details were given out.

The New York Daily News today posted a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the children killers, raising the total rewards to $30,000.

The victims of today's "execution" in Brooklyn was Guido Ferreri, 26 years old. He was about to enter his car at Avenue P and Ocean parkway at about 8 o'clock when a sedan going in the direction of Coney Island and carrying three men pulled over. There was a roar of guns and Ferreri fell, while the murder car flashed away. Ferreri died an hour later with fourteen bullets in his body.

Labor Trouble Offers Clew.

Ferreri, who was in partnership with his brother, John, in clothing plants in Brooklyn and Plainfield, N. J., was talking with his next door neighbor, Frank Fahrenhoff, about clipping hedges when the small sedan containing the three guerrillas opened fire. Fahrenhoff was not hurt.

They had had some trouble for the last few weeks, the surviving partner said, with clothing workers in their plant in Plainfield, which is not unionized. This statement gave the police a definite clew and men were sent to Plainfield.

UNIONS BLOCK BUILDING WORK IN LAKE COUNTY

Public and private construction work in Lake county was at a standstill yesterday as a result of a campaign by unions against the lowering of wage scales and the importing of outside labor.

More than 250 union men in small groups swept through the county, halting the construction of homes in Barrington, Libertyville, Mundelein, and Waukegan. At Bannockburn, west of Deerfield, fifteen nonunion men working on the village school were forced to lay down their tools. Riot calls were turned into the sheriff's office at Waukegan, and community police headquarters, but no action was taken because of the absence of violence.

On Thursday a crew of men employed on route 173, between Antioch and Zion, quit work at the behest of labor agents. Earlier another group working on the same highway near Hickory Corners also ceased work. Both jobs are state improvements. It is understood an agreement has been reached for the resumption of work on the stretch near Zion.

Two other public construction jobs halted are in Highland Park and North Chicago, where sewage disposal plants are being built.

FREE CAPTIVE AFTER QUIZ ON ORR SLAYING

Joe Fiore, who was held for questioning after the murder last Sunday of Ely H. Orr, secretary-treasurer of the newspaper wagon drivers' union, was ordered released yesterday when a writ of habeas corpus was asked in his behalf. A witness to the slaying said Fiore was not one of the three killers.

Chief of Detectives John Norton was still seeking evidence yesterday against Michael Mattola, William Archer and Roy Anderson, who were in possession of two machine guns and two shotguns when they were arrested early in the week. Their pictures were given to the Illinois Bankers' association to have them circulated among bankers of the state to see if they can be identified as bank robbers.

HELD IN 96 BURGLARIES.

George Morrow, 17 years old, 1963 Belle Plaine avenue, was held to the grand jury in $35,000 bonds by Judge William Brooks yesterday after he had confessed 26 burglaries.

AUTO TOLL SHOWS INCREASE OF 99 OVER 1930 COUNT

The Cook county auto toll of 655 for the first seven months of 1931 shows an increase of 99 over the 556 deaths during the first seven months of 1930. The 97 deaths recorded during July represent an increase of five over the number during July of 1930.

Martin T. Frobish, 35 years old, 4102 Potomac avenue, an accountant, was recommended held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury. Mathew C. Downs, 37 years old, 308 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, was fatally injured earlier in the day when his auto collided with that of Frobish.

Herbert Blackman, 45 years old, 7456 South Shore drive, a salesman, was fatally injured when his sedan collided with another car at 81st street and Crandon avenue. He died in the South Shore hospital. Mrs. E. L. Belt, 610 West 103d place, the other driver, was not held.

Leo Sowa, 43 years old, 1739 West Erie street, a laborer, died in the county hospital from injuries received on Thursday when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at Ashland avenue and Ohio street.

Frank Cerveny, 24 years old, 5242 South Lincoln street, a pressman, was sentenced to four months in the house of correction by Judge Francis Borelli in the Speeders' court for leaving the scene of an accident.

Jailed After He Takes Taxicab for a Joyride

Godfrey L. Canty, 35 years old superintendent of the Herliky Mid-Continent Construction company, 20 North Wacker drive, was arrested yesterday while trying to act as chauffeur for his companion, Mrs. Florence Burgess, 25 years old, 528 Diversey parkway, in a taxicab he had taken from Richard Montelbano, 2134 West Huron street. Canty, who is married and lives at 7715 South Shore drive, was captured by Policeman John Garrett and former Municipal Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen, who saw Canty take the cab. Canty was held in $200 bond for arraignment in the Town Hall court today on a charge of driving while intoxicated. His companion was released.

SUDDEN FLOOD SWEEPS FIVE TO DEATH IN CREEK

Covington, Ky., July 31.—(AP)—Five persons, three children and two women, were drowned tonight when a six foot wall of water swept down Banklick creek, eight miles south of here, while they were bathing and carried them away.

The dead: Mrs. Iola Lucas, 27, and her two children, Ruth and James, seven year old twins; Mrs. Martha Miller, 31, and Mary Lou Harvey, 5. All lived in Latonia.

The party had gone to the creek to escape the heat, and all were in swimming except Charles Lucas, a Louisville and Nashville railroad fireman. He saw the wall of water rushing down on his family and ran into the creek to save them. His wife took hold of one of his hands, while he held a floating log with the other. Ruth Lucas grasped her mother's hand and James held on to his sister's while Lucas tried to pull them to safety.

The strong current, caused by heavy rains amounting almost to a cloudburst, swept Mrs. Lucas and the children away. Lucas saved himself by clinging to the log.

Mrs. Miller and Mary Lou Harvey, granddaughter of Rodman Russell, deputy state inspector of transportation, were swept away before aid could reach them.

Miss Blanche Smart, 42, Covington, and Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Darr and their two year old son, Buddy, also were caught in the current, but saved themselves.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

BIGAMIST PERRY DENIES HE SLEW HIS THIRD BRIDE

Hints He Is Irresistible to Women.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eagle River, Wis., July 31.—[Special.]—As rain lashed the sides of the Vilas county courthouse George W. E. Perry, marrying Milwaukee brakeman, mounted the witness stand, in a surprise defense move to give a dramatic denial of the charge against him for the murder of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett July 6, 1930, on their honeymoon after a bigamous marriage in Chicago.

Perry wept as he described his farewell with Mrs. Hackett on the day he is accused of murdering her. He declared they parted when she discovered he was already married and that he never saw her after winning her grudging consent to a farewell kiss. For more than two hours he calmly told of his adventures with women, casually confessing to an eighth bigamous marriage, of which the state had no knowledge.

Courtroom Is Jammed.

Frequently the storm drowned out his tale, delivered in an even monotone. Spectators strained to catch every word. Word that Perry was on the stand was broadcast through the town and many flocked to jam an already crowded courtroom. Some stood in the hallway and on the stairs in the hope of catching portions of his testimony.

Perry was fully aware of the drama about him. In his story he mimicked conversations with his many wives, smiling as his testimony drew laughter. As he seated himself he said his only legal wife is Mrs. Mary Nickels Perry of Milwaukee, by whom he had five children, of whom three survived. This wife wept as he told his story.

Tells of Resort Visit.

He told of visiting at a resort owned by Houston W. Parker at Crawling Stone lake in June, 1929, with a friend, John Murphy. Ten miles from this resort the body of Mrs. Hackett was found along a swamp road bordering the Lac du Flambeau reservation of the Chippewa tribe Oct. 1, 1930. He was captured last May after a search of eight months.

After the visit with Murphy, Perry said he returned to the former's home in Harrisburg, Ill., where he met Elizabeth Morrison, who was "very friendly and very much in love with me."

"I got tired of her and tried to get rid of her by telling her I was going to Milwaukee to get money for a trip to Buenos Aires," he said. "She wouldn't hear of it and wanted to give me money for the trip. She gave me $300.

Finds Himself Married.

"Well, one day we went for a little drive before I was to go. We went to a town I didn't know, and the first thing I knew she took me into a building and asked where to get a license, and the first thing I knew we were married. I left for South America in a few days."

Perry told of his travels, mentioning frequent gifts of money from Mrs. Morrison. Ultimately he arrived at New York bound for Montreal, but was dissuaded from this intended visit by a chance acquaintance, Lawrence Thrasher, who took him to Cleveland and introduced him to Mrs. Kathryn Gebhardt, whom he married after a month's courtship.

"I don't remember how the marriage came about," he said, "but I told her her I had no money. She said that was all right, she was a dress designer and would take care of that. The business got bad and she got a little upset. Well, I liked her a lot so I told her I had an aunt and uncle in Chicago and would visit them until things got better."

Receives 500 Replies.

Perry said he came to Chicago and met Mrs. Hackett through a blind ad offering himself as a chauffeur companion. He stated he received 500 replies and selected Mrs. Hackett because he liked her name. He set the date as June 13, stating he took a trial ride with Mrs. Hackett and offered her references. He also told of telling her he had a rich aunt in San Francisco who would give him $2,000 if he wanted it. Mrs. Hackett told him she had a little money, he said.

"Well, during the ride she said, 'Why don't you get married?' I said, 'I'm waiting for the right woman. Why don't you?' She said, 'I'm waiting for the right man.' So I said, 'What about me?' And the first thing I knew we were married."

Their Honeymoon "Ideal."

Perry told of persuading her to go to the Parkers for a honeymoon and vacation. He said their honeymoon was ideal, describing "good times" in dancing and tramping through woods. On these tramps he carried Parker's 22 caliber rifle to shoot some animal and get a muff for Cora Belle, he testified.

Later, Perry said, he confessed that he was married. He wept when he testified his bride declared:

"'I'm in an awful jam. There you are married and got a wife and I'm married and haven't got a husband. I'll forgive you because I think it's as much my fault as yours—I should have looked up those recommendations.'"

Perry wept again when he said that his bride left him after a farewell kiss and that he never saw her again.

Tells of Other Marriages.

The accused slayer then said he returned to Mrs. Gebhardt and left her to marry Lida Downey Ed Dorado, Ill., at Carmi; Doro. Davis at Blytheville, Ark.; Harriet Milligan at Belleville, Ill., and Anna Guiterriez. From each he borrowed money. The state had not known previously of his marriage to Mrs. Davis.

Among the state witnesses was Mrs. Michael Dever, wife of a retired Chicago police sergeant, who said she saw Perry leaving the swamp road with a rifle at the time of the murder.

Perry will complete his story tomorrow and then face cross-examination. Judge Davison will hold a special afternoon session to hear arguments, after which the case will go to the jury.

FOUND IN LAKE

Picture, placed in bottle, picked up while floating near Navy pier. Words scribbled on back hinted at suicide.

A note scribbled on the back of a snapshot of a young woman, purporting to be the last message of a suicide, was found yesterday by four boys swimming in the lake near Navy pier. The note was sealed in a bottle which they found bobbing on the waves. It said: "I cannot live under present conditions. Farewell. Chicago, 7-28-31." The boys, Stanley Zych, 2102 North Damen avenue; Joseph Chalupnick, 1432 Dickson street; Frank Brolezek, 1535 Haddon avenue, and Zigy Pawlowski, 1301 Polk street, turned the picture over to Lieut. James Devereux at the Racine avenue police station.

BRITISH ECONOMY COMMITTEE URGES DOLE REDUCTION

"Must Cut Expense or Raise Taxes."

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—Warning that the only alternative is a big increase in the burden on the British taxpayers, which is already the heaviest in the world, the government economies committee, headed by Sir George May, issued its report today, recommending drastic cuts in expenses, including a 20 per cent decrease in dole benefits, cuts in the police and army salary scale, and a curtailment in a number of branches of public improvements.

Even after paring down these expenses to the lowest possible level, the committee said, a slight increase in taxes will be necessary to cover the budget deficit of $600,000,000 which is expected next year. By including even the most undesirable cuts in expense, in a desperate effort to balance the budget, the committee has been able to recommend a saving of approximately $475,000,000.

Cabinet Committee Named.

The report has not been exposed to the criticism of the British parliament, which adjourned for a holiday today, but Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald announced the appointment of a cabinet committee, consisting of himself, Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer; Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary; J. H. Thomas, secretary of the dominions, and William Graham, president of the board of trade, to study the recommendations during the holiday.

A cut in dole benefits is a measure which would be most widely felt, as it makes up the biggest part of the recommended saving. This cut will save more than $330,000,000. The corollary to the cut is to be an increase in weekly contributions of workers and employers to the state. In the case of male workers this would amount to 20 cents a week.

The committee recommended that teachers' salaries be cut 20 per cent and police 12½ per cent. It also called for a wholesale cut in the fighting services, to save almost $30,000,000, with the payment of officers' pensions to be put on a revised scale.

The cutting of the road fund and the postponing of scores of improvements would save almost $40,000,000, the committee said, and a reduction in expenditures on agricultural research would save another $2,500,000. A cut in technical research for military purposes would mean the saving of a further $1,500,000.

Would Close Market Board.

Through the abolition of the empire marketing board, $2,000,000 would be saved, and $5,000,000 would be trimmed off the budget through a cut in the payments to doctors under the national health insurance act. A further $2,300,000 would be saved by reducing the percentage of radio license revenue which is now given to a British broadcasting corporation.

In a prelude to the report, the committee said that the present situation is partly due to the tendency of office seekers who make lavish promises without considering the economic state o fthe country.

Sir George May, in a letter to Mr. Snowden, recommends that the airship R-100 be immediately sold or dismantled and that the expenditure on airships for the current year be restricted to $250,000, with the expenditure in future years limited to $100,000.

Ships That Pass in River Tie Up Traffic in Streets

Crowds of pedestrians and lines of automobiles waited for twenty minutes yesterday at the Clark and Dearborn street bridges which were held open for twenty minutes while two boats jockeyed to pass each other in the river. The boats were the Sinaloa of Detroit, a hudge dredge towed by two tugs, and the Delwaric, a freighter owned by the Canada Atlantic Transit company.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND.

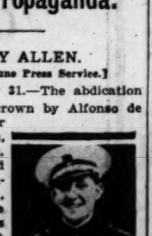
The body of Mrs. Stella Sommers, 38 years old, 2956 Emerald avenue, who leaped into the south branch of the river from the Halsted street bridge Tuesday, was recovered yesterday from the drainage canal at Summit.

SPANISH NOBLES IN DRIVE TO PUT JUAN ON THRONE

Take Up a Collection to Spread Propaganda.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, July 31.—The abdication of the Spanish crown by Alfonso de Bourbon in favor of his third son, Prince Don Juan, which was signed last week in Fontainebleau, France, where the royal family lives in exile, will not be publicly announced until the constituent assembly endows the republic with a constitution, according to information from the best authority today.



PRINCE DON JUAN.

In the meantime the grandees, who thought their cause was lost, are organizing to make the most of their new candidate for the throne.

See Monarchist Campaign.

Despite denials from Paris and London, the report of the abdication has been accepted in well informed circles. Minister of State Alejandro Lerroux said in the corridors of the parliament building today that he did not know the details, but believed they were true. By some the abdication is taken seriously as a monarchist movement, such as it is, now that the monarchists have a leader. How thoroughly Alfonso was discredited for all purposes is just now being realized by the Spanish aristocracy.

This aristocracy, which neither in the death agony of the monarchy or before, was of much help to the rulers has organized to protect its interests and, when the time is ripe, to work for its restoration.

Thirty-eight of Spain's greatest nobles, most of them grandees, met in Paris two weeks ago at the Hotel Meurice. They were assembled by the duke of Alba, who descends from the Stuarts, and Marquis Santa Cruz, chief of the most potent of those grandees known popularly as the "twelve apostles," and brother of the duke of Miranda, Alfonso's major domo.

Compare Their Impressions.

Some days before, at Neuilly, Spanish aristocratic exiles compared their impressions of the republican show and decided their situation was not hopeless.

The duke of Alba and the duke of Santa Cruz got them together to see what might be done. Speaking in Alfonso's name, the duke of Alba said that their sovereign was not only extremely tired, but was resolutely determined to stay apart from Spanish affairs and thus he desired that none of his nobles seek an audience with him.

And once the constitution is settled as to the matter of a king, Alba informed his brother grandees that he would make an announcement of "transcendental importance," meaning the abdication in favor of Juan.

Take Up Collection.

The nobles thereupon agreed to organize "to defend our interests and public order" and took up a collection of 100,000 pesetas from each the greater grandees and appointed a committee to collect 5,000,000 pesetas for propaganda purposes by the next meeting in October. Francisco Aritio and Pablo Garnica were named to look after the money and Manuel Gonzales Hontorio was named political director.

Although the nobles are preparing to launch a campaign ostensibly only to protect their property interests and what not, their ultimate purpose is to boost Juan's candidacy. The greatest pessimists as to the capacity of Spanish people governing themselves have always been the aristocrats and now they are convinced that this republic, like that of 1873, will rapidly go to pieces.

It was on the persuasion of the party of great grandees that the pretender to the throne, old Don Jaime, abdicated in favor of Prince Juan. And now to cement a reconciliation between the two branches of the Bourbon family the marriage of young Juan to a sister of Infante Caserta de Bourbon is being promoted, it is stated. The Madrid Heraldo last night carried a yarn that the young claimant to the throne is in love with Kyra, daughter of Grand Duke Cyril of Russia.

LEWIS SAYS HE WOULDN'T BE A VICE PRESIDENT

Boston, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois today eliminated himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Vice President in 1932.

In a discussion of politics prior to his departure for Europe aboard the liner Vulcania, Senator Lewis said he wanted to deny reports that he would accept second place on a national ticket headed by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. Lewis said that regardless of who was nominated for the presidency by the Democrats, he would not be a candidate for Vice President.

SEVEN CENT GAS TAX IN FLORIDA TO RUN 2 YEARS

Tallahassee, Fla., July 31.—(AP)—Beginning tomorrow and until July 1, 1933, Florida will levy a tax of seven cents a gallon on all gasoline sold in the state.

It will be the highest state tax on gasoline anywhere in the United States.

The seven cent levy, estimated to provide $2,350,000 a year in new revenue for the general treasury, was passed by the recent extraordinary session of the Florida state legislature. It will remain in effect only two years.

Three of the seven cents will go to the state road department, three to counties, and one cent to the general treasury.

Here Are Four Ways to Whet Detective Skill

Ranging from Paris to Good Old Cape Cod.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

A SURPRISING number of people, from college presidents to college freshmen, not to mention brokers, bankers, stenographers and housewives, find engrossing entertainment in good mystery stories, so for their delectation the four following new thrillers are listed. They are:

"The Three Fishers," by Francis Beeding [Little Brown]; "Danger Calling," by Patricia Wentworth [Lippincott]; "The Cape Cod Mystery," by Phoebe Atwood Taylor [Bobbs Merrill]. "Murder on Cape Cod," by Frank Shay [Macaulay].

PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR.

The first two remind one a little of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novels of international intrigue. They both have to do with a master crook and his gigantic schemes, and in each one impersonation plays an exciting part. To those of you who have read some of the other books of Francis Beeding the character of Francis Wyndham, the clever criminal with whom Col. Granby of the British secret service has fought so often, is a familiar figure. He is always a jump ahead of his pursuers; his agile brain is forever outwitting the hounds of justice, and, like a cat, he seems to have nine lives.

In "The Three Fishers" Wyndham is scheming with Albert Wertheim, influential French editor, and Madame R. Regnier to line his pockets with gold by embrolling France and Germany in another war. How is that for a neat little plot of some dimensions? Of course, the British secret service scents trouble in the wind and, having lost several good agents in a vain endeavor to discover what Wyndham is up to, it engages young Ronald Briercliffe, recently cashiered from the Guards, and fairly thrusts the job on him.

It happens, fortunately, that Ronald could speak French and German fluently, so he was not entirely unequipped for his dangerous mission. He is given another name, a disguise, and sent to Paris to get information about Wyndham. Mortimer, his immediate predecessor, had been found hanging from a tree in the Bois, several day before. And the fellow before him had vanished into thin air. Cheerful outlook, what?

In the course of his adventures Ronald is captured and held in a subterranean prison which, oddly enough, happens to be under the floors of a French night club. His escape is thrilling. But that isn't all, by any means. His most exciting thrust at the arch crook comes at the very end of the story, after the great impersonation in the French house of deputies. For details, see "The Three Fishers."

"Danger Calling" is a first rate thriller. A point in its favor [and one often missing from otherwise successful mysteries] is its humor. From the very beginning, when the funny old lady enters the coach at Guildford and makes a nuisance of herself with her pet dog, straight through there are glints of comedy that are most amusing. This is true, also, of the book by Mr. Beeding.

Lindsay Trevor, a young Englishman, is told to die for his country, but not in a sensational way. Although the papers broadcast his tragic death, he's very much alive and, with dyed hair and a new voice, is impersonating his cousin, who had accepted a post as secretary to a man of enormous wealth, named Restow. It is thought that Restow, like Wyndham in "The Three Fishers," is working to precipitate another war. Trevor's job is to hunt evidence against Restow, and in doing that he comes upon something most amazing and unforeseen.

There are touches of Conan Doyle in this tale. The episode of the snakes, for instance, brings to mind the time Sherlock Holmes in "The Adventure of the Speckled Band" arrived just in the nick. Remember how the long, horrid creature would crawl down the bellpull and kill whatever person was beneath it, and how good old Sherlock turned the tables and the snake on the wicked villain? Well, here are some first cousins of Mr. Doyle's snakes and they're every bit as poisonous and active, too.

The bad man in "Danger Calling" is the "Vulture" and his record goes back to 1922. So shrewdly does he work that it is impossible to track him down, let alone arrest him. But wait till this brainy, quiet young Briton is on his trail! Watch things happen!

The last books in the list both have Cape Cod as their locale. This sandy stretch of New England coast, beloved by artists, writers, and "summer people," must be getting dangerous.

Phoebe Atwood Taylor knows every inch of this territory. She says her ancestors sat on the cape from 1620 and fished, and some just sat. This is her first novel and she flings it off with a laugh and a great deal of skill. Her style is delightful, light, witty, and vivacious, and even murder casts no particular gloom over the scene. Everybody in the story seems alive, from Miss Prudence Whitsby and her niece, Betsey, to Asey Mayo, a native of the cape and a self-appointed detective.

When Ginger, the cat, is found lapping oil from a sardine tin next the murdered body of Dale Sanborn, the writer, suspicion falls on Bill Porter, John Kurth, and several others. You're kept guessing until the very end and then it is with a shock that you realize that one of the most harmless characters in the whole story did the dirty work. Such is life in the fiction world.

Frank Shay is an old hand at writing detective stories and "Murder on Cape Cod" is clever, although it lacks the spontaneity and freshness of Miss Taylor's book. It hews more to the beaten line than hers does. It's all about Elkanah Snow, a dour Yankee who was strangled to death in his home, his huge dog tied to the ring on the wall apparently being the only witness.

Mr. Shay has some fun with the local constabulary and wins many laughs at their expense. Among the suspects are a religious fanatic, a disowned brother, a young wife who was afraid of her husband, the girl's father, her lover, and a friend who swore to deliver her from the old man. Even George Holt, newspaper man, became a suspect after he pushed his nose too far into the case.

For light summer reading these four mysteries are recommended. They'll take your mind off the weather.

African Boy's Story Is Told for Children

Katherine Seabrook Is Its Author.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"Gao of the Ivory Coast," by Katherine Seabrook (Coward McCann).

"Sky Caravan," by Covington Clarke (Reilly & Lee).

"Black Wolf Mystery," by Robert Diven (Century).

"Alice and Thomas and Jane," by Enid Bagnold (Knopf).

"Johnny Penguin," by Dorothy and Marguerite Bryan (Doubleday Doran).

Young readers who have a flair for travel tales or for those depicting life under conditions quite different from those under which they themselves live will enjoy reading Katherine Seabrook's "Gao of the Ivory Coast," a story of primitive life in the jungles and villages of Africa.

Interest centers about Gao, a high caste native boy who drops from the sky, as it were, into the midst of the Seabrook family, and settles down to make himself quite at home. Although at first not quite certain as to his intentions or his usefulness, they accepted him and soon found that they had acquired a valuable addition to their comfort, for he proved to be a willing and helpful worker in many capacities.

After serving as kitchen helper, houseboy, and personal attendant, and making for himself a place in the affections of the family, he is finally restored to his rightful place as a chief's son and returns to his tribe. Although the plot development is negligible, the book will appeal to many young folks because of its picture of jungle life, of the native homes and markets, and description of the dances and ceremonials which play so large a part in that life. Description of the birds and animals of the jungle also adds to the interest of the book. The author is the wife of William B. Seabrook, a student of primitive religions who spent some time studying and living among these people of the Ivory coast, and she has succeeded very well not only in selecting her items of interest but in presenting them for young folks.

Readers who are interested primarily in plot and action in their stories will find "Sky Caravan" by Covington Clarke and "Black Wolf" by Robert Diven much to their tastes. The first is a mystery aviation story woven about a mystery, a mummy, and a curse, and having for its heroes two American aviators and a scientist. There is a thrilling flight over the desert in pursuit of murderers, and finally the solution of the mystery. The second is also a mystery tale with an outcast Indian and two wolves furnishing the material for the story. The scene is laid in Alaska, and the value of the story lies in its description of the country and its wholesome outdoor setting. Neither story is above the average, but both will be popular with mystery lovers.

For the younger children [8-10 years old] Enid Bagnold's "Alice and Thomas and Jane" and "Johnny Penguin," by Dorothy and Marguerite Bryan, may be mentioned. The first is a story of three English children and their doings and escapades in a seashore village. The author, Lady Jones, wrote the stories for her own children at the seashore, and has used as her type the upper class English children whose lives are hedged about with servants and governesses.

"Johnny Penguin" is an attractive story picture book telling of a baby penguin and his first adventures into life, among which are his first bath in the icy water, his fun on a floating ice cake, and the wild chase he led the vicious sea leopard which tried to capture him. The simply told story, attractive pictures, and handy size make this a delightful book for the youngest reader.

POET MAKES MONEY AND SATIRE REACHES FOR PUBLIC LAURELS

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—A small work which is causing a good deal of private gossip at present in London, and may even be causing some searching of hearts, should not be overlooked by collectors. It is called "Poems," by Pinchbeck Lyre. The whole booklet contains only 22 pages, but they are pages full of paralyzing satire; for Mr. Lyre's "poems" are parodies, it is believed, of the work of a living poet who has committed the unpardonable sin of becoming commercially successful. The parodist is obviously a poet of exceptional gifts, and his verses show a skill and diabolical sense of the facilities and felicities of his victim [or possibly victims]. But who is the victim? And who is the parodist?

COMPTON MACKENZIE.
[Maull & Fox Photo.]

I recently heard this story about Compton Mackenzie. When he first appeared on the platform at Glasgow university in connection with his candidature for the rectorship, there was a great hubbub, during which Mr. Mackenzie stood at ease, waiting for the row to stop. One undergraduate shouted from the back of the hall: "Take your hands oot ye're pockets, Mackenzie!" To which Mr. Mackenzie at once replied, in allusion to the proverbial Scottish love of money: "I will so; but not while I'm in Glasgow!" The retort gave great pleasure to the audience, who proceeded to give Mr. Mackenzie a cordial hearing.

Berlin Banker's Book Tells "The End of Reparations"

"The End of Reparations" is the prophetic title of a timely book by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, published by Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith. Dr. Schacht, former president of the German Reichsbank, visited this country six months ago to lecture and to discuss with economists and bankers the approaching crisis in Germany. The book is a warning of the disastrous effects of reparations in Germany and of international war debts throughout the world, which he believes to be one of the major causes of the present depression.

Dr. Schacht was chief of the German delegation which helped draw up the Young plan and is the leader of a significant body of political opinion in Germany. The book is primarily addressed to American public opinion, though it has been published in Germany, and will appear in England, France, and other countries. The translation is by Lewis Gannett of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Joseph C. Lincoln's Yarns Gathered Into Omnibus

An omnibus volume of Joseph C. Lincoln stories has just been published by Coward-McCann under the title, "All Alongshore." Although Lincoln has been writing for thirty years, this is only the second volume of short stories he has published. It is the only book from his pen that will appear this year. It contains more than 500 pages, 18 stories of the salty, whimsical, bluff Cape Cod characters that he has made famous.

FANCY VINTAGES MOCK AT BEER, A LEGAL PARIAH

"Juice" Trade Enlivened by Competition.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

California vintners now appear engaged in strong competition in the Chicago market for homemade wines, legalized by Volsteadism in their state of original sin as "grape concentrates." Two rival concerns, working opposite sides of the street, as it were, in recent weeks have been bombarding prospective customers with literature informing them how to build up a good cellar, legalized, of "types" from claret to champagne. Some of it sounds like an expurgated ode to Bacchus with the word "juice" substituted for "wine," and the result has been a flock of letters to THE TRIBUNE.

Why Is Beer an Outcast?

Why, ask these letters, is it a crime for a traveling nurse to assist nature on 1 per cent home brew, and not a crime for him to travel around and supervise nature in the home making of wine of 15 to 20 per cent alcoholic potency? The letters argue that the considerations of a journeyman artist, making his rounds from kitchen to cellar, would popularize "Heimgemacht" and that what goes for grapes and wine might well go for barley and beer.

The California vineyards and their 10,000 growers now seem to be meeting strong eastern and midwest competition. Fruit Industries, Ltd., raised its price last month. Fruit Industries had for legal counsel Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions, who pointed to the inner significance of Sec. 29 of the Volstead act, permitting the use of wine grape juices in the home. Mrs. Willebrandt's client says it represents 65 per cent of the California grape industry.

Local dealers ascribe the price boost at a time when other commodities are falling, to the depression which may have reduced demand while overland has been going on just the same. Also local authorities declare the independents, whose prices "without service" are lower, are cutting in more on Fruit Industries. Then, too, the grape growers in Michigan, Ohio, and New York seem to be getting better organized.

Mouth Watering Lists.

Meanwhile, local dealers report that Chicagoans in increasing numbers are holding up their home cellars with vintages. The advertising matter sent out by the rival juice men contains mouth watering lists.

It keeps within the law by talking of unfermented "juice" of wine grapes. But if the song without words between the lines is as good as it sounds it might perhaps remove one suspected reason why legislative commissions travel to Europe to study prisons or street cars or something, with two weeks' "intensive research" in Paris.

The modus operandi is set forth simply enough in the various leaflets. The purchaser buys a keg of unfermented juice, which is put in his kitchen, pantry, or cellar. A little gadget is attached to the bunghole to make sure the juice will not make a mistake and turn into vinegar.

For 60 days nature is permitted to perform the noble experiment inside the keg. Then the expert shows up, racks it off, and puts the contents into bottles. The description of this process is that the agent "reclaims" the keg and "transfers" the contents to bottles. The word "wine" is not mentioned. Hypothetically it has still lived up to the letter of Volstead as "grape juice."

Kick of Juice Is Kickless.

But actually, if nature has not properly performed its operation and the customer is dissatisfied, all he receives is to register a kick because the kick is lacking. Local agents refer his money is immediately refunded on the spot and the beverages are poured down the kitchen sink forthwith.

One booklet gives a list of varieties of unfermented juices of wine grapes that brings back memories of old days. Eight varieties of juice are listed.

"Table varieties—for successful dinners—[dry]:

"Very soft, light amber, French type sauterne.

"Excellent Rhine type riesling.

"Light red table claret.

"Rich, dark red burgundy.

"For other social occasions, the token of hospitality—[sweet]:

"Full bodied dark red Danish type port.

"Sweet golden old style Virginia Dare.

"Light amber, fine aroma'd muscatel.

"Sweet, light amber tokay."

Another booklet adds other grape types—Madeira, Malaga, Moselle, sherry, Rhine, and champagne.

And, as one leading dealer remarked: "If Volsteadism gave barley syrup the same break it gives grape concentrates, home brew would kill the beer racket gangs."

REPORT 100 ON HUNGER STRIKE AT STATEVILLE

One hundred convicts were reported to be on a hunger strike in cell house C at Stateville penitentiary yesterday in protest against being locked up while guards continue their search for weapons within the prison walls. Warden Henry C. Hill refused to confirm or deny the report.

Four sledge hammers and three scale ladders were found on Thursday as the guards concluded a general search of the building. Today they are to begin sifting sand, coal and gravel piles for knives and revolvers, believed to have been hidden by the convicts.

In order to avoid the possibility of large groups of prisoners congregating in the future, plans have been made to construct additional concrete walled enclosures within the main walls, each with a separate guard tower. The hunger strike is reported to have started when Warden Hill announced that regular prison privileges would not be allowed convicts and visitors would be barred until next Wednesday or Thursday.

CHIANG CLAIMS HIS TROOPS ROUT RED REBEL ARMY

Says China Is Freed of Communism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 31.—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, in a telegram from his headquarters at Nanchang, in the province of Kiangsi, tonight announced the capture of all communist headquarters in southern Kiangsi, thus virtually ending the long anti-Red campaign which has been bungled for several months by subordinate commanders until, when it reached a point where it menaced the government, Gen. Chiang took personal command of the troops.

Large numbers of Reds have been scattered and are roaming over the country, and many have fled to Kwangtung. Gen. Chiang stated that the ultimate solution to the Red problem depends on political measures and improvement of economic conditions, but that the Red military menace has been definitely ended.

To Move Against Shih Yu-shan.

Although Gen. Chiang's future plans are not known, it is reported on the best authority that he will return to Nanking tomorrow to give his personal attention to the military situation in the north. The general has stated that 200,000 troops will immediately be placed in the field to crush the rebellion of Gen. Shih Yu-shan, whom Gen. Chiang alleges is working in conjunction with the communists. In Gen. Chiang's statement tonight he designated the rebel Shih Yu-shan as a "scoundrel who had set all moral considerations at defiance and whom it is the right of every citizen to kill."

A government report from Nanking claims that Gen. Shih Yu-shan has been led into a trap south of Paotingfu, in the province of Chihli, due to his belief that Gen. Chang Chang's Manchurian troops were evacuating the Peiping district, and that a large number of rebels were killed and captured. The report says the remainder were forced to fall back and were immediately engaged by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's own troops, who had advanced north across the Yellow river into the province of Honan.

Shansi Troops Aid Chiang.

The Nanking report states that the Shansi province troops are now joining in the drive against Gen. Shih Yu-shan and predicts an early victory over the rebels.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's statement did not mention the Canton rebellion, which leads to the belief locally that the Canton rebellion is possibly at an end without any serious fighting having taken place.

WRIT ASKED TO FREE "TORTURE FARM" CAPTIVE

Habeas corpus proceedings were brought yesterday in Judge Harry B. Miller's court for Peter A. Cappetta, 43 years old, 1741 West 69th street, who was arrested Thursday night on a suspected "torture farm" at 187th street and Wolf road, near Orland. The writ was made returnable at 10 o'clock this morning, and it was stated at the detective bureau that by that hour some specific charge would be filed against Cappetta.

Cappetta and Russell Kelly, 16 years old, were seized on the farm after a roundup of eight youths, three of whom were captured with two machine guns and bomb material in a basement at 6737 South Paulina street.

Police said they believed the prisoners are members of a new south side beer gang. Several murders may be solved in those arrests, it was said.

Sent to Jail for Paying Friend to Take His Wife

John Los, 1836 Augusta street, who offered a friend $100 to take his wife off his hands, was sent to the Bridewell to serve out a $100 fine yesterday by Judge Edgar A. Jonas. The friend, Steve Lavinovich, 1822 West Chicago avenue, also went to jail to serve out a similar fine. The two men were charged with disorderly conduct by the wife, Mrs. Anna Los. She exhibited in court the written agreement to show that her husband already had paid $25 of the $100 to Lavinovich.

NEW GOLD HOME CORNER STONE IS LAID IN GOTHAM

U. S. Assay Building Will Cost $2,100,000.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The aroma of coffee and spices and the tang in the air of far away ports always present down at Old Slip on the bank of the East river is going to be replaced by the fumes of molten gold. The corner stone of the new Assay office, which next spring will replace the bomb scarred building on Wall street in which two and one-half billions of dollars worth of gold are stored at the present time, was laid today.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, carefully protecting his neat gray trousers from the red painted steel beams of the new structure, stooped just a trifle creakingly to smear cement with a silver trowel, while an audience of several hundred watched.

Dust on Floors Is Sold.

Everything connected with the Assay building has to do with gold. Even the dust on its floors and smoke in its smelting chimneys are gold flaked. The old adage that money makes money was exemplified this afternoon, for these are the circumstances under which the project for a new building progressed:

It was at the peak of the 1929 market that the government sold the present Assay office on Wall street to the builders of the giant Manhattan company building alongside of it for $6,501,000. Had the sale taken place six months later, after the market break, the price would have been more than a million dollars lower. The new building, much larger, will cost about $2,100,000. The land will cost $1,400,000. Total cost, $3,500,000.

Plan to Own Buildings.

Mr. Mills said it was the government's plan to own rather than lease its buildings throughout the country and that the United States would spend about 700 millions on its countrywide program and that 500 millions already had been definitely alloted to specific projects.

The new assay office will be five stories high and will be topped by a chimney which is to extend 200 feet above the ground. Its great steel vault in which the billions of bullion will rest will be built in the center of the structure, extending one story below and four above ground. The building will be about twice the size of the present one.

Move 2½ Billions.

The assay office staff will begin to move on March 1, 1932. The transfer of about 2 billion, 500 million of gold will be the largest task of its kind ever undertaken. The gold is in vaults embedded five stories below the street level and is mostly in bars which are heavy and difficult to handle. Although gold is constantly being received and disbursed at the assay office in amounts ranging up to hundreds of millions of dollars a year, this will be the first time the movement of such a large amount has been attempted in one operation.

Cermak to Sail Today for Mackinac Vacation

Mayor Cermak this afternoon will sail for Mackinac island on a vacation trip which will last for several days. The mayor will travel on a lake steamer to the resort, where he expects to board a private yacht for a series of short cruises. He will be accompanied by his son-in-law, Dr. Frank J. Jirka, and a small party of friends.

NATIONAL GUARD TROOPS WILL GO INTO CAMP TODAY

Nearly 10,000 men were mobilized yesterday as the Illinois National Guard prepared to go into its annual summer encampment today. The infantry will be trained at Camp Grant, near Rockford. The artillery commands, numbering 2,000 men, will train at Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis. The encampment will be for fifteen days.

Cavalry, infantry, and artillery units totaling 1,900 men will take an oath of allegiance at 10:45 a. m. today at Fort Sheridan as part of the official ceremony opening the citizens' military training camp.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE NATIONAL DEFENSE ACT.

The impending drive against army appropriations, now clearly foreshadowed, emphasizes the importance of a restudy of the national defense act of 1920. The friends of the army do not want to enter the struggle for adequate preparation with any reservations. They do not want to appeal for support of an institution which falls short of attainable goals.

Eleven years and more have elapsed since the act was passed, and though it has undergone amendment it has not been greatly altered in essentials. The act was intended, so it was said, to make the next effort to put an army in the field less difficult and less costly in men, money, and time. Indeed, it was that objective which won widespread support for the new army law.

A reading of the act today discloses other purposes which were then not so apparent. We can now see that it was intended, among other things, to provide continued rank for officers who served in the world war. As many as possible of them were retained in the grades which they held in the war; and for the officers who were demoted, provision was made for as slight a loss of rank as was considered feasible. This effort is easily justified. The officers who fought in the war deserved permanent recognition; and there is no doubt that to have returned them all to the ranks which they held when war was declared would have injured the army's morale seriously.

Another objective is less easily justified. The national defense act is an attempt to freeze into permanent form the military convictions held by the older soldiers at the war's end. These officers had little direct contact with the enemy and what they wrote into the act is less the ripe fruit of a knowledge of modern warfare than the product of their pre-war military studies. Now, those studies were based upon the Franco-German war of 1870. The ideas of army organization and tactics which are contained in the act came from Von Moltke rather than from American experience in the cantonments and on the western front.

The act seeks to correct the more glaring defects in our traditional peace-time military training, but it does not attack the defects in army organization exposed in the heat of battle in 1917 and 1918. Those defects, it should be noted, derived to no small extent from the fact that the aged generals and the staff officers who controlled the movement of troops seldom were at the front and therefore knew little of what their orders really meant. A sound reorganization of the army, taking account of the experience of the last war, would not abolish the general staff but it assuredly would deflate it and force the staff, especially in time of war, to know more about what it was commanding other men to do. When the world war soldiers pass on, the staff will be bureaucracy, basing its position solely upon classroom ability, and so firmly established as to hold its place in war against any claims of ability developed and demonstrated in battle. The bureaucrat will stand above the soldier.

The old law dividing the service into airtight compartments remains, although nine out of ten generals in the last war when called upon to command and plan for all arms showed themselves ignorant of all except their own. Obviously, during a lifetime of service an officer has time to serve in and get at least a peace-time knowledge of every branch and phase of the military establishment. He should be allowed, even compelled, to do so.

The curious fact emerges that, though we assisted in the defeat of the German army, the German army system dictated our military policy. It is not a system well adapted to present day needs or the American temperament. The law needs restudy.

HOW OLD IS FIFTY?

The story of Thomas M. Howell's corn operations—he caught the shorts for July delivery—contained a biographical paragraph. He is a native of Iowa and came into Chicago brokerage from Lincoln. The reporter added: "He is only forty-nine years old." In the same issue of The Tribune Mr. Henning, writing of Franklin Roosevelt as candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, remarked of him "he is only forty-nine." To many post-meridian citizens the adverb seems well chosen. It is happy and full of merit. Impressions of age, however, are variable. Not long ago a news item dealt with the misfortunes of a "poor old man of fifty." He had fallen among thieves on the road. There was another reference to an ancient gaffer of fifty-four whose venerable antiquity was supposed to add to the pathos of his case.

It is improbable that age falls between forty-nine and fifty like early autumn upon the shag bark hickory which in late August drops its leaves in the first cool drizzle smelling of decay. Between "only forty-nine" and a venerable person of fifty there is a gap inexplicable in time.

The explanation must lie somewhere between the viewpoint of the person describing the condition and the activities of the subject. A bull corn broker stepping high, wide and handsome may be young to any age at any age, but to a young bucko whose mother-in-law is still a prospect fifty is rheumatically groping through the shadows and fumbling for the lock on the last gate. If a man of fifty falls into the river or is slugged by jack rollers he is old man Time himself come upon misfortune, but a man of forty-nine pondering how to be wet enough to suit Al Smith and his friend Raskob and dry enough to please Carter Glass and Joe Robinson is a mere infant pitting his inexperience against the wiles of the world.

Age ridden old hulks of thirty-four have been found glassy eyed in the prize ring wondering where all the meteors were coming from, and no one ever said that a polo player was only forty-nine or that an opera singer [soprano] was only forty-eight. A person may be young as a successful bank president and old as a fading baseball pitcher, old if he does not know where to find his next meal and young if the butler serves the wine with it. At fifty a man is old if he is riding the rods and in the prime of life if he is in his own high priced car. Then again even forty is Methuselah to a young ladies' seminary and may be young Adonis in the Reno divorce colony.

THE GANGWAYS OF NEW YORK.

New York hoods made a new record when they shot into crowds of children on the sidewalk and left a number of them dead and wounded without getting the man at whom they were shooting. In depravity that was easily the worst of gangland's crimes, but its brutality was a logical development from immunity. In a community of wrecked authority there is no reason why children in the way of gun fire should stop the execution of a gang sentence. At about the time Legs Diamond was beating his cr[illegible] courts.

New York has g[illegible] with unclouded title these days. Chicago has cleared up its situation in better fashion than many of its citizens dared hope a year ago. By private enterprise, judicial action, and political effort the city has been rid of gangsters who seemed to be safely entrenched in political protection. They are in or on their way to prison, their political associates are broken, their confidence is gone, and law has recovered its competence and self-respect. New York, state as well as city, hasn't made a good effort, and consequently is not in a good spot. Part of its judiciary has been disclosed as unfit, its political system has been seared by charges but not corrected, and its gangs have not even been intimidated.

Other cities, such as Boston and Detroit, are running in the same course and find that contemplation of Chicago's troubles was a waste of time better employed in self-inspection.

THE LAW'S DELAYS.

Contrary to the practice of most of the other states, a civil suit may be started in Illinois courts by the mere filing of a praecipe. The praecipe is a notification to the defendant that the plaintiff has something on his mind. In due time the praecipe is followed by a formal declaration of what the trouble is all about. Meanwhile, the mere filing of the praecipe has often served to embarrass reputable citizens. In unscrupulous hands the praecipe has been used for purposes of blackmail and it is a powerful weapon.

No doubt the procedure could be modified to great advantage, but in this connection it is well to remember that an evil of the same sort as the praecipe, but a much more pernicious one, is the long delay that ensues between the filing of civil suits and their trial. A delay of several years before suits are tried in the lower courts sometimes serves the purposes of blackmailers and, what is more important, it often leads to the sacrifice of rights. Jones may have a just claim to $10,000 from Brown, but if he cannot get judgment for a couple of years, he will be disposed to settle his claim rather than waste time in bringing suit. Brown knows how matters stand and, though he is in the wrong, he will have a powerful bargaining point on his side when negotiations for a settlement are undertaken.

To that extent, perhaps, the delays in court proceedings discourage some litigation, but the litigants who are discouraged are commonly those who have just claims. On the other hand, the litigant who has a doubtful case is encouraged to bring suit. He knows he will not have to present his evidence for a couple of years and meanwhile he has armed himself with a threat which may prove valuable in negotiating a settlement.

There is no good reason why more than three or four months should elapse between the filing of the ordinary lawsuit and its trial. Lawyers and judges have accepted present delays as inevitable if not desirable. They are neither. There are few lawyers and few judges who, in moments of candor, will not admit that delays and postponements are commonly granted on insufficient grounds. The conclusion is inevitable that our courts are inefficient by habit, if not, indeed, by choice.

Editorial of the Day

REVIVAL OF THE EATING HABIT.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

The reports on the moral, gastronomic and economic aspects of the restaurant business made by the managers of those local eating places which have experimented with the unlimited 60 cent menu, "what you want and all you want" at this fixed price, are not only illuminating sidelights on human nature, but possess implications of even more far reaching significance. Ninety per cent of their customers, the restaurateurs report, eat little or no more than they did when they were charged for each portion, while the remaining 10 per cent have achieved miracles of consumption and have had to be ministered to with bicarbonate of soda [included in the prix fixe] before they were able to leave the table. Tips in general averaged the same as before and most repeated orders were for desserts, pia la mode appearing an easy favorite.

But that aspect of the experiment which appears as a happy augury for contemporary civilization and which seems to promise a renaissance of a hearty custom of other years is the fact that under the 60 cent régime restaurant patrons are eating larger luncheons and are taking longer to do it. No longer do they wolf a lettuce sandwich of India paper proportions and wash it down with a bottle of colored pop while standing in a crowd of other lunchers suggestive of subway patrons at the rush hour. They now once more check their hats, select an attractively located table, tuck their napkins into their waistcoats and proceed to the business of eating according to the dictates of good sense and breeding, consuming a suitable number of well prepared dishes over an appropriate period of time.

AN INCAPABLE PEOPLE.

One of the most astounding demonstrations of the inability of a people to govern themselves has just come to light in a report found in the U. S. public health reports. The people concerned are the descendants of repatriated Afro-Americans.

As the result of the death of the American minister to Liberia and of other Americans and Europeans from yellow fever in Monrovia in 1929, our government joined with the British, French, and German governments in protesting against the fearful sanitary conditions of Monrovia.

It has been demonstrated that yellow fever is a luxury which no nation is rich enough to afford. Furthermore, every country in the western hemisphere except Brazil has demonstrated that yellow fever can be wiped out. New vaccines have been discovered, and the use of them in Brazil gives promise of adding that country to the list of those free from yellow fever.

All around Liberia the United States and European nations are demonstrating the presence of yellow fever and operating efforts to eradicate the disease from its last stronghold. With these facts before them the Liberians entered into an agreement to make Monrovia a decent place to live in for their own people and, incidentally, for representatives of foreign countries. The Liberian president signed an agreement under which his government and that of America were to coöperate.

The U. S. public health service was to supply the chief medical adviser without charge. He was to draw up the plan. The Liberians were to supply the money and the personnel, to pass the necessary laws, and to enforce them. They voted $18,000 a year to pay the expenses.

Dr. H. F. Smyth took up his duties as chief medical adviser in January, 1930. He found that the agreement was signed with "fingers crossed." The best that can be said is that the Liberian president signed in good faith, but he could not control his congress nor his people. Less than $4,000 was available. All kinds of impediments were put in the way of the work.

In spite of opposition, before the end of six months the death rate had been reduced 75 per cent. Then all financial support was withdrawn. An American foundation agreed to pay the expenses the Liberian people would agree to otherwise back the original agreement. It being evident that they would not or could not do that, the chief medical adviser was ordered home and the effort to make Monrovia fit for human habitation was left in the hands of the Liberians.

Since these people took the position that they had no yellow fever, and whatever they did have they were satisfied with, the probability is that the conditions of 1929 will shortly prevail again, and that Liberian health conditions will continue bad until some outside agency will act to end a world menace.

THYMUS GLAND.

Mrs. M. R. writes: Will you kindly write an article about the thymus gland? My son, who is five years old, has an enlarged thymus gland and, although he has had several series of X-ray treatments, the gland is still enlarged. His tonsils have been in a very bad condition since babyhood, but due to this enlarged gland, he has been unable to take an anesthetic. What effect will this gland have when he is older? In case of an emergency operation will he ever be able to take an anesthetic?

REPLY.

We wrote on this subject a short time ago. It seems reasonably well established that the presence of a mass, usually called an enlarged thymus, in the upper chest does not increase the danger of sudden death. If your child's tonsils need attention you can have them attended to with reasonable safety.

PROTRUDING EARS.

R. V. J. writes: My small brother's ears protrude quite far from where they should normally be. He is 8 years old. Could you advise how to turn them back?

2. Why should a normal eye continually water?

REPLY.

1. Have him wear a kit cap that covers the ears and binds them against the head. Such a cap should be worn day and night for a long time.

2. The tear duct is too small to properly drain away the eye secretion.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

EXAMINE PREVIOUS TITLE.

Chicago, July 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The catch basin in my yard, wholly on my property, practically in the center of the yard, has an inlet from a neighbor's sink. Apparently one owner possessed the two houses at one time and built but the one catch basin. Owing to certain objectionable practices on the part of the neighbor, it is my desire that the inlet from his sink to my catch basin be sealed. Can I do this legally? Or if some other procedure beside the physical sealing is necessary kindly advise what I must do within the law. W. J. T.

It would be necessary to ascertain the previous history of the title. If, for example, your grantor, while he owned both properties, gave to the adjoining property the right to use your catch basin, you would not be entitled to interfere with such right.

SCHOOL CLERK'S JOB.

Chicago, July 17.—[Friend of the People.]—What is the date of the next clerk's examination for public schools? K. M.

At this writing no examination is scheduled for the position of school clerk, but the name of the above writer has been placed on the mailing list for notification of the next examination called.

UNSANITARY PRACTICE.

Chicago, July 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We live in a two flat on the first floor. Next to us is a four flat building. Across from our dining room and kitchen windows is the back stairway of the four flat building. The people on the second floor beat their rugs on the stairway which causes all the dust and dirt to enter our windows. Is there any law controlling this? F. B.

Section 2207 of the City Code prohibits such operations where the dust will pass into occupied premises.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

NOW WE'VE GOT our official greeter car in which distinguished visitors to our fair city will be rid around the boulevards escorted by two auto cops. The car is pure white, Greeter Gaw will be attired in pure white, and the motor cops' motors are pure white. White wings will stand at attention as the cavalcade passes and present arms with white brooms. All that is now needed to make the picture complete is to have the white greeter car followed by a white calliope playing "White Wings They Never Grow Weary." By heck, this hain't no rube town no more. Now let's all go down to the depot and see the six-fifteen train come in from New York.

'TIS A WOMAN'S WORLD! Three beautiful and highly cultured ladies hold up a dress shop with revolvers in the fashionable shopping section of Chicago and walk out with a lot of loot, including a fifteen hundred dollar mink skin coat. Women are fast crowding into every domain of human endeavor once the exclusive privilege of men. Ah, fellow gents, they've shoved us out of the office, the store, the bank, the law, politics, and the airplane. Now they're driving us out of graft, racketeering, bootlegging, and holdup business. To the kitchen, men, down with the dish pan, in with the dishes, and now with the scalding tears running down your saddened faces, get to work! And mind to get the children dressed and off to school, and then dust all the rugs and feed the canary.

END OF AN IDYLL.

Our understanding! Marvel there no more.
I'm weary, do you hear, tired of its blague.
This bond between us—what a slimsy rag—
This comradery! Would I were free to pour
Jealous reproach, weak tears, without pretense.
Your admiration of my common sense
Stills my demands in an effective gag
But I remain all feminine at core.

Who plays with nature fondles a strange beast. . . .
My dear, my dear, what care I in the least
For all the brave and cautious words we've said,
When sly, sharp fangs are straining at my throat
That wise, gay me, you know, but stands remote
And prays for pride and sadly shakes her head.

JUST AFTER all the newspapers got through sending Mr. Capone to jail Alfonse arises and with a graceful bow withdraws his plea of guilty, so they have to start all over again and Alfonse will remain on the front page indefinitely. If we wanted a real easy life we would just love to be Mr. Capone's press agent.

POVERTY HAS WINGS.

I remember just before we were married my husband, the poor dear, said: "Susan, by the time I am fifty I will have lost a cool million for you." Well, of course, I was ambitious, too, but I realized that my husband's capacity for losing money would never parallel our ambitions; I knew that there were very few young men who started out and lost a cool million by the time they were fifty. You see, at the time, my husband was inspired by the loss Cornelius Van Skillet accumulated over a period of some ten years. The last we heard of the Van Skillets they were living in a two room flat and doing their own cooking . . . "and anything that a Van Skillet can do," said my husband, "I can do." After we were married I remember hearing my husband say that perhaps we should have waited until he had developed no visible means of support before we ventured into matrimony, but I said, "No. We love each other and the inconveniences of life can go to pot." We had three maids and two cooks and two butlers; in the country the number was doubled, and at sea the yacht took a crew of thirty. But did that interfere with our happiness? No, we had each other and nothing else mattered. Then my husband's father died, leaving the burden of a big losing business on my husband's shoulders. While my husband never had had any real business experience my womanly intuition told me he would prove to be a shrewd factor in Wall street, where clever men piled up colossal losses hand over fist. Of course, as far as I was concerned, it really didn't make any difference whether my husband lost money or not, because, fortunately, I am constituted to make the best of things whatever they may be. As time went on, however, my husband had reverses; every venture he went into turned to gold. I shall never forget that evening my husband, poor fellow, came to me and said: "Well, Susan, the jig is up. Things are so bad I was forced to buy a chateau in France." "There, there," I said, "everything will turn out all right—we'll pull through somehow; and nothing matters, dear, as long as we have each other!" You see, my husband was beginning to believe that I, his wife, was the sacrifice on the altar of his failure. Alone, he wouldn't have minded . . . but to have dragged me into all of this. At that time, however, he was still comparatively young and his philosophy was at fault; he didn't know then, as he does now, that the lack of money doesn't spell happiness. Yes, I know, he had his ambitions to compete in the business world and proudly point to me and say, "There is the brave little woman who stood by me through thick and thin——" Well, I did do my share, I suppose, but it's nothing more than any good wife would do under the same conditions . . . you know, I sometimes wonder if the Van Skillets are any happier now than they were before they lost that cool million? ORACLE.

WE WROTE TO A MAN who has summer cottages in the Adirondacks and asked him the price of a little ivy covered cot nestling in the hollow of the hills and with a bay window projecting out over a little lake so that we could lie in bed and tie the line to our big toe and fish and sleep, all at the same time. Yes, the man had some very nice little camps for August, simple little places y'understand, but nice; one for $550 for the month, another for $400 and another for $375. We wrote him that we couldn't take any of the houses but we'd like to ride by on the road and look at them if he would tell us how much he charged per look. It must be nice in the Adirondacks where the gay New Yorkers spend their vacations; there can be no depression there. Old Man Prosperity must just be abounding and abutting down every mountain side.

THE GOOD NEWS comes from Washington that the army has 1,600,000 blankets and 250,000 cots that could be used for the relief of the unemployed next winter. Which somehow doesn't cheer us up a bit; those army blankets do scratch like the mischief. R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 1, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Federal Judge Landis brought to a halt Secretary of Commerce Redfield's investigation of the Eastland disaster by an order prohibiting witnesses summoned before the federal grand jury from "testifying elsewhere." Figures on the Eastland dead and missing, revised at midnight, showed: identified dead, 835; and unidentified dead, 1. Of the Western Electric company's list of 142 missing, 138 are dead and missing relatives or friends of employés. All but four employés have been accounted for. In The Tribune's memorial section yesterday there were published obituaries of 779 persons—all who in a week could be definitely traced.

LONDON.—The great struggle for Warsaw is near its close. The occupation of the Polish capital by the Austro-German armies is a matter of hours. The fate of the Russian armies still hangs in the balance.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 1, 1901.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The national board of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers received a negative reply from J. P. Morgan in answer to the proposition that five additional plants be allowed the union. Mr. Morgan said he stood upon his proposition that the tinplate, sheet, and hoop combine would sign the amalgamated scale for the mills that were union on July 1. The Amalgamated officials are now trying to secure a reopening of the conferences.

CHICAGO.—Masked men, four in number, held up the incoming limited train of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in the darkness of the marshes a little to the east of Edgemoor, Ind., 31 miles from Chicago, last night. Firing a fusillade of shots the length of the train to intimidate passengers and crew, they wrecked the mail car with dynamite, mistaking it for the express car which was carrying thousands of dollars and valuables. Discovering their mistake too late to make an effort to get this treasure, the robbers jerked a $50 watch from the hands of Engineer J. W. Collins of Garrett, Ind., and fled. The watch was their only booty.

CLEVELAND, O.—John D. Rockefeller laughed when shown a dispatch to the effect that he intends to take up his residence in England, and said that the story was all nonsense.

CHICAGO.—The hottest July in the history of Chicago passed into history at midnight. The average temperature for the month was 78 degrees, while the previous high marks were 76 degrees in 1900 and 75 degrees in 1879. The hottest day was the 21st, with a maximum of 103 degrees. The highest degree of humidity was on the 29th, with 90 per cent.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 1, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The President has had a very comfortable day. The surgeons say he has made marked improvement since morning. He has taken solid food, his chief dish today being mutton chops and this nourishment agreed with him. The evening rise of fever was not very marked. After the wound was dressed yesterday evening Bell's indication balance was used to locate the ball. When it crossed a spot on the right side of the abdomen that was discolored a few days after the wound was received, the electrical apparatus vibrated perceptibly. The vibration was sufficient to satisfy the surgeons that the ball is lodged just where Dr. Bliss said it was—in anterior wall of the stomach—and that is just beneath the discolored spot.

MENOMINEE, Wis.—The community in and around this city is still greatly excited over the murder of Under-Sheriff Milton A. Coleman of this city and his brother, Charles Coleman, ex-sheriff of Pepin county, by the notorious Williams brothers, who are still at large. The assassins are known to be still concealed in a belt of timber in the country known as the Eau Galle woods, which begin about twenty miles southwest of here, where the inhabitants are recognized as a lawless lot and are said to be doing all they can to aid the brothers in their concealment.

THE SCOUTING TRIP.

Chicago, July 7.—I followed with much interest Mr. Becker's daily accounts of The Tribune's annual Boy Scout canoe expedition conducted this year down the Flambeau river. Yesterday I had a complete report from our Mr. Carpenter, who accompanied Mr. Becker and the Scouts on this trip. He was most enthusiastic about it. I also had an opportunity to talk with four of the boys who made this trip, and to say they were enthusiastic about it is putting it lightly. The fact that they would like to take this same trip over again is evidence of how they felt about it. They spoke in highest terms of Mr. Becker's leadership. He knows how to deal with young men.

In addition to the pleasure of training these Scouts had on the trip, there are a great number of benefits that come to the Boy Scouts of America as an organization. A trip of this kind calls for ruggedness, resourcefulness and team work which has a particular appeal to our Eagle Scouts. This activity of The Tribune will have a helpful influence on Scout advancement during the coming year, inasmuch as many of them will be extremely anxious to attain the rank of Eagle, so that they, too, may become eligible for an adventure of this sort.

We appreciate very much your interest and support of the program of the Boy Scouts of America. It is support of this kind that has made possible the scouting organization as we now have it.

PERRY A. LINT,
Scout Executive.

FROM ONE OF THE BOYS.

Chicago, July 7.—Having been one of the fortunate Boy Scouts who was chosen to accompany Bob Becker on his Flambeau river canoe trip, I want you to know that I appreciate very much this opportunity afforded by The Chicago Tribune.

This was one of the most enjoyable and educational trips I have ever made and every one of the Scouts thoroughly enjoyed it.

Bob not only knows his woodcraft but also how to show a bunch of boys a good time.

I hope that The Tribune will continue to sponsor these trips, as I know they will be just as valuable to other Scouts as this trip has been to me.

ALFRED OLDENBURG.

MAYBE THERE WERE TWO OF THEM.

Chicago, July 10.—I was pleased to read in The Tribune this morning that "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh" survived the war and lived to the age of 86. I shed many tears in my school days over his sad fate on "the dark and bloody plain." For commencement day that year in school we learned the song of "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh."

On Shiloh's dark and bloody plain
The dead and wounded lay.
Amongst them was the drummer boy
Who played the drum that day.
A wounded soldier held him up,
The drum was by his side.
He smiled, shook hands, then raised his eyes
And prayed before he died.

"O, mother," said the dying boy,
"Look down from heaven on me!
O, clasp me in thy fond embrace
And bear me up to thee.
I've loved my country, as my God,
To serve them both I've tried."
He smiled, shook hands, then raised his eyes,
And prayed before he died.

KATE D. ROCKFORD.

WHY A STATE AUDITOR?

Chicago, July 27.—The recent wholesale bank closings in Chicago, with its aftermath of money shortage and in the case of some depositors absolute poverty, entitles the public to an explanation from the state auditor. If it is not forthcoming voluntarily, let us have the attorney general or the state's attorney force a statement from Mr. Nelson in the grand jury room.

If the office of the state auditor had no advance knowledge of the bad conditions of the closed state banks, then let us abolish the office of state auditor. I, as a depositor of one of the Bain banks, will be satisfied with nothing less than the full amount of my account. Also I want to see somebody punished for the inconvenience and the financial difficulties I have experienced since June 9.

Oak Park, Ill., July 17.—If the board of education really wants to save money let them start on the book situation. We have so many books we can't find room for them all and still they come. My children read anywhere from twelve to fifteen sets of readers in one semester.

FAST! HORSELESS BUGGY TRAVELS 20 MILES AN HOUR

Auto Retraces Journey of 26 Years Ago.

BY HAL FOUST.

Into Chicago yesterday chugged a one cylinder automobile, "Old Scout," retracing the route it followed in 1905 in a race from New York City to Portland, Ore. At the tiller—the model predates the steering wheel—sat Dwight B. Huss, retired Detroit automotive engineer, who was the pilot of the "Old Scout" in the race more than a quarter of a century ago.

This cross country trip to many observers is just another publicity stunt staged by an automobile manufacturer to dramatize the improvement in his product over the last twenty-six years. But to Mr. Huss, now 57, it's a revival of the great adventure that was a cross country drive less than a generation ago.

Speed Attracts Attention.

"It's a lot of fun to go over the ground again and note the changes that have taken place," he confided. "In Gary, for example, there was nothing but sand hills, woods and swamp where there is now a city of 100,000. Chicago was little over half its present size and, although there were a few automobiles among the buggies and wagons of the city's traffic, this fast runabout attracted a lot of attention when it tore down Michigan avenue at 20 miles an hour."

Mr. Huss pointed to the machine, parked in front of the city hall while it was being officially welcomed to Chicago. All the vehicle needs is a pair of shafts and a whip socket to make it look like a buggy. A low dash board curls up in front. The driver's seat is high and in the open. The one cylinder engine is under and in back of the seat, over the rear axle.

"Coming through Indiana in the 1905 race," said Mr. Huss, "we had the best roads between Albany and Wyoming. The Hoosier gravel, while narrow, loose and rough, was much better going than the deep mud of Illinois and Iowa which we encountered after leaving Chicago.

Cities Now Rough Going.

"Chicago, like other cities, had pavements on its main streets, but there was little improvement on the country roads. We could make good time in the municipalities, but were frequently bogged in the country.

"In 1931 we find the contrast between municipalities and open country just the reverse. Today there is good pavement for fast travel between cities, but when a motorist comes to a municipality he hits broken and old pavement and is mired in traffic congestion."

The drive into Chicago from Gary yesterday carried Mr. Huss through the fields of gas tanks and oil distilleries in northern Indiana where a quarter of a century ago there were farms and pastures, and horses kicked up their heels and pawed the ground at the sight of the horseless buggy. After entering the city on Indianapolis boulevard, the route included the narrow and bumpy streets in the Calumet roller mill district, pavement that illustrates Mr. Huss' point about the need for better municipal traffic conditions.

From Jackson park north, "Old Scout," on the outer drive, rode a modern metropolitan highway over miles of reclaimed lake front, passing the Hyde Park hotel district and entering a forest of skyscrapers in the loop, surrounded by improvements that were merely dreams of imaginative planners when Mr. Huss, at the age of 32, entered the city in the 1905 race.

From Chicago the "Old Scout" will be driven westward to Portland, Ore., following pavements and broad highways where once the car was dragged and pushed through mud and over rocks to win a race by crossing the continent in 44 days.

Count von Luckner Sails on the McDonald Yacht

Count Felix Von Luckner, writer and lecturer who won fame during the war as a German sea raider, and his wife, the Countess Ingeborg, sailed last night with Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr. and his bride on the McDonald yacht, Mizpah. A dozen guests of the McDonalds will spend a month at Georgian bay and at Camp Manitou where Commander McDonald, with the aid of an Indian chief, will teach the German sailor the intricacies of an Indian birch bark canoe.

GIVE HISTORIC HYDE PARK SITE TO DAUGHTERS

Rosalie Hall Corner Gift of T. A. Collins.

BY AL CHASE.

One of Hyde Park's historic corners, 57th and Harper, the site of old time Rosalie hall, where Mary Garden made her public debut when she was fourteen, was presented yesterday to Miss Mary A. Collins and Miss Helen H. Collins by their parents, Thomas A. and Catherine Collins. The land is improved with a $300,000 four story store and apartment building erected about eight years ago. Mr. Collins, one of the donors, is a contractor, with offices at 310 South Michigan avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Collins live at 5330 University avenue.

MARY GARDEN
(Atwell Photo.)

The Rosalie hall building was built by Frank R. Chandler in 1882 and named after his wife. The auditorium became famous all over Chicago for its social activities and for its amateur dramatic productions. George Ade's "Peggy from Paris" one of the successful musical comedies of its day, was given an amateur production there under the name of "Maggie."

Recalls La Salle Operas.

Adams and Hough, who later achieved fame and cash from their La Salle Opera house musical comedies, wrote several plays while at Hyde Park High school which were produced by fraternity boys in Rosalie hall.

The property, which fronts 177 feet on 57th street and 75½ feet on Harper avenue, was bought by Mr. Collins in 1922 for a reported $26,000. He at once tore down the famous old landmark and erected the present four story structure, which he has now given to his daughters.

Physician Buys Flats.

Dr. Earl E. Gould has purchased the fourteen apartment and three store building at the northwest corner of 69th street and Perry avenue from a syndicate headed by John E. Newberg for a reported $80,000, subject to a mortgage of $51,000. Dr. Gould gave in exchange a country estate near Sycamore, Ill., at present operated as a dairy farm. It is on the Vermillion river and will be developed by the syndicate with summer homes. Johnson & Turnquist were the only brokers.

The city of Chicago has purchased from Rayner, Dalheim & Co., music printers, the northeast corner of Lake street and Central Park avenue, through to Walnut street, 154x165, for an indicated $50,000. It will be used for storage in connection with construction of the Chicago avenue water tunnel.

The Standard Oil company has purchased the northwest corner of Oakwood boulevard and Lake Park avenue, 52x120, from Lydia D. Fabian for an undisclosed consideration.

WOMAN, 74, GETS BACK $5,500 FOR PILFERED STOCK

Mrs. Annetta Holmes, 74 years old, 1663 Humboldt boulevard, the sole support of a blind sister and a crippled granddaughter, got back $5,500 out of $8,741 worth of stock in Judge Matthew D. Hartigan's court yesterday. She said she had given the stock to H. W. Nydick, Leo Aaron and James Wykhorn, of a real estate firm at 75 East Wacker drive, on their promise that they would insure it for her. Instead, they sold the stock.

Arraigned in court, Nydick, the head of the company, told Judge Hartigan that they had only been able to get $6,000 for the stock. He offered to return $5,500 to Mrs. Holmes.

Judge Hartigan looked at Mrs. Holmes, who was making an obvious effort to keep from weeping.

"Mother," the judge said, "I think that that is the best you can get out of this. You'd better take it." Mrs. Holmes nodded and walked away from the bench. Payment will be made Monday morning in the racket bureau of the state's attorney, 123 West Madison street. Upon restitution the charges against the men will be nol prossed.

DOCTORS ORDER REST FOR BRIAND; FRIENDS WORRIED

PARIS, July 31.—(AP)—Aristide Briand, who many times has defied his numerous political enemies to throw him out of office, was meekly minding three mild-mannered doctors tonight. Reports from his country at Cocherel to the ministery of foreign affairs reassured his collaborators, who have been considerably perturbed about his health for the past fortnight.

Briand's physicians have ordered him to remain lying down a good part of each day and to retire early. His intimates say he never has quite recovered from the attack of grippe contracted late last May at Geneva. To this was added a touch of typical London weather during the recently concluded conference there, bringing on an attack of asthma.

The asthma, moreover, recently caused him to wheeze after climbing stairs. This so alarmed his entourage that Prof. Vaquez, noted heart specialist, was summoned. In view of M. Briand's age, 69, and his ingrained habit of sitting up late at night, a complete rest was imposed.

OLD GRENOBLE HOTEL CLOSED AS BELL TOLLS

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—A landmark of fifty-four years' standing passed at midnight when the Hotel Grenoble at 56th street and 7th avenue closed. The tolling of an old bell in the cathedral windowed lobby sounded the end for the old hostelry in which King Edward VII., then the prince of Wales, was a visitor, and Rudyard Kipling a guest.

The auction sale of the relics and art objects in the lobby will be held next week. The furniture, the hand wrought iron lighting fixtures, and the stained glass windows figuring the Grenoble family's coat-of-arms will be offered at the auction along with the busts of Shakespeare and Psyche that have adorned the lobby for many years.

Among the rather antique fixtures in the hotel is the intricate speaking tube system with which the building was equipped in the days before telephones.

Penrose, formerly professor of gynecology at the University of Pennsylvania, and Spencer Penrose, mining engineer and owner of large mining interests in Colorado.

NORFOLK, Va.—(AP)—Col. Lucien D. Starke, publisher of the Norfolk Virginian Pilot, died after a brief illness. He was 63 years old.

CAPT. COSTELLO'S KIN DISINHERITED IN $200,000 WILL

The late Thomas H. Costello, former police captain, who died on Feb. 27, disinherited his only relatives, two brothers and a sister; gave $8,000 in bequests to five friends, and left the remainder of the estate amounting to $192,000 to charities. This was revealed yesterday when his will was admitted to probate by Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner.

The Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children and the Alexian Brothers' hospital will each receive $48,000; the Chicago Home for Incurables, the Masonic Orphans' home at La Grange, and the Old People's home at Sullivan, Ill., will receive $24,000 each; and the Masonic hospital and the Chicago Junior school will each receive $12,000 under the will.

The whereabouts of the two brothers are unknown, but the sister, Annie Costello , resides in Galway, Ireland. Her attorney, Edward Price, indicated he would contest the will.

BEATEN BY ROBBER GANG.

Josep Menneth, 21 years old, of Morgantown, W. Va., was reported to be in serious condition in the Edgewater hospital yesterday as the result of being beaten by four men who became angered when they held him up at Crawford and Devon avenues and found only 15 cents in his pockets.

AID IN NEWBERRY LIBRARY LEAVES IT HER ESTATE

Mrs. Harriet Taylor, head of the genealogical department of Newberry library for 37 years prior to her death on June 21, left her entire estate, estimated at $20,000, to the library under the terms of a will filed for probate yesterday before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

Mrs. Taylor, who to the time of her death wore stiff black silks cut with leg of mutton sleeves in the styles of the nineties, was known as an authority on genealogy. In her apartment at 1220 North Dearborn street friends found a memorandum after her death which stated: "Newberry library has been my companion, solace and protection since June 16, 1894. With abiding loyalty and affection, Harriet Taylor."

In her will Mrs. Taylor suggested that the interest on her bequest be allowed to accumulate for five years, and be used to publish a historical sketch of the library and a biography of its founder, Walter Loomis Newberry. She suggested that further interest accumulations be used at five year intervals to revise the work and bring it up to date.

DIES OF SLASH BY UNASKED WOMAN GUEST AT POKER

Fort Worth, Tex., July 31.—(AP)—A woman described by witnesses as an "uninvited guest" at a men's poker party was in jail here today, charged with murder for the death of Thomas L. Cayson, 38, recently employed by an oil company at Chicago.

Cayson died in a hospital yesterday from an infected wound received Tuesday night at his home.

W. G. Polk, who lived with Cayson, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the woman named in the complaint as Thelma Treadway came to the house where a poker game was in progress after Cayson told her not to come. Polk said she called Cayson into an adjoining room. A scuffle ensued and Cayson emerged with a slight knife wound in his right arm. He said the woman held a knife in her hand.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother.—She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Clintonside, of carpetbagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Clinton and believes herself to be his promised wife. Sam forces Lowndes to admit, in front of Sally, that he is engaged to the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally decides to accept his offer. They are married and Sam gives Oakleigh back to Sally as a wedding present.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

THE COLONEL COMES TOO LATE.

"Sam," said Sally in a whisper, "tell me, do you hate me? Do you think I—injured you?"

He regarded her with clear, proud eyes. He even smiled.

"No, Sally. I most certainly do not hate you," he told her truthfully. "If you have not injured me. I fell in love with you. I married you, and not eyes wide open, knowing exactly what I did and why I did it. You asked me to—to save Oakleigh and for your grandmother's sake, among other reasons. Very well, I give you Oakleigh, a free gift. And you need never again worry about Mrs. Rutherford, dear old lady! So that is that. I will not take for my wife any woman who does not love me as much as she or I will have nothing. Do you understand?"

"Yes," said she, understanding a pride equal to and surpassing her own. "But I—would have kept my bargain, please."

"I know you would," said he, more gently. "You would pay the price. You are a gallant soul, an honest soul. I shouldn't have married you if I had not been sure of that."

"What do you want me to do?" said she after a pause.

"We shall have a part to play, for a while at least, in the eyes of the world. Can you play the happy bride?"

"I can try to," said she faintly.

"Do so. Be Mrs. Sam Winstead. You won't find people sorry for young Mrs. Winstead. You've got to stay here at Oakleigh on account of your grandmother. I quite understand your not wishing to leave her even for a week. I shall necessarily be away from the house a great deal—the milkman is bad, you know! So you won't have to see too much of me. You'll keep out of the end of the game, I'll keep up mine. To everybody we shall appear a happy pair of newlyweds. I shall never have but one command: you've got to behave decently to my father."

"You have been so kind and so generous that I—I promise not to make a fuss. I'll ask no fool," she told him.

He bowed. "That is all, I think. You need have no fear I'll encroach. When I've done all the lovemaking I shall ever do, my dear. If there's any more to be done you'll have to do it yourself. You'll have to seek me, I fear. There—that should set your mind at peace!"

She held out her hand with his ring on it. Would he take it? But he was not petty. He did take her hand, and his grip was warm and reassuring.

—and closed her eyes with gentle fingers.

"Sam," she said in a hushed voice, "I am sorry, I am sorry! I wish—we could be different—you deserve so much better! And thank you. You have given me a certain peace of mind." She added after a moment's thought: "I think I am beginning to know the Winsteads, really. They are quite unknowing, though I—I am a little afraid of them. But I hope you believe me when I say that—that I am not very sorry I—I'm one of them."

He kissed her fingers by way of reply.

"We shall be the best and truest of pals, dear girl. Now good-night, and sleep well. Show me a rosier face in the morning!" He went out.

He had arranged a small dressing room for himself further down the hall, and here he spent his wedding night. It had been a strenuous day for him, and he felt very tired. His buoyancy departed, even his pride deserted him, and he felt old, old, old. For man can be only as young as his hope; and never he as old as his sorrow. Sam knew something akin to despair. He had done well to marry the last Rutherford? And face all the future as he must face tomorrow morning, knowing that he held but the empty shell of happiness? He lay awake, with his head in his arms, for a long time. Then, because after all he was young and healthy, he fell asleep.

Later he was awakened by a sharp call. Sally was standing just inside the door. A gay kimono was thrown over her nightdress.

"Please come. There's something the matter with grandmama!" she said, her voice shaking with terror. "I heard her call . . . I wasn't asleep and I ran to her . . . and there's something wrong . . . and I was frightened and ran for you. Hurry, hurry!"

Mrs. Rutherford was gently putting Sally aside when he entered her room. The frightened girl had turned on all the lights and the slender old lady was sitting up in her bed, two vivid pink spots in her cheeks and her eyes large and black with excitement. Her fluffy white hair was like a cloud around her face. When Sam reached her bedside she looked at him intently, then laughed softly.

"Ashley! Dear boy, I'm so glad you're here!" she cried. "Your father's here. I knew he'd come before morning! I heard the sound of wheels and knew his voice. Rupert's home, Rupert's home! There, Ashley, don't you hear his step on the stairs?" She bent her head as if she listened. "Now he is at the door," she said happily. "Rupert! Rupert!"

"O, grandmama! Grandmama!" Sally gave a wailing cry, but Sarah Rutherford never heard it. Her eyes strained toward the door.

"Rupert!" she cried rapturously, "you've come. You're a little ahead of time, Rupert." She held out her arms. "I—I had something to tell you—dear, hold me up; don't you see your father's here? Rupert——" She lifted her face as if for a welcoming kiss. And then her arms fell slack, her slight old body bent itself forward. Sam Winstead laid her back on her pillows and closed her eyes with gentle fingers. The colonel had come home to the wife of his youth.

Sally gave a gasping cry and pitched forward. Sam caught her as she fell sideways and bore her to her own room, ministering to her deftly. Her dark head lay supine against his breast, and as he placed her on her bed he held her tighter for a moment and his kiss fell upon her forehead. The girl had been keyed up to the breaking point, and when she collapsed reason was so deep and prolonged that Sam was frightened. Before night, doctors and nurses as well as the undertaker and his assistants were on their way to Oakleigh, upon which tragedy had again descended.

While she was yet unconscious she was removed to Winstead's. She woke up one morning and stared around wanly. She lay in a large and airy room, with the May sunlight pouring in through long windows and the air sweet with scents of the garden just outside. She was conscious of color first, and lay sniffing it instinctively. The room was strange to her and she looked around with a growing curiosity and astonishment. Her stay at Oakleigh had the beauty of old and ordered luxury. This room was as beautiful, but in an altogether different manner.

All her faculties were for the moment lost in a daze of wonder. She didn't know where she was or how she got here. The little gay wind ruffled the beautiful soft toned curtains and danced over the bed, stirring her hair, feeding her with the thousand scents of a garden, and the friendly sun outside nodded to her as if in kindly greeting.

The door from another room opened and an efficient person all in starched white walked across the floor and stood beside her bed, smiling down at her. It was a skilled nurse, who explained in a clear, modulated voice how pleased she was to see Mrs. Winstead awake and looking so much better.

Memory had been returning to Sally swiftly, like an inrushing tidal wave. Lights, faces. A voice droning, "I pronounce you man and wife." A young man leaning whitefaced against her bedroom door, the while he packed her things. And she holding a sheaf of papers that gave her back Oakleigh. And grandmama was dead. She covered her eyes.

The starched nurse went to a door, opened it softly, and gave a low command order. Then she came back and smiled encouragingly.

"I have sent Mr. Winstead word," she said cheerfully. "The butler is bringing him. He will be right over."

"I can't remember how I got here," said Sally weakly. "I don't know where I am."

"You are in your own room at Winstead's," the nurse told her. "You had a bad bout of collapse at Oakleigh and the doctors thought you had better be brought here. You were unconscious when you came, and you've only been semi-conscious since. But now you're all right, except that you'll be quite weak for a couple of days yet. Your husband will be able to draw a long breath now—he hasn't done so for two weeks!"

"Two weeks!" gasped Sally.

"Only two weeks," nodded the nurse.

Sally couldn't speak. A flood of painful emotions swept over her. She had never been sick a day in her life, but now she lay spent. Her mind worked like a millwheel. Grandpapa—grandmama. Grandpapa had come home, but—he had come too late to save Sally.

There was a little stir at the door, which opened to admit a tall young man. His bright blue eyes met Sally's reassuringly. The nurse moved away with a cheerful, "She is quite all right now, Mr. Winstead, but she'll have to stay for a few days more until she's stronger."

The nurse was looking at him with the admiration and respect which all women displayed for him, and he smiled back at her as he seated himself. His glance at Sally was not at all possessive. He lifted her hand to his lips and kissed her fingers.

Good Morning!

You get an idea from this picture that the star prayed "Dear Lord, please let me act just like Stuart Erwin" and that his prayer was answered.

"What!" you croak, "Robert Armstrong, that he-man, act like Marys-lamb Stuart Erwin? O, Miss Tinée, you have not got good sense!"

Believe it or not, good sense or not, in all save physiognomy, Robert Armstrong in this film favors Stuart Erwin as one saucer favors another of the same set. Apparently the song in his heart was:

"I want to do as you do,
Talk as you talk,
Walk as you walk—
Then I'll be HAP-py!"

(With apologies to whoever wrote the actual song.)

"Ex-Bad Boy," has been adapted from the play "The Whole Town's Talking" written by the wedded pens of John Emerson and Anita Loos. It is farce, pure and extremely simple. You WON'T get brain fag from it and you WILL derive considerable enjoyment contemplating Mr. Armstrong's determined and successful mimicry.

As Chester Binney he had to be other than his virile hard-boiled self. The rôle is built for Erwin and I don't see why Erwin didn't play it. He probably wasn't available and Mr. Armstrong, pinch-hitting, qualifies well, if with a touch of caricature, as the country swain who loves a neighbor girl, WHO, having been to college and got a few pointers, says that she will only wed a man with a PAST.

"He must be a man of the world; sophisticated! He must be attractive to other women. He must know how to kiss, Ah-hh-hh . . . sighs the fair Ethel. Her mother, Mrs. Simmons, feels much as she does. A man, she says with a scathing look at Mr. Simmons, should sow his wild cereals, BEFORE, not AFTER, marriage. Mr. Simmons, you see DOES like to get out with the boys now and then—and sometimes the boys have girls with them.

Mr. Simmons is in the paint business and Chester is one of his salesmen. He is all for Ethel's wedding this sterling youth, and, fraught with fears that she will, instead, annex a lounge lizard she has brought home with her from God knows where, he conceives the brilliant idea of firing up a past for Chester.

We won't go into details regarding the plot. I will only say that shortly, there is found in Chester's possession, a famous movie star's picture, thus inscribed: "To My Darling Chester. Still waters run deep. In memory of happy, hectic Hollywood hours . . . Leta Larbo."

The story of "Ex-Bad Boy" is the last word in amiable idiocy—which the acting stresses. But you'll find th film [which was originally, I imagine, in the nature of a satire] good for several laughs.

"NEWLY RICH."

Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Norman Taurog.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Daisy Tate.....Mitzi Green
Bessie Tate.....Edna May Oliver
Maizie Tiffany.....Louise Fazenda
Tiny Tim Tiffany.....Jackie Searl
Queen Sadonia.....Virginia Hammond
King Max.....Bruce Line
Director.....Dell Henderson
Mr. Black.....Gen Targart

Lettie.....Howard Goldstein

Now "Newly Rich" is no picture to write a persnickety, grown-up review about. It's primarily for children, is about children, and children will be crazy for it. So will grown-ups, if they'll forget they're that way for an hour, and give the downtrodden kids they really are a chance.

Personally I'm tickled pink that "Newly Rich" has come among us! There are so few children's pictures, and the Oriental's offering is one that every honest to goodness youngster will adore. The principal characters are two child movie stars and a boy king who hate their glory and decide to "abdicate."

This they do—with results the picture will show you. But, anyhow, that's getting 'way along with the story, for the abdication doesn't occur until the film is nearly ended.

The tale takes you from country town to Hollywood, to—Slovakia—I guess that's the name of little Maxmillian's kingdom—and spills over with adventure all the way. The life of a child movie star on or off duty is drawn with exaggerations, and I suspect that we are supposed to shed a tear over the playless existences of the little folks whose lives belong to the public. I COULD weep a bit over Mitzi Green as Daisy and Bruce Line as King Max, but that young Jackie Searl can be the PESKIEST tad! Remember him as Sid in "Tom Sawyer"?

Edna May Oliver and Louise Fazenda impersonate with killing effect the ambitious mothers of Daisy and "Tiny Tim Tiffany." Virginia Hammond makes a lovely and gracious queen mother. All other groups do all right, and the raft of kids playing extra parts are swell. Norman Taurog, the child loving, child understanding chap who directed "Skippy," skillfully maneuvers the youngsters through this number.

The picture is an adaptation of a Sinclair Lewis yarn, "Let's Play King." I know some flaws I could pick with it if I cared to be grownup and do it. But I don't, for I can still hear the shouts of childish laughter and the accompanying rumbles of sympathetic adult merriment that yesterday were making the Oriental theater ring with the healthiest din it has known in many a day.

See you tomorrow.

Sally Will Tell Names of Her 100 Guests Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

More information about the program at the Oriental theater next week, where our party is to be, convinces me that the hundred boys and girls who have been selected to accompany me will have a marvelous time. Ted Cooke will be there as master of ceremonies and he's to be assisted by Frank Wilson, one of the theater's popular crooners.

The hundred boys and girls who wrote winning letters will find their names in tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE and they'll receive invitations within the next few days. There will be news of another grand party, too, so do not miss it.

14 HIGH SCHOOLS WILL SHARE IN BAND AT FESTIVAL AUG. 22

Fourteen Chicago high schools are represented in the massed high school band entries which are coming into THE TRIBUNE for the Chicagoland music festival concert to be held Saturday night, Aug. 22, in Soldiers' field.

OSCAR ANDERSON.

Dr. J. Lewis Brown, director of music in the public schools, and Oscar Anderson, supervisor of bands and orchestras, are delighted with the response made to THE TRIBUNE'S invitation to participate in this band. The boys and girls will play two numbers on the festival program and be featured in the entertainment. Mr. Anderson will direct them. In addition the musicians will play in the massed band of more than 2,000 pieces under the baton of Victor Grabel.

Among the high schools represented are Senn, Lake View, Schurz, Lindblom, Tuley, Tilden Tech, Harrison, Englewood, Morgan Park, Hyde Park, Austin, Crane Tech, Roosevelt, and Lane Tech. Interest in the band is shown by the fact that students from nearby towns also are entering. Elgin, Morton, Hinsdale, Taylorville, Riverside, and Brookfield are other towns in Illinois to send in entries. It is expected that 500 will be in this band.

The numbers to be played by the high school unit will be "The French Military March" by Saint Saens and the "Il Guarany Overture" by Gomez. The first rehearsal will be held Friday night, Aug. 7, in Lyon & Healy hall, 7th floor of Lyon & Healy building, Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard.

Smile Is Best Curb on Noise, Bundesen Says

Anger Only Makes Hot Day Seem Hotter.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

If the good old summer time is no longer the good old slumber time in your neighborhood, Health Commissioner Dr. Herman N. Bundesen has an idea. Courtesy costs nothing and pays dividends, he pointed out yesterday, regarding the many calls received daily at his department complaining of roaring radios, horn tooting motorists, and harmonizing beach parties. Give the offenders a dental display and a pleading "Won'tcha, please?" instead of that bellow of rage and the threat that inevitably forces a sharp rejoinder.

"Believe it or not, your neighbors aren't any more noisy now than they were a couple of months ago—they only seem noisier," the health chief declared. "It's just because windows are open all around the house, because heat makes us sleep less soundly, and because almost any one is more easily irritated in warm weather. That's one phase of this noise nuisance.

"Another is that the people who make the disturbances, nine times out of ten, are not malicious—only thoughtless. And if their attention is called to their conduct, in a pleasant way, they usually respond, we've found in tracing down literally hundreds of complaints. But let the annoyed person begin to writhe and bluster when the next door radio program begins to blat just outside his window, and soon he's bothered himself more than the noise has bothered him.

"What actually happens is that his blood pressure jumps up fifteen or twenty points, the acids in his system are roused by his anger and begin their own acting up in his stomach; his face gets red and hot, and when he's thoroughly uncomfortable he leans out and bawls at the offender so wrathfully that the only thing left for the neighbor to do is to pay him back, instanter, in his own coin. Then one thing leads to another and the feud is on.

"Just let that irritated person count ten before he races to the window. Let him cool off for a few moments, then lean out and, in a jocular voice, call, 'Sorry to bother you, but there's a baby asleep in here. Mind toning down your radio a bit?' If the other fellow is at all a normal person he doesn't want to be thought a heel, so he leans out and says, 'Why, sure. Sorry if I woke the baby up.' And that's all there is to it."

From a physical standpoint the damage done by noises is far less than that caused by anger aroused by the noise, emphasizes the commissioner. Therefore the point is to keep the temper even, and then go after the cause of the annoyance.

A year ago a scientific commission was appointed to make an intensive study of various noises in the city and to suggest ways and means of ridding the city of as many as possible. Financial difficulties necessitated the postponement of the functioning of this commission until a later date. It was partly with the hope of achieving some improvement in the conditions now extant in the city that Dr. Bundesen advocated the substitution of courtesy among the citizens for the scientific methods that may some time be forthcoming.

NEW MARITAL STYLES ONLY REVIVAL OF THE OLD EGYPTIAN CUSTOM

Companionate and trial marriages were no novelty to the ancient Egyptians, according to Prof. William F. Edgerton of the University of Chicago. His researches in manuscripts written during the period of Greek influence between the conquest by Alexander the Great and Cleopatra, 300 to 30 B. C., and earlier, form the basis for a monograph on Egyptian marriages just published by that university.

"In native Egyptian law marriage was a private contract. There is no evidence that any civil or religious official participated. No written instrument was required," his monograph states.

Apparently, he found, a legal marriage was constituted either by the mere fact that the couple regarded themselves as husband and wife, or by their public recognition of their status.

The marriage continued during mutual consent. Either party could dissolve it at will, and Prof. Edgerton found no evidence that the law attached any penalty to divorce. Furthermore, if the contracting parties desired, they could limit in advance the period for which their marriage was to continue.

In a day at Bar Harbor, Me., 2,066 visitors were counted. At Bath, Me., whose population is 9,110, the total in three days was 11,904.

Portland, Me., gave the reconditioned frigate an enthusiastic reception with 61,904 visitors in five days.

For Gloucester and Marblehead, Mass., the most recent ports of call, the figures had not yet been received. The Constitution was due today at New Bedford, Mass., for a week's stay.

Siamese Royalty Fly to Janesville, Wis.; Will Visit Madison

Janesville, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—Prince and Princess Svasti, father and mother of the queen of Siam, and their son, Prince Arjuna, a student at Yale university, arrived here at noon today by airplane from Chicago to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker over the week-end.

The royal party arrived in a cabin plane which was accompanied by two escorting planes. The planes came by way of Lake Geneva and landed at the city airport about 40 minutes after the takeoff. More than 200 persons welcomed the visitors.

Tomorrow, it was planned, the party will fly to Madison to visit the University of Wisconsin. They will be fêted here tomorrow night at a private dinner. Among the dinner guests invited are former Gov. and Mrs. Walter J. Kohler.

Judge Defends Teacher Sued for $625 as Rental That's Overdue

Municipal Judge William R. Fetzer last night declared he would set aside a default judgment of $625 against Dr. Adeline R. White, 5539 Cornell avenue, a Tilden High school teacher, for nonpayment of rent. Judge Fetzer said he would not tolerate eviction orders against teachers who had gone three months without pay, and that the order against Dr. White had been entered when she failed to appear in court or to be represented by an attorney.

Seventy contractors, the largest number to apply for scrip, appeared at the offices of the board of education yesterday.

Perry Victory Called Gateway to Long Peace

Hoover, Emmerson See Example for World.

Put-In-Bay, O., July 31.—(AP)—A ship with a group of American and Canadian dignitaries steamed into Lake Erie today to the spot where Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry triumphed over a British fleet 118 years ago, and dedicated a memorial to both the victory and the peace which followed.

Representatives of the United States, Canada, the states which helped erect the monument and others united in a triple commemoration of Perry's victory, the northwest campaign of Gen. William Henry Harrison in the war of 1812, and the Bush-Bagot treaty.

The official party of 100 was carried from Sandusky to this village on South Bass island aboard the U. S. S. Wilmington. Standing on the platform of the 352 foot granite shaft, they overlooked the site of the battle.

The principal addresses were made by Govs. George White of Ohio and Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois. Case R. Howard, president of the Canadian Club of New York, spoke briefly.

A message from President Hoover was read in which he said the dedication "is an event of more than national interest and significance" and "also commemorates a pioneer step in the maintenance of peace through disarmament.

"The Rush-Bagot treaty which followed that war," the President's message added, "provided for the permanent limitation of armaments maintained by the two nations on the great lakes. It stands not only as a symbol of victory at arms, but marks the establishment, for the first time in history, of the principle of disarmament in the policy of nations as a preventative of war.

"It is particularly appropriate that a tablet reproducing the Rush-Bagot agreement should be unveiled at the dedication. It comes at a time when the nations of the world are seeking solution of their common problems through coöperation and disarmament."

Gov. Emmerson spoke instead of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, who is sailing for Europe.

"I cannot help but feel that the time is ripe," Gov. Emmerson said, "for the nations of the world to take stock and find out if the opportunity is not here when they may make such an agreement as that which brought peace and understanding and good will to the United States and Great Britain following the war of 1812."

Gov. Emmerson contended the standing armies of the world today are keeping the universe poor, but at the same time he asserted he is opposed to reducing the armed forces of the United States until an understanding has been reached in regard to international peace.

Gov. Emmerson asserted that in the great nations 3,000,000 soldiers practice the arts of war daily, despite all that has been done to further international understanding.

"Millions upon millions of dollars are poured into new armaments and war supplies," he said.

"Europe, rocked by the greatest war of all time, still is suffering from its effects," he continued. "Germany, with its resources gone, its fields robbed of their fertility, factories and mines idle, and shouldering an enormous debt, stands on the verge of anarchy."

Gov. White characterized the monument as "not a tribute to the exploits in war but as a perpetual reminder of the necessity for peace." He likewise praised the Rush-Bagot treaty and urged the molding of public opinion against war.

Gov. Emmerson asserted the world is only beginning to pay the cost of the last war, governments are only beginning to work out slowly and painfully the problems bequeathed by that war.

Y. M. C. A. Delegates Talk About Economic Problems

TORONTO, Ont., July 31.—(AP)—During the world conference of Young Men's Christian associations tonight R. E. Sproule of New York said economic problems were uppermost in the minds of young men who attended twenty-one groups under his supervision, and the problem of getting a job was discussed fully.

A group studying "industrialism, socialism, and Christianity" has concluded that from the Christian point of view, all wealth is a stewardship and business should respect the sanctity of human personality. The strongest defense of capitalism came from United States delegates.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Simple Precautions Tend to Keep Child Cool in Hot Weather

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

In our leaflet called "Keeping the Well Baby Well" a variety of subjects is listed for the shortest of reading references, most of them obtainable free. Among these subjects are sun bathing the baby, the baby's bath, traveling with the baby, diet lists for infants and children, daily time cards and so forth, especially helpful for summer care of the baby.

But when summer comes and vacations hurry along, sometimes people cannot wait to send for full directions, but need for one reason or another immediate suggestions. A few will be given today on general care of the small child.

Dress the baby lightly.

It is considered unwise to allow children to go about consistently barefoot because of the danger of tetanus [lockjaw].

As to food—it is usually advisable to give less rich food in very hot weather and to lengthen the intervals between feedings. A little boiled water can be used to dilute the formula, and cream and top milk can be replaced by partly skimmed milk. Also the baby should be given extra boiled water to drink during a hot spell.

Choose the less heating cereals during hot weather. Oatmeal is one to avoid. Omit beef juice also during a very warm spell. For children who are past babyhood reduce meats and sweets. Boil the drinking water also for the older children, if its source is questionable.

Sleep we have gone into rather fully—but to repeat—both babies and children need plenty of sleep, the latter at least one nap or rest period a day. Let them shed their clothes and put on thin pajamas or night gowns for the nap, preceding it or following it by a sponge.

All the children should have one warm bath a day and can stand several tepid sponges if the weather is very hot. That old standby in so many emergencies helps us out in hot weather, too—I mean bicarbonate of soda. It can be added to a tepid sponge bath for a baby or for an older child—about one teaspoonful to a basin of water. Don't rub after a bicarbonate sponge—pat the skin dry.

For older children a light, soaping all over with a bland soap like castile, and then a tepid shower or sponge, is more cooling than just a plain splashing.

Bathing is a marvelous reducer of body temperature and a nerve quieter in hot weather.

Regard Any Change in Normal Gum Condition with Suspicious Eye

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The appearance of the normal healthy gum is pink in color, firm, smooth, moist, and lacking in sensitiveness.

Any continuous change from the normal firm, pink condition of the gum may be suspected of leading to pyorrhea trouble. When the gum is sensitive, swollen, red, bleeds easily, shows signs of receding, that's the time to make the dentist appointment a fixed and definite one.

Some of the irritants that cause a lowered general resistance of the gum, cited by Dr. Charles L. Stoloff, well known dentist, are:

Tartar, which has accumulated on the teeth, and if permitted to remain too long, leads to the formation of pus pockets.

The wrong contacts between the upper and lower teeth.

Poor contact between the teeth of the same jaw, which permits food to be forced down against the gum.

Missing teeth. Irregularities of teeth that may invite an accumulation and impaction of food between the teeth.

Badly fitted fillings, crowns, bridges and places for the accumulation of food around poorly finished dental work.

Lowered general resistance, due to general disease or undernourishment or due to deficient vitamin and mineral content in the diet.

Help may be given by stimulating vigorous circulation of the blood in the gums, by using an alkaline mouth wash, and by massaging the gums. The latter is best done while the teeth are being brushed. The gum is included in the brushing.

Dr. Stoloff recommends for acidity of the mouth a mouth wash used after the brushing and made of pure lime water. This is swished back and forth between the teeth until it foams. The lime water washes away and neutralizes any acids around the teeth. The formula for making lime water you may have from me upon request. Milk of magnesia, pure or diluted with water, is another recommended mouth wash.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

MILDRED J.: PERMANENT waves need not be harmful to the hair. If dryness follows, it may be overcome by hot oil treatments. It is advised to have the work done at a reputable beauty parlor where competent operators are employed.

Exhibit space for Chicago's 1933 World's Fair, yesterday was reported by J. Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 31.—[Special.]—J. Farrell MacDonald and not Charlie Bickford, will act the rôle of the late Knute Rockne in motion pictures. After Mrs. Rockne and the Notre Dame players arrived here to watch and aid in the filming of the "Spirit of Notre Dame," they preferred the benevolent, bald, weather beaten, laugh wrinkled countenance of MacDonald to any other film actor whom anybody could think of, for the part. The announcement isn't official yet, but it may be made so at any time.

Marie Dressler has left the Osteopathic hospital after three weeks' stay following an operation on her hip. All visitors are denied her, but this, it is explained, is to hasten her complete recovery and not because of complications.

Joan Bennett made a restive patient at Cedars of Lebanon hospital. There her left leg, hip and back are in a cast, because of fractured bones following a horseback accident on location last Tuesday.

A poll of "The Ten Best Film Directors for 1930," conducted by Film Daily, lists the latter:

Lewis Milestone, Wesley Ruggles, George Hill, Joseph Von Sternberg, D. W. Griffith, Robert Leonard, Charlie Chaplin, John Cromwell, Howard Hawks, and Howard Hughes.

Horse Racing, Tilden's Tennis Society Goals

BY THALIA

THERE are quite a lot of things happening over the week-end, mostly at the country clubs and out in the open. The final day of the Arlington Park race meet will, of course, attract a large crowd this afternoon, and tomorrow afternoon here is the tennis match between Mr. Bill Tilden and Karel Kozeluh, the European pro champion, at Onwentsia. At the Chicago Golf club at Wheaton and at the Knollwood Country club there are special parties this evening.

Both the country clubs have elected to call their parties after popular European spas. The Chicago Golf's is a Lido affair, to take place in and around the swimming pool, with everybody wearing appropriately Lidoish garb.

At Knollwood it will be a St. Jean de Luz party, also featuring swimming and dancing around the swimming pool.

Charles S. Garland, member of the Onwentsia tennis committee which has arranged the matches, was a Davis tennis cup teammate with Big Bill in 1920. He and Mrs. Garland are to give a luncheon for Mr. Tilden and the other players on the professional team at their residence between the matches. The professionals are not arriving until a very short time before they play, and they may have to depart immediately afterward for Milwaukee. If they don't depart there will be a supper party for them at Onwentsia. The Charles Wesley Dempsters and the Edison Dicks are among others who have made reservations to have small luncheon parties at the clubhouse before the tennis.

Beach Club Opens Today at Harbor Point, Mich.

About 200 of the Harbor Springs summer residents are expected to attend the formal opening and reception at the new clubhouse of the exclusive new Beach club this afternoon. The clubhouse is situated on Little Traverse bay at the edge of the town, is surrounded by a dense forest of pine trees, and has a shore line of 600 feet long. It is to be the headquarters for bathing and water sports, as well as informal parties for club members and their guests.

Edward F. Russell is president of the Beach club, and also president of the Harbor Point association. "A beach club is a new venture in northern Michigan," he comments, "but the wide attention it is awakening gives us assurance that it will become one of the most popular places in the entire area." L. D. Johnson of Evanston, Ind., is vice president, and Sterling R. Edmunds of St. Louis, Mo., is the sec'y officer. The Chicago colony includes Mr. Russell's son-in-law and daughter, the Robert M. Curtises, the Robert Hymans, the James Offields, the William Wallers and the Joseph R. Otises.

Dr. Otto L. Schmidt had 16 guests at the dinner dance at the Lake Geneva Country club last night, and the Henry Bartholomays entertained 12, their guests including the Simeon B. Chapins, the Henry C. Bartholomays, the Julius Hegelers of Danville, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, and the A. J. Madlenerz. There are numerous reservations made for dinner tonight preceding the two-piano recital that Harriet Lowden Madlener and Charlotte R. Smith are to give for the benefit of Holiday home.

Reunion of A. H. Gross Family Will Be Held in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. René Travelletti of Winnetka departed yesterday to motor to Yorkholme at York village, Me., to join the Alfred H. Grosses' family house party there. With the Travelletti arrival the reunion is complete, and includes 15 members of the immediate family; Mr. and Mrs. Dana Grant [Dorothy Gross] of Pelham, N. Y., and their two children; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gross of 70 East Cedar street and Wheaton; Mr. and Mrs. George B. Haskell [Freda Gross] and their two children; Mr. and Mrs. Travelletti [Theresa Gross] and the latter's daughter, Sallie Ann Thomas. It is the first time in three years that the entire family has been gathered together at Yorkholme all at once.

Items of the moment—The Duncan Hodges' furniture has been going into their new house on Green Bay road in Lake Forest all this week, and the Hodges themselves will be all settled very shortly. . . . the George A. Ranneys returned this week from Europe, and have gone up to Harbor Point for the rest of the summer. . . . Mrs. John N. Lee of Lake Forest returned a few days ago from a visit with Mrs. Pardee Erdman at Folly ranch in Wyoming. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift are back in Chicago, having arrived on Wednesday morning from their European trip.

I don't remember having heard before—that the James N. Rawleighs, who moved from Winnetka to New York City last spring on account of Mr. Rawleigh's business [Mr. R. went east in February, and Mrs. Rawleigh waited until school was over in June], have been in Europe this summer . . . that the young Stephen Robys [Marjorie Janney] have taken a house in Lake Forest and are living there permanently.

Onwentsia Hunting Season to Open Early This Year.

And—The Onwentsia Hunt's season is to begin some time in September, earlier than last year. There are horses stabled at the Hunt stables at Millers all summer and the Hunt members do some riding, however. . . . George Stuart and his daughters, Miss Harriett and Miss Elizabeth Stuart, who recently arrived in London, have taken an apartment at Claridge's for the remainder of the summer. . . . Mrs. Juliette Manierre Mann has made a plaster model of Fort Dearborn [all authenticated by consultation with government engineers] and hopes to merchandise it, made up into door stops and book ends as a World's Fair souvenir . . . Mrs. John Stuart Cowley Jr. and her small son, Billy, are spending the rest of the summer with the Earle J. Zimmermans, who are occupying the John J. Mitchells' beach house on Fernald point in Santa Barbara.

Canadian Official Asks Liberal Education as Fostering Tolerance

Denver, Colo., July 31.—(AP)—A plea to bridge the gap between theory and practice in education was made by J. M. T. Anderson, premier of Saskatchewan, Canada, before the fourth biennial conference of the World Federation of Education Associations today.

"The educational aims of the past will not satisfy the present," he said. "Present day aims will be modified in the future.

"Education aims, he said, "at tolerant understanding and creative self-expression; it is the process by means of which the individual acquires experiences that will function in rendering more efficient his future behavior. We must bridge the gap between theory and practice."

J. Russell Smith of Columbia university told the geography section if civilization were improved one-half, or even one-tenth as much as machines have improved, "the golden age would indeed be here now."

Robert Ironside of the Scottish delegation addressed the department of preparation of teachers on "rational patriotism; what it is and how a teacher may use a training program to develop it.

"To have a nation of rational patriots," he said, "we need a generation of rationalists. A man who is a bundle of superstitions and prejudices cannot, though he try, be a rational, in his patriotism or otherwise."

YANKEE'S MEASURE FOR X-RAYS ADOPTED BY FOREIGN EXPERTS

PARIS, July 31.—(AP)—The "X-Ray yardstick," an American device to make use of X-rays and radium safer, was adopted by the Third International Congress of Radiology today.

The device is a portable machine which measures the "dosage" of X-rays accurately. It is an X-ray and radium meter. Its adoption means that for the first time there is a standard unit for use in all countries in measuring short wave radiation.

The importance of this agreement lies in the destructive powers of X-rays and radium, an overdose being as bad as too little, and occasionally even fatal. The meter was developed by Dr. Lauriston H. Taylor, physicist of the United States bureau of standards. He is a delegate to the congress.

The congress adjourned today, selecting Zurich as the place for its next meeting. Prior to adjournment, Dr. Boris Sokoloff of the department of pathology at Washington university medical school, St. Louis, Mo., described a method of treating cancer by subcutaneous injections of lactic acid.

His method was new, he said, and was in the experimental stage as far as human beings were concerned, but had absorbed 30 per cent of cancers and had stopped growth in 70 per cent when used on mice in the most malignant form found in those rodents.

Dr. Sokoloff said mice could be immunized against cancer by similar injections.

ENGAGED

MARIAN E. MASTERSON.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Masterson of 6445 Lakewood avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian Elizabeth, to Bertram L. Metzger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Metzger of 4513 North Ashland avenue. Miss Masterson attended Northwestern university, and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Metzger was graduated from Notre Dame university last February. The wedding is to take place next spring.

U. S. SCIENCE GROUP CONSIDERS MEDIUMS, ETC., BLIND TO FUTURE

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—The Smithsonian institution believes that the future of individuals generally are unpredictable by fortune tellers, spirit mediums, or astrologers.

Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of that institution, has so informed the Society of American Magicians of New York, which is attempting to drive fortune tellers out of New York City.

Julian P. Proskauer, president of the Society of American Magicians, first wrote to Attorney General Mitchell asking a legal decision on the predicability of the future.

The attorney general turned the question over to other officials of the department of justice, who referred Proskauer to the Smithsonian institution.

Dr. Abbot's reply to Proskauer's inquiry was:

"The Smithsonian institution has no evidence which it considers proves that the fortune of individuals can be told by fortune tellers, spirit mediums, or astrologers.

"The institution believes that the fortunes of individuals primarily depend on their own exertion, and secondly on the influence of future environment, and, in general, are unpredictable."

Dr. Abbott said the institution had no especial interest in the matter, but made it a practice to answer all inquiries.

Doris Scores Young Married Women with Boy Friend Fixation

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I love a girl and I KNOW that she loves me. For some unknown reason, obligation perhaps, she married a man she does not love. She still loves me, although she has been married for nearly three months. I cannot give her up, and I have not as yet. For another unknown reason she will not think of getting a divorce, but continuously reassures me that I'm the only one she loves and that she never will love her husband.

"HOWARD P."

Howard, Mr. Barnum had a name for a boy like you. And it wasn't GOAT, although that will serve just as well.

You'd better leave the scene and be quick about it. It's just a goofy boy like you that wakes up some morning with a bullet in his flesh, or an alienation suit on his hands, in which event said lady will swear on a stack that she couldn't get rid of you. You never meant anything to her; only her dear, beloved husband ever mattered.

The lady belongs to a young married clan that is gathering too many new recruits for the good of matrimony. They are known as the Boy Friend Annexers. One good man and true isn't quite conquest enough for the muddle headed sisters. They've got to flaunt a second scalp, or if not flaunt him, have him somewhere in the offing to soothe their twisted sense of male capture.

But they're not worth trifling with, Howard. The minute they sense a loss of the security their marriage supplies them, they duck to cover with all the defense of a wronged, misjudged, and innocent young woman. Keep away from them. Feel sorry enough for the poor devil that's paying their bills to be glad that you escaped the duty.

And while you're at it, consider the bad sportsmanship you exhibit, hanging around another man's wife. You had your chance. You missed. No matter what the girl tells you, she didn't love you enough to marry you, and she did the other man.

The engagement of Miss Marcelle Dorothy Vennema to Windsor DeCrane of Evanston, son of William E. DeCrane of Minneapolis, Minn., has been announced by Miss Vennema's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Vennema of Winnetka.

Americans in London.

LONDON, July 31.—The following Americans registered today at the London bureau of THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE: Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, Rockford, Ill.; Senator Richard J. Barr, Joliet, Ill.; Representative Arthur Adam Huebsch, Brookfield, Ill.; Representative Rollo Robbins, Augusta, Ill.; and Representative Gordon Childers, Normal, Ill.

Chic of Golf Sweater Depends on Its Length

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sweaters this summer are getting younger and younger. They've undergone a highly successful rejuvenation process and are now the youngest garments you ever saw on a grown woman.

The first principle of youth for sweaters, as Paris sees it, is brevity, and the chic of the sweater depends on its length to a great degree. No pullover to be found in the French capital is more than waist length, like the Hermes sweater sketched today and shown. It ends in a ribbed, knitted band exactly at the normal waistline, and to prevent any pull-apart of sweater and skirt the skirt is mounted on a cambric underbodice just like little girls wear with their play suits.

More girlishness is given to this sweater by the short puff sleeves and still more by the buttons down the back from neck to waistline. The sweater actually opens under these buttons so it can be removed without entirely ruining your water wave. The buttoned sweater is the newest sports blouse in Paris, and it is the invention of Hermes.

The yoke and short sleeves of this sweater are knitted with an open lace stitch, and the lower part and overarm bands are knitted with the regulation sweater stitch. Cords of yarn are twisted around the short puff sleeves and around the neck. The one at the neck is tied in a tassel end bow at the back.

The sweater shown is pale baby blue, and it is worn with a box plaited knitted skirt of dark brown. Sweaters in sweet pale colors are extremely fashionable.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover left today for a week-end at their camp on the Rapidan. Among their guests are the secretary of labor and Mrs. Doak, Representative and Mrs. James S. Parker of New York, Representative and Mrs. Free of California, Mr. and Mrs. Will Irwin; E. A. Yost, special examiner of the radio commission, and Mrs Yost (she is vice chairman of the Republican national committee); Mrs. Marie Brown Meloney of New York, editor of the New York Herald-Tribune Sunday magazine; Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona, now chairman of the civil service commission, and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hayden.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Hurley will leave Washington tomorrow on their trip to the Philippines, sailing from San Francisco Aug. 8.

Mrs. Butler and Miss Anne Butler, wife and daughter of Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the Supreme court, are spending a few days at Wardman Park hotel. They came down from their cottage at Blue Ridge Summit, where they are spending the summer.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Young Lady to Avoid.

"Dear Miss Blake: I met a beautiful girl through a friend of mine. Though I have known her but a few weeks she has already told me she loves me and is making plans for our engagement and marriage. What am I to do? JOHN."

She's a fast worker, and is out to "land" her man, John. You'd better sidestep, and at once.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

TURKEYS NEED GREEN FOOD.

Growers of turkeys in large or small flocks in rural and suburban areas find by experience that late summer and early fall often present the peculiar problem of the birds getting crop bound. In some cases the turkeys become gizzard bound.

Prevention, as in many other problems of farming and gardening, is more simple than cure. Crop bound birds can be relieved by opening the crop and removing the contents but the gizzard binding allows no remedy.

As the grass becomes dry or is eaten off, the turkey poult is growing and requires more green feed than previously. His system craves green roughage. He eats long, dry grass and small sticks or dried leaves. This material mats together in the crop or gizzard and stops the passage so that no food gets to the intestine. As a result the turkey starves to death in time.

To prevent this the poultryman can anticipate a shortage of green grass or range by supplying with succulent green food. Patches of rape, swiss chard, cabbage and lettuce are recommended. If the supply of green food becomes short, a moist mash may be fed each day, including in the mash at least 50 per cent alfalfa meal.

Food Talk.

L. E. A. writes: "What is the secret of preparing potatoes so that they come out white, dry, and fluffy? Our cook makes them grayish and dampish."

One secret of making the desirable fluffy white and tasty mashed potato is cleanliness. Cooking utensils, cooking water, and the potatoes themselves should be perfectly clean to give a good true potato color and flavor.

Another secret is to choose potatoes that will mash into a dry white mealy mass, and such potatoes are not always obtainable on the market at the present time. Immature new potatoes are watery and waxy, and no cook in the world can turn out perfect mashed potatoes if new potatoes are her only supply. The starch cells in new potatoes are watery or soggy. New potatoes are all right for stews, salad, French frys, creaming, and escalloping.

For good mashed potatoes one should choose a mature potato and one that when boiled has a dry, white mealy appearance on the outside. Some of the best varieties for mashing are Wisconsin rurals, Pearl, Green mountain, Irish cobblers and Sir Walter Raleigh.

A baking potato, such as the Burbank varieties, may be mashed with success if the cook is extremely careful not to overcook. When a western potato is overcooked it falls apart in the cooking water and the result can only be a watery, bluish, mashed product. A mature waxy potato like Early Rose and Early Ohio will mash but the product will not be white but rather creamy.

Once any potato is boiled tender it should be drained of every drop of water and mashing should proceed without any interruption. The first thing to do is to put hot potatoes through a potato ricer. Rinse the ricer in hot water first, then press the potatoes into a hot bowl or pan. Add the butter and hot rich milk or cream slowly so that the potatoes do not become too wet. Whip and whip. Whipping not only makes the potato fluffy but also white. Only enough liquid should be added to make the product pleasantly moist; it should be stiff enough to stand up in peaks.

Mashed potatoes should be served piled lightly in a hot dish but never patted down. They may even be kept in pretty fair condition for several minutes, not hours, over hot water. This treatment, of course, dries out the potato and it will be necessary to add some hot milk or cream and rewhip to produce the desirable moist, fluffy quality.

CHOCOLATE DROP COOKIES.

2-3 cup sugar
½ cup grated chocolate
1¼ cups flour
¼ teaspoonful salt
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
1 teaspoonful vanilla

Beat the eggs and add the sugar and grated chocolate—do not melt the chocolate. Mix the flour, salt, and baking powder, combine with the first mixture and add the vanilla. Drop by a teaspoonful at a time on a greased baking sheet two inches apart. Put a half walnut in the center of each. Bake in a hot oven [400 degrees Fahrenheit] for 10 minutes.

Yield: 24 cookies.

THE STAGE
BY CHARLES COLLINS.
(In The Tribune, July 27)

CHICAGO'S Rialto may be in the depths of its summer-long sleep, but out on the northwest highway there are shows to be seen.

There is, for example, the Villa Venice, eighteen acres of Elysian lawns and groves on the Milwaukee road near Wheeling. It is presided over by Albert Bouche, who might lay claim to the title of "Ziegfeld of the floor shows"—a man with a fine eye for landscape gardening as well as for chorus girls' costumes. Mr. Bouche calls his place "America's smartest theater restaurant," and there is no reason to smile at the boast. There may be other pretenders to the title, but they lack a river and a fleet of gondolas with which to support the claim.

Three times a night Mr. Bouche's restaurant becomes a theater, offering a program of cosmopolitan entertainment. It differs from the typical floor show of American custom. Its audience is never urged to give this or that little girl a hand. Its performers make their entrances from a stage with a well decorated background, their numbers are carefully "produced," and their performances are crisply and alertly professional in manner. A Bouche revue belongs to the theater arts, not to the realm of "whoopee." It might be added, to trace this individuality to its source, that the host of the Villa Venice is his own stage director.

The program changes with each performance, and those who like to stay up late assert that it gets better as it marches along through the smaller hours. Mr. Bouche's twelve principals are versatile, his wardrobe of costumes is extensive, and his zeal to keep the customers amused is unflagging. If you should sit with Mr. Bouche from nine in the evening until three in the morning, dining or dancing or riding in gondolas between shows, you will have seen the equivalent of a Broadway revue minus the reprehensible sketches.

This summer the Villa Venice is specializing upon a presentation of the languorous, provocative rhumba for its chief chorus number. It has Cuban authenticity, although the little brown-skin girl who rhumbles most effectively comes from China, not Havana.

A Japanese girl, called a princess, illustrates the ceremonial dances of the East Indies. She reminds you of Ruth St. Denis—and also the ill-fated Mata Hari. An adagio team also practices oriental dancing, of the whirling Arabian variety, and Mildred contrives to be the most naked little girl of the year, without giving offense.

And so the Bouche revue brings amusement, with a genuine, unstrained air of sophistication, to the summer night riders. It is a show that compensates for the dullness of the "loop."

"Albert Bouche might lay claim to the title of "Ziegfield of the floor shows"... Bouche's revue belongs to the Theatre arts"....

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Arlington Park Jockey club's successful 30 day racing season comes to a close this afternoon with the running of the richest program ever contested in Chicago. Stake and purse prizes will total about $100,000, with the Futurity and Paddock stakes and the Arlington handicap, each a possible championship event, as the outstanding features.

The Futurity and Paddock for 2 year olds at six furlongs brings the cream of American juvenile racers into action for a gross prize of $51,425. The Arlington handicap purse totals $36,850, and if old Sun Beau, topheavy overnight favorite at 6 to 5, is in front at the end of the mile and a quarter, he will become the world's greatest money winning horse, passing the record established last year by the 3 year old sensation, Gallant Fox.

Winner's Share $28,000.

As Sun Beau lolled in his stall for a good rest last night before he is asked to pack 128 pounds for a mile and a quarter in order to shatter the high money winning record, the standing of the three highest money earners was as follows: Gallant Fox, $328,165; Zev, $313,639; Sun Beau, $310,744.

The winner's share of the Arlington handicap, if the ten named overnight entries go to the post, will be $28,000, which would give Sun Beau, provided he wins it, a grand total of $331,744. Five in a field of ten would have to scratch out to rob Sun Beau of his chance to set a new record. Last night the only doubtful starter appeared to be The Nut, owned by the Warm stable. Trainer Jack Middleton was uncertain about sending out the old son of Mad Hatter.

Sun Beau 6 to 5.

Practically every race goer in Chicago seemed to think last night Sun Beau was going to carry his 128 pounds successfully and at a very fast clip. For they backed him with so much confidence and with so much ready money that he became the 6 to 5 choice. Old Mike Hall, second to Sun Beau in the Arlington Cup a week ago at even weights, but who has a 12 pound advantage today, was the second choice

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Blond 19 year old Jane Weiller of Vernon Ridge played like a veteran campaigner yesterday and defeated June Beebe, 18 year old Olympia fields star, 1 up, for the women's Chicago district golf championship. The match ended on the 21st hole of the thickly trapped Calumet Country club course when Miss Beebe encountered trouble on a water hazard and took a seven while the Northwestern university co-ed scored a five.

Victory in the recent women's western open championship had made Miss Beebe a slight favorite, but she encountered an opponent who proved too steady yesterday. Both girls were at their best. Miss Weiller turning in 80 for 18 holes and Miss Beebe 81. Women's par is 79.

Miss Weiller Dormie 3.

Miss Weiller appeared almost certain to win the match within the prescribed 18 holes when she was dormie three, but the Olympia Fields miss came back to win three successive holes and square the match on the 18th. Miss Beebe continued her brilliant performance, halving the next two holes, but blew up on the 21st. She dubbed her approach shot, which fell into the water, necessitating a penalty, and took a seven, her worst total all day.

Both Miss Beebe and Miss Weiller were nervous on the par five first hole, and halved it in sixes. The second was halved with par fours. June dubbed her tee shot on the third, while Jane, on in four, sank a ten foot putt for a par five. June lost an opportunity of halving the hole by missing a nine foot putt. The fourth was halved with par fives.

June Shoots a Birdie.

June took the fifth with a birdie three and was even up. The sixth was halved in birdie fours. The seventh was won by June with a par four, while Jane had a poor out of a trap and took a five, giving June a one up lead. They halved the eighth with par threes. June lost her advantage on the ninth hole, when she dubbed an approach to the green and took a par five, while Jane was getting a birdie four.

June started to press on the 10th and trapped her drive, had a fair out, and dubbed her third shot to the green. Jane played the hole perfectly and became one up. They then halved the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth. On the 185 yard fourteenth both tee shots landed on the green. Jane sank a long putt for a birdie two, but June two-putted and was two down. Miss Beebe again missed her putt and took a six on the 15th, while Miss Weiller scored a par five and was 3 up and 3 to go.

Jane was in the rough on her drive for the 16th and in the rough on her second, while June laid a drive down the center of the fairway. Jane was short with her third, and June won the hole with a par four. June took a birdie four on the 17th hole. Jane's second short hit a tree, the ball bouncing into the middle of the fairway. Jane took a five on this hole, and was one up.

Misses Short Putt on 18th.

Miss Weiller missed a short putt on the 18th and the match was squared. The 19th and 20th holes were halved in fives. On the 21st, a water hole, Jane's drive landed in a trap. She played out to the edge of the water hole and almost overshot the green in getting over. June looked up on her approach and her ball landed, accompanied by groans from the gallery, into the mud surrounding the water. She picked up and shot the green, with still a chance of halving the hole

Vines Whips Johnny Doeg at Seabright

Seabright, N. J., July 31.—(AP)—Overcoming a lead of two sets, H. Ellsworth Vines Jr., 19 year old Pasadena youngster, scored his second victory of the season over John Hope Doeg of Newark, N. J., national champion, in the final round of the 44th annual Seabright invitation tennis tournament today. The scores were 10-12, 6-8, 6-3, 8-6, 6-1.

The University of Southern California sophomore, who had beaten Doeg in the Longwood Bowl finals two weeks ago, perplexed the champion today with a variety of strokes, many of which were so well placed that Doeg was left stranded, out of striking distance of the ball.

Doeg's slump was just as striking as the suddenness with which Vines returned to top form. At the opening of the third set, Vines started a glittering attack at the net, alternating low volleys with unreturnable smashes. Doeg then softened his shots in an attempt to retard Vines' pace.

The champion's maneuver did not have the desired effect and Vines kept on playing invincibly, scoring points freely with powerfully backhand drives.

The turning point came in the 10th game of the fourth set. At this stage Doeg was leading 5 to 4 in games and won the first two points from Vines' service in the tenth. Employing his powerful backhand stroke, the Pasadena youngster won the next four points to take the game.

RIEL PLAYS FOR MISSISSIPPI NET CROWN TODAY

Iowa City, Ia., July 31.—[Special.]—Bert Riel of Watseka, Ill., Northwestern university tennis captain, will meet Merle Robins of Ames, 1930 Iowa champion, in the finals of the Mississippi valley tennis tournament here tomorrow. Riel won from Bob Conrad, Burlington, former Hawkeye star, in the quarter-finals, and went into the finals by defeating George Struble of Toledo, 6-0, 6-4.

Robins, who showed signs of weakening after four strenuous matches Thursday, returned today to take two easy victories from Walter Theiss, Cedar Rapids, 6-0, 6-2, and Bob Chaffee, Chicago, 6-0, 6-2.

Cochet, Premier French Net Star, to Become Pro

PARIS, July 31.—[Special.]—Henri Cochet, premier amateur tennis player of the world who virtually alone carried France to victory in the Davis cup matches this year, intends to become a professional player on or about Sept. 15. He made this revelation to friends of his in Paris today, following careful consideration.

While details of Cochet's plans have not been definitely announced, it is reported that in a few days the French ace intends to sign with Jack Curley, New York wrestling promoter, for a tennis tour of France with Big Bill Tilden, Vinnie Richards and possibly Karel Kozeluh, the "Big Three" of professional tennis at present. Tilden, at least, is scheduled to appear in matches in France during the latter part of September.

There have been repeated rumors that Cochet would soon quit the amateur ranks. Immediately following his brilliant victories over the Englishmen, H. W. Austin and Fred Perry in the Davis cup challenge round, friends of the tennis star said he had decided to announce his intentions regarding professionalism within a fortnight. At that time, it was said, pressure was being brought to have him maintain his amateur standing.

Cochet's decision to delay deserting the amateur ranks until September was said to be due to his desire to carry out agreements already made to participate in several amateur tournaments.

Cochet has one of the most brilliant careers among amateur tennis players. He began playing at the age of seven at Lyons, France, where his father supervised a tennis club, and now, at the age of thirty, he is acknowledged the best player in the amateur ranks.

He first gained national recognition when he won the regional tennis championship in 1921. He has scored victories over Tilden in 1928, 1929, and 1930, but lost to Big Bill in the 1927 Davis cup matches. In the 1927 battle he gave the Davis cup to France for the first time in many years when he trounced the then fading Bill Johnston.

Rodee Captures Wisconsin State Golf Championship

Milwaukee, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—Roger Rodee, 23 year old Milwaukee golfer, today won the Wisconsin amateur golf championship. He defeated Eddie Lehman, Racine, 3 up and 1 to play in the final match.

STADIUM CLAIMS CANZONERI WILL RISK TITLE HERE

Agrees to Box Chocolate and Petrolle.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—A championship fight between Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champoin, and Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight titleholder, may take place in Chicago about Sept. 10, according to Nate Lewis, Chicago Stadium matchmaker, here making arrangements for the match.

Lewis today said he has reached agreement with Sammy Goldman, manager of Canzoneri, and Louis Guitterez, Chocolate's manager, and that they have verbally accepted his terms. Both men agreed to take a percentage of the gate.

Goldman Assures Lewis.

Lewis issued his statement in the face of an announcement by Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, that the Garden had signed Canzoneri and Chocolate for the Yankee Stadium here on Sept. 5. Lewis said Goldman assured him he has not signed with the Garden.

"Goldman told me Canzoneri is anxious to fight in Chicago, and he has verbally accepted my terms for the match," Lewis said today. "Canzoneri could make 130 pounds thereby putting both the lightweight and junior lightweight titles in the balance, but he is willing to go in at 135 pounds in order that Chocolate may not jeapordize his crown. Guitterez, who is in Cuba to get his boxer out of legal difficulties, has promised to let me know by Monday whether Chocolate will be able to fight on or about Sept. 10."

Tony May Box Thompson.

Kid Chocolate's "legal difficulties" are said to concern a breach of promise action brought by a Cuban girl. The girl had the fighter placed in a Havana jail.

Lewis said he also has a verbal acceptance of terms from Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle. Petrolle is willing to fight Canzoneri late in September, Lewis said, but is not certain about making 135 pounds. Canzoneri, however, is willing to meet the westerner at any weight if Petrolle will fight for the junior welterweight title.

Canzoneri, through his manager, also has agreed to fight Jack Thompson, the welterweight champion. Lewis said, and it is not impossible that this bout as well as the Kid Chocolate scrap, will be staged in Chicago late in the summer.

JUDGE UPHOLDS PLAYER'S RIGHT TO PUNCH UMPIRE

Atlanta, Ga., July 31.—(AP)—The inherent characteristic a baseball player "to relieve pent-up emotions every now and then at the expense of some umpire" was judicially recognized here today by City Recorder John L. Cone.

The recorder delivered the opinion in dismissing disorderly conduct charges filed against Johnny Dobbs, manager of the Atlanta Crackers, after he had hung a right cross on the chin of Umpire Ed Goes in a dispute during Atlanta's first night baseball game, May 25.

Singer Placed on Shelf; Fails to Keep Ring Date

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The New York boxing commission today placed Al Singer on the ineligible list for his failure to meet Eddie [Cannonball] Martin at the Coney Island Stadium tonight. Singer reported ill and will not be able to meet any other opponent before filling his engagement at the seashore arena with the former bantamweight champion.

Star Etawah Sets World Record for Night Racing

Toledo, O., July 31.—(AP)—Star Etawah, driven by Sep Palin, established a new world's record for night pacing by stepping a mile in 1:59¾ in a match race with Winnipeg, driven by Erskine, here tonight at the Fort Miami race track. Winnipeg is the world's champion pacing gelding, having taken a record of 1:57¼ on the local track.

Why Not Handicap Macks as They Do to Race Horses?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—There is talk again to the effect that Connie Mack, having assembled a ball club altogether too good for his seven competitors in the American league, will disband the team at the end of the present term as he scattered that other great team of his before the war and start all over. Perfection has become monotonous to the Philadelphia customers who cannot arrange themselves over the routine confirmation of foreordained results, and the management, in consequence, appears to be paying a price in loss of revenue for having built not wisely but too well.

CONNIE MACK.

As the team has improved, the pay roll has grown, but the receipts have not grown in proportion. The same management once before, in similar circumstances, preferred profits or, at any rate, smaller losses, to pure artistic satisfaction. The star players, too, might be able to improve their fortunes if the team were dispersed because, scattered among a number of other clubs, they might command higher wages than Mr. Mack could pay the lot of them out of one treasury.

Illusion of Competition.

Sport is the only pursuit in which the best, becoming too good for their inferiors, handicap themselves a certain number of strokes, goals, pounds, or seconds to make the others seem better and, by this illusion of competition, stimulate interest and in some cases receipts. The rule of the survival of the fittest is honored in the breach when a golfer who cannot tour a course in fewer than a hundred strokes is awarded a discount of 30 per cent and deemed to have played his round in 70 and to have beaten a man with a gross score of, say, 75.

In business, it would be as fair to demote the president of a firm to the rank of office boy or promote the boy to the rank of president on the ground that the boy wasn't as good as the president. Nor is the grocer who runs the best and most prosperous store in town compelled to close his shop five days a week or let his stock run down to make things approximately even for some drowsy competitor down by the tracks.

No Better Way Devised.

The handicap system in sport is a transparent bit of foolishness, but no better way has been devised to make the best look like the worst. And, because it would be a shame to scatter Mr. Mack's excellent ball club, I suggest that the Athletics agree to spot the others teams a number of games at the start of the season of 1932. On the basis of their record thus far this year, the season being two-thirds over, they could agree to spot the Washington club a handicap of, possibly, three games and the Yankees a game and a half.

They have beaten the Indians 12 games to three up to now, so a handicap of 8 games would be just about right in this case. Their score with the Browns is only 9 to 5, so they couldn't be as generous to them, but Boston would deserve the same handicap as Cleveland. As to the White Sox and the Tigers, whom they have beaten 13 to 2 and 14 to 2 thus far, possibly the Athletics could afford to be large about the adjustment and concede each of these clubs at least an even break to start.

Victory for Undeserving.

Of course, a contest under these handicaps might confer the victory on an undeserving ball club, but that would be nothing unusual under the handicap system. A horse which runs a race with a load of pigiron in his saddle to lose by a whisker or, more accurately by a half an ounce of freight, is nevertheless a better horse on the hoof than the one that beats him and the defeat is only technical.

In theory it is deplorable that such kind concessions should be made for the benefit of the inferior sort of competitors, for the spirit of the plan is hostile to ambition. Why be good at a sporting game if by some elaborate system of handicapping the worst dub in the game is made to seem just as good or the champion as awful as the dub? But when a ball club is so much better than its theoretical peers in the league that it wins 17 out of 18 games and leads the nearest challenger by a dozen games on Aug. 1, art comes into conflict with the dollar.

A perfect ball club is necessarily an expensive ball club, and it may be too good for its own good at the box offices. In that case, the magnates being in business for the same reason that animates the rest of us, it becomes advisable to do something to revive competition and trade.

It's a Strange Business.

It is a strange business. Twice old Mr. Mack has pondered long years over his jig saw puzzle, fitting a foot here, an ear there until he had the difficult pattern beautifully put together. And once before, having done so, he found that people after their first enthusiasm were saying, "Yes; it's a hard trick, but can you do it again?" So he scrambled the pieces, got another puzzle and did it again, and now the customers have been yawning, "Well, well; so you did."

TWO CHICAGOANS WIN KENTUCKY TENNIS MATCHES

Louisville, Ky., July 31.—(AP)—The singles tennis championship of Kentucky is destined to leave the state for another year. All three remaining Louisvillians were eliminated in the quarter-final round of the Kentucky state tennis tournament.

Chicago, with two survivors for the semi-finals, has the best chance to carry off the title. George Jennings, Chicago, seeded No. 2, will meet Bob Bryan, Chattanooga, seeded No. 3; and George O'Connell, Chicago, No. 4, will play Dan Barr, Dallas, Tex., No. 5, tomorrow. Today's quarter-final results:

Jennings defeated Arnold Simons, Louisville, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2; Bryan defeated Julius Sagalowski, Indianapolis, 6-3, 6-3; O'Connell defeated Ed Pfeiffer, Louisville, 8-10, 7-5, 6-2, and Barr defeated Clarke Kaye, Louisville, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

The four top seeded doubles teams survived for the semi-finals tomorrow. Jennings and O'Connell will play Bryan and Barr, and Simons and Pfeiffer will play Kemdall Cram of Nashville and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Ga.

Pennsylvania Woman Wins Virginia Net Singles Title

Hot Springs, Va., July 31.—(AP)—Mrs. De Lloyd Thompson of Washington, Pa., won the women's singles championship in the Virginia state open tennis tournament today for the second successive year by defeating Miss Mary Bartlett Biggs of Baltimore, Md.

BABE BECOMES FIREMAN WHEN AWNING BURNS

Boston, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—Babe Ruth turned fireman today, wielding a pitcher of ice water to douse an awning fire two floors below his hotel room.

He was entertaining Charlie Ruffing, Yankee pitcher, and Arthur Crowley, son of Boston's superintendent of police, when he smelled smoke. He ran to the rescue with the water pitcher. With unerring aim, he cast the water directly on the flames and, after pouring several refills from the bathtub, extinguished them.

As the Babe played his fireman's rôle, Ruffing notified the hotel management and porters were rushed to the scene to aid him. The blaze attracted many passersby, who gave the Babe a lusty cheer.

"I only hope," said the Babe, after taking a bow graciously from the window and turning to his guests, "that none of you guys were throwing cigar butts out of my window." "You were the only one smoking in this room," Ruffing pointed out. "Well," Babe thoughtfully replied, "then let's say no more about it."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 31.—There were no flaws in the Cubs' attack today. Neither was there anything inadequate about the pitching supplied by Guy Bush. The bronzed Mississippian in achieving his ninth victory of the campaign was extremely stingy with hits, but his mates literally blasted three St. Louis moundmen out of the picture, thereby romping to an easy 10 to 3 triumph. The favorable decision restored the Chicagoans to second place, but they are still eight and one-half games behind the Cardinals.

Responsibility for reviving the Cubs waning art of hitting rested with Danny Taylor, who was returned as a regular in Vin Barton's place. Dan celebrated in fitting fashion. He started off with a single. His next two efforts were triples. Then he walked, stole, and walked again to complete a perfect day.

Rout Hallahan First.

Wild Bill Hallahan was assigned to humiliate the Cubs and it didn't take him long to learn he had grabbed a lion by the tail. D. Taylor started the attack on him and it became two runs in the second inning. The same D. Taylor finished him by completing a three run rally in the third with the first of his two triples. Then Allyn Stout was summoned, and two runs in the fifth, D. Taylor again being involved, made another change advisable. That gave Tony Kaufman a chance against his old companions but they displayed no sentiment. They kept him busy by scoring three runs one at a time, in the last four innings.

The excessive heat and his labors wilted Bush a bit toward the finish. For five innings he choked the Cards off with two singles, one a scratch in the sixth. The bothersome Jim Collins took hold of one and hoisted it out of the park. Then the champions began to collect hits rapidly, but none did any damage until two of them were coupled with a pass in the ninth by dint of which the titleholders finished with a meaningless flourish of two runs.

Malone Saved for Today.

Pat Malone was supposed to operate today but at the last minute Hornsby decided to turn over the job to Bush. Thus both Malone and Root are available for tomorrow when the same teams resume their series at Wrigley field. Sylvester Johnson is the Cards' selection, with Derringer in reserve.

The Cubs required four hits to get two runs in the second inning. Dan

AUTUMN BELLS WINS FOR WEST IN STEEPLECHASE

Parke Up in Arlington 2 Mile Test.

The west scored one of its few steeplechase victories of the Arlington season when Autumn Bells, carrying the claret and white jacket of James Simpson Jr., was an easy winner of the deep run chase yesterday. The 11 year old son of Ballot won handily from Proof Positive, with Hillock third.

Ivan Parke guided Autumn Bells over the trying two mile course in masterly fashion and demonstrated again that he is the best cross country rider to show at Arlington this season. Queen's Pal, another of young Mr. Simpson's jumpers, was a running companion of Autumn Bells but went down in a spill just about the time the race was half finished. Autumn Bells was a prohibitive favorite, paying $2.82 in the two dollar mutuels.

Jack Whyte, trainer of Sun Beau, is very confident the Willis Sharp Kilmer veteran will win the Arlington handicap. "If track conditions do not change, it won't surprise me if Sun Beau runs a faster mile and a quarter than he did a week ago," Price told some of his cronies.

Sun Beau broke the track record last Saturday when he rolled home to to an Arlington Cup victory in 2:01 4-5.

The best race on yesterday's Arlington program was the Waucondа purse, and Newgro, owned by Miss Pendergast, was the winner. He beat Jambalaya, a Post and Paddock candidate, by two lengths, but the latter was gaining steadily in the final strides of the 5½ furlong dash. Newgro paid $9.12 in the mutuels.

Volta Maid, which had smashed a track record when she won the first race of her career earlier in the week, was nowhere at the finish after making most of the early pace. She quit when Newgro came alongside at the head of the stretch. When she broke the track record she was far in front all the way.

Old Celtic Prince, the sprinter in the stable of Ben Jones of Missouri, surely likes the Arlington running strip. He made his third start of the Arlington meeting yesterday and scored his second victory. In with a band of ten track sizzlers, he came from behind and beat Black Comet without much effort. The crowd didn't regard him highly, as he paid $18.28 in the mutuels. He ran his six furlongs in 1:12 2-5.

The violet and blue jacket of Fred Grabner of Chicago, made famous a few seasons ago by his powerful racers, Chicago and Windy City, was brought back into some prominence yesterday by his 3 year old filly, Chicago Girl. The daughter of Ladkin-Regetta scored her second straight triumph when she beat the Audley Farm stable's Annie Ree by a neck in a thrilling finish. Matadi landed third. Chicago Girl had her backers and was at $7.04 in the mutuels.

As the field paraded to the post in the race Black Bull acted somewhat like a contrary donkey and wound up by tossing his jockel, Charley Landolt, over the outer fence into the meadow. It caused a delay of some 15 minutes while Jockey Hanford was recruited to ride the unruly Black Bull, which eventually finished in fourth place.

The crowd gave a big cheer when Pellegrino won the mile and a furlong sixth race. Just why the cheer no one seems to know, for not many were holding tickets on him. He paid $51.96 in the two dollar speculation. He won rather handily from Battling On and the favorite, Grand Prince.

PURDUE TO OPEN SALE OF GRIDIRON TICKETS TODAY

Lafayette, Ind., July 31.—[Special.]—Purdue's football ticket sales campaign will be officially launched tomorrow morning when the first applications for seats for the coming season will be received, it was announced tonight by C. S. Doan, manager of ticket sales. More than 15,000 application blanks were mailed out today to alumni and regular patrons of Purdue games and an unusually heavy early demand for seats is anticipated.

With a home game schedule that brings Coe and Western Reserve into the Ross-Ade stadium for the season's opener on Oct. 3 and Illinois scheduled here for the first time since 1919 in the Dad's day feature on Oct. 10, early ticket sales are expected to be stimulated. In addition to these two games, the Boilermakers, champions in 1929 and runners-up last year, will entertain Centenary here on Nov. 7 and then meet Iowa in the home coming game here Nov. 14.

WILEY, LOYOLA CHAMP, FAVORED IN A. A. U. MEET

Robert Wiley, bantamweight champion of Loyola university, will be one of the favorites in that division in the annual Central A. A. U. outdoor boxing championships at Northwest stadium, Irving Park boulevard and Milwaukee avenue, on Aug. 25, 26, and 27.

Wiley, who has won three firsts in intercollegiate meets, is now training at Loyola gymnasium.

Two other strong teams will compete, it became known yesterday when Thomas J. Bowler made arrangements to enter a group from the northwest side, while Charles V. Barrett will send an aggregation from the southwest section. Entries also are coming in from many points in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. The tournament is sponsored by the Post Health club and directed by Charles Lavine.

Opponent Cleared by Jury in Boxer Huspeth's Death

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 31.—[Special.]—Bert Lane, opponent of Wilfred Hudspeth, who died of injuries received in a boxing bout here, was cleared of criminal liability at an inquest held today. The coroner's jury held that the blow or fall which caused the injury was accidental.

SETS SEPT. 23 FOR SHARKEY, CARNERA BOUT

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—James J. Johnston, Brooklyn promoter, today announced Sept. 23 as the definite date of the 15 round Primo Carnera-Jack Sharkey bout at Ebbets field. Johnston said he had abandoned plans for a meeting of Sharkey and Tommy Loughran in August.

If the Madison Square Garden corporation interferes with Carnera again, as it did when Johnston attempted to use him in a show in June, Loughran will be substituted as Sharkey's opponent, according to Johnston. The promoter's plans were for Sharkey and Loughran to meet in August, but Sharkey has informed him he will be unable to box until September, owing to an injury to his left hand suffered in the Mickey Walker bout.

Schaaf-Campolo Fight on Aug. 27 Given O. K.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The New York State Athletic commission enhanced the break between Madison Square Garden and Jimmy Johnston, Brooklyn promoter, today by not only sanctioning the 15 round bout between Ernie Schaaf and Vittorio Campolo, but also permitting the bout on Thursday, Aug. 27, when the Garden also has a show booked. It is the regular Garden date.

WESTY'S QUEEN set the pace, but tired. ROSE TWIG was on the outside all the way and showed a creditable effort. STIMALA could not keep up.

PROOF POSITIVE showed improvement in his jumping and, while not comparable to that of beating the winner, finished far in front of HILLOCK, content to trail the field throughout. SPORTY McGEE'S rider lost his stirrup iron going over the third jump and the gelding ran out at the fourth fence.

PHILLIP displayed most early speed and would have finished closer up but could not resist the winner, meeting with considerable interference from the final quarter. SEIBOLD PITCHES BRAVES TO 4 TO 2 WIN OVER GIANTS

Holds New York to 6 Hits in 13 Innings.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Dick Seibold was a great pitcher for thirteen innings today as the Braves downed the New York Giants, 4 to 2. The Giants could gather only six hits off Seibold and not a one of them walked.

Red Worthington was the keystone of Boston's offensive. The youthful outfielder tied the count at 1 all in the seventh with a home run and then came through in the thirteenth with a double with two on to drive home the winning run. An intentional pass from John Berly and a hit batsman forced the fourth run over the plate. Chuck Fullis' home run in the fourth inning was the only hit off Seibold until the eighth. Score:

ROBINS BEAT PHILS, 6 TO 4.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 31.—[Special.]—Babe Herman's double with two on in the ninth inning enabled the Robins to win today's game from the Phillies, 6 to 4. Stuart Bolen, Philly left hander, who had just relieved Clive Dudley, was the pitcher at the time.

Dudley, who allowed fourteen hits, left runners on first and third when he retired. Herman's double scored Johnny Frederick with the winning run, and Del Bissonette, who had reached third on the hit, scored shortly afterward on Lefty O'Doul's fly.

Dazzy Vance, who started for the Robins, was relieved by Heimach in the fifth, after the first two batters had hit. Vance injured his pitching hand while at bat in the third inning.

BABE RUTH'S 2 DOUBLES GIVE YANKS 4-1 WIN

Boston, Mass., July 31.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth came through with a pair of doubles at opportune moments today to give the New York Yankees a 4 to 1 victory over the Red Sox. The game opened a series of seven.

Babe first rallied to the cause in the fifth with the score tied at 1-all, when his two base drive scored two runs. In the eighth he led off with a double, scampered to third on an infield play and scored on Benny Chapman's long fly.

Vernon Gomez, although a trifle wild, had an edge on the hill on Danny MacFayden. Gomez walked six Yanks, but he was touched for only five hits and struck out nine. The Red Sox filled the bases in the ninth with one out, but Gomez fanned Ruel, and Rothrock hit into a force-out. Score:

Bush Receives Clippings, but Nary a Hurler

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—Detroit is tense with excitement. The White Sox are here and tomorrow the crucial series for last place in the American league will begin.

Manager Donie Bush of the Chicago team has his three pitchers all partly rested and it is said that Manager Bucky Harris also has some pitchers. The carnival spirit is everywhere.

Manager Harris was keeping his pitching selection secret, probably taking a leaf from the book of Connie Mack, who started Howard Ehmke in the world series that time. Manager Bush is practicing no such guile. He has come right out with the announcement that he will start with Vic Frasier, use Tommy Thomas in the second game and Red Faber in the third game and Pat Caraway in all three, if necessary. For the fourth game he will toss a coin. If there are no coins in the gate receipts, he will use a personal coin, 'tis said.

A Fan or Two Will Attend.

But there will be some money at the gate. It is reported that President Frank Navin of the Detroit club has about fifty old fans who can be absolutely counted upon to attend at least one game out of a series.

It was reported that when Manager Bush arrived here with his brave little band, a bale of newspaper clippings was awaiting him. Some of these were highly amusing interviews purporting to show how Mr. Comiskey has been pouring out gold to give Chicago its first top division ball in eleven years. One paper, which caused a great deal of merriment, listed players for whom Mr. Comiskey is reported to have let loose of $200,000. The list included, with three exceptions, names of players quoted on the today's market at $3.98 a head.

A half hour after his arrival Manager Bush was receiving old friends, in this the scene of his triumphs as an active player. It was said that Bush was beset with inquiries about his status with the Comiskey outfit and there were whisperings that Donie is wanted here next year in case Manager Harris decides to resign.

Donie Will Stick.

Bush declined to discuss with reporters his relations with Comiskey or his plans for next year.

"All I know is that I'll finish this season with the White Sox unless they run me off the job," Bush said. "I left the Pittsburgh club during the season, but it was a good ball club and a strong contender for the pennant. I would consider myself a cold quitter if I resigned from a club while it was fighting to keep out of the cellar."

Bush's friends here say that he has made no comment on the White Sox abandonment of scouting plans of an organized character and has denied any clash with Comiskey on his "remote control" baseball system.

AMERICANS WIN ONLY 2 EVENTS IN OSLO MEET

OSLO, Norway, July 31.—(AP)—America's touring athletes could capture only two events out of six against Norwegian stars tonight.

Oscar Sutermeister of Harvard won the pole vault at 11 feet 8 inches, and the American team won the 1,000 meter relay in 2:00, but the Norwegians took the other four events. Ulleberg won the 200 meters in 22 6-10 seconds, with Karl Warner of Yale second in 22 7-10 and Harold L. Fates, Yale, third in 22 8-10. Johannesen covered the 880 meters in 1:54 6-10 with Dave Cobb of Harvard second in 1:55 7-10.

Silverstsen, Norwegian weight man, won the shot put with a toss of 46 feet 6 43-128 inches with Joe Crowley of Yale second with 46 feet 3 37-164 inches. Crowley finished third in the discus with a throw of 145 feet 1 39-128 inches, compared to Askildt's winning throw of 152 feet 3 77-128 inches.

Cubs Defeat Cards; Regain Second Place

Taylor opened this attack with a single to center. Hornsby bunted to Collins, but Frisch was so slow covering first that Rogers beat the throw for a hit. Hack hit one squarely, but Orsatti captured it. Grimm singled to right to score Taylor. Hartnett singled to the same spot and Hornsby scored.

Cuyler Starts Attack.

The third didn't start as if the Cubs were intent on scoring when Blair, the first man up, struck out. But English tripled to center and the party got under way immediately. He scored on Cuyler's double off the right field screen. Dan Taylor's second hit was a triple to center, Cuyler scoring and Hallahan resigning in favor of Stout. Taylor then scored while Adams was throwing out Hornsby.

Mr. Bush's early pitching exploits were not complicated. Hafey got the first Cardinal hit of the engagement, a single to center, in the fourth. This hit made possible a double play on Orsatti's tap to Bush.

Cuyler's single through short, with one out, set the stage for two Cub runs in the fifth. Dan Taylor drove in Cuyler with his third successive hit, another triple, this time off the left field wall. It was only a few feet shy of being a home run. Stout walked Hornsby then Hack uncorked another line drive which Orsatti grabbed, but the effort was of some value because Taylor scored after the catch.

Kaufmann "Stops" Taylor.

Jim Wilson opened the fifth inning with the Card's second hit. It was a grounder Horsby should have picked up. Bush had no trouble with the next three men. Then the Cubs added a run in the sixth off Kaufmann. Hartnett singled and Bush bunted, but Kaufmann fumbled and both were safe. Hartnett worked around to the plate on two infield outs. This was followed by Collins' homer over the right field stand after two were out in the home sixth.

Having witnessed D. Taylor's three hits, Kaufmann walked him in the seventh. Danny immediately stole second. He remained there while Hornsby and Hack flied out. Grimm then produced his second hit and Taylor scored.

Bush Gets His Hit.

Bush would count that day a total loss in which he did not get a hit, so he went to extremes by leading off in the eighth with a bunt to Adams, which he beat out. Blair flied out, but English singled. Cuyler also singled to score Bush. Kaufmann dodged more trouble by catching English off second base.

The Cards' sixth hit was a single by Hafey in the eighth inning. Two more produced their pair of runs in the ninth. Gonzales singled to center, Gelbert walked, and Bottomley, batting for Kaufman, filled the bases with a single. Gonzales scored while Blair was tossing out Adams, and Gelbert scored on Watkins' fly to Cuyler. Flowers hoisted to Wilson for the final out.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ARLINGTON PARK.

ARLINGTON PARK will end its 30 day race meet this afternoon with the Arlington Handicap and Post and Paddock stakes as features of the card. In the former, Sun Beau, perhaps on his way to become the biggest money winner of all times, will pick up 128 pounds and attempt to outfoot over a mile and a quarter route these other handicap nags he has beaten at lesser difference in weight.

In the Post and Paddock, the winner, if his victory be impressive, will carry to Saratoga the prestige such a performance gives. At the spa he will defend his honors in the 2 year old stakes, which are features of the August meeting. These, in turn, lead up to the Belmont Futurity, Pimlico Futurity, and Kentucky Jockey club stakes. From those races emerge either a standout champion, or a series of arguments to carry over to the Kentucky Derby and Preakness of 1932.

Considering business conditions, Arlington has made a remarkable showing both in attendance and volume of mutuel play. The surplus for the season to go back into improvements, and perhaps additional stake and purse money, will be about half what it was last season, according to official estimates. That is considered highly satisfactory by the gentlemen sportsmen sponsoring the track.

Two incidents, one of racing and one of goodwill, stand out among the events of the five weeks' meeting. The first was the dethroning of Twenty Grand as 3 year old champion by Mate in the Classic. The other was a voluntary refund to bettors—a refund not called for by the rules—from the association treasury for wagers made on Ironsides, whose jockey refused to ride after the horse was in the hands of the starter and the field was dispatched without Ironsides. This refund is said to have cost about $10,000.

All things considered, Arlington Park has proved that Chicago appreciates and will patronize the highest class racing either in good times or in bad times.

For it's gone from bad to worse.
And it's to the St. Looie Cardinals
That I pen this metered verse.

The Brooklyn Robins may be hard,
And the Cubs a litle tough,
But when it comes to playing ball,
The Cardinals call their bluff.

And New York is over rated,
As is Boston and her beans,
And if you could only see the Cards,

GRIGSBY FIRM REPORTS LOSS OF $2,169,761

Compares with Profit in Previous Fiscal Year.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Grigsby-Grunow company last night made public its report for the fiscal year ended May 31 and a balance sheet showing the financial position of the firm at the close of the period.

The company showed a net loss for the year of $2,169,761, which compares with a net profit in the previous fiscal year of $1,745,648 or $7 cents a share on the common stock outstanding at that time. The report includes the operation of Majestic Household Utilities corporation from March 11, 1931, the date of acquisition. From the date of acquisition of its affiliate until the close of the year the company operated on a profitable basis showing net income of $112,374, the company reports.

Cites Non-Recurring Charges.

B. J. Grigsby, president and chairman of the board, said in making public the report that the loss sustained during the year included non-recurring charges aggregating $2,020,388. These charges included $981,571 for reduction in prices of tubes sold to dealers, $519,520 for amortization of licenses, patents and tube developments and $519,296 for settlement of patent litigation and cancellations of certain commitments made by the company.

The current financial position showed improvement. Total current assets, including cash of $2,364,655, amounted to $17,998,841 at the close of the year as compared with current liabilities of $2,964,820. The company had no bank loans outstanding at the end of the period. At the close of the preceding year the firm had cash of $936,850 and bank loans of approximately $1,000,000.

The company's distributors and dealers yesterday closed a two day convention at the Congress hotel. Mr. Grigsby announced that the firm would add several products to its line within the next year.

CHICAGO STOCKS UNEVEN

Price movements on the Chicago exchange were irregular with trading continuing at moderately active gate. Grigsby was dull and unchanged. United States Radio and Television was again the market leader, adding a point to its previous closing quotation on a volume of sales totaling 21,000 shares. Slight improvement was made in a few miscellaneous shares, but the gains and losses were about evenly divided for the day.

400 MILLIONS IN BOND INTEREST, DIVIDENDS DUE

August's Payments Make Tidy Sum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—Although Aug. 1 is an off date for dividends, upward of 300 issues of common and preferred stocks will pay returns to shareholders tomorrow.

These payments, coupled with other dividends later in the month and interest on corporation bonds due on and after Aug. 1, will bring the total disbursements next month to investors up to approximately $400,000,000. In addition to those disbursements the treasury department will sell a new issue of bills to refund one falling due Aug. 5. Maturities of corporation and foreign bonds which will be paid off in August will account for an additional sum estimated at $59,728,740.

Taking into account all of the various items to be settled, the turnover in August will reach a sum of approximately $525,000,000. That, however, will be materially smaller than the turnover in August, 1930, which was expanded beyond normal proportions by subscriptions to a new issue of American Telephone and Telegraph stock which was offered to stockholders for subscription. No such offering is being made next month.

Among Payments Due.

Payments will be made tomorrow on stocks of every type of corporation, including banks, trust companies, insurance companies, railroad, industrial, and public utility companies, as well as investment trusts. While the list includes few of the great corporations of the country, it carries some well known names.

Among the companies which will make payments on their common stocks are Allied Chemical and Dye, $3.50 a share; New York Central Railroad, $1.50; Northern Pacific Railway, $1.50; Southern Railway, $1.65; Sears, Roebuck & Co., 62½ cents; General Cigar, $1; Sherwin-Williams, $1; Gold Dust, 62½ cents; Loose-Wiles Biscuit, 50 cents regular and 10 cents a share extra; Cerro de Pasco, 25 cents, and Columbian Carbon, $1.25.

Comment to Withdraw Funds.

Treasury operations, while on a far smaller scale than witnessed at quarterly settlements, will reach a fair total. The government maturity due Aug. 5 amounts to $600,000,000. The new issue of bills offered to refund that maturity is equally large. Pending payment of subscriptions to the new bill offering the treasury has issued two calls for government funds held on deposit by member banks. The government will withdraw $11,000,000 on next Monday and an equal amount next Tuesday, or $22,560,000 altogether, a sum sufficiently large as to offer possibilities of a slight disturbance in the money market but not the abnormally small demand for credit at this time.

Maturities of corporations next month are estimated at $56,043,740 while foreign maturities total about $2,000,000. The loans falling due consist for the most part of small issues of notes or bonds. The only issue of any large amount falling due is that of $15,000,000 General Gas and Electric serial 4½ per cent bonds. Altogether maturities of public utility companies amount to a total of $11,111,290. Industrial maturities account for an additional $23,851,500, made up of small items.

Lowers Dividend.

Directors of International Safety Razor today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the class B stock, compared with a quarterly dividend of 50 cents paid in the preceding quarter and an extra of 25 cents a share in the fourth quarter.

Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance company declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ a share on the capital stock, as compared with $7 quarterly previously paid.

Southwest Gas Utilities corporation omitted the dividend of $1.62½ quarterly due on its preferred.

The London, Midland and Scottish railway voted to pass its interim dividend payment. The company is one of the largest railroads in England. Receipts for the first half year decreased £3,000,000.

The quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the stock of Morse Twist Drill and Machine company due at this time has been omitted.

Directors of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company declared the fourth quarterly dividend of the year on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, series A, amounting to $1.50 a share. The dividend is payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 20.

Distinction Made Between Different Co-operatives

BY SCRUTATOR.

When a word describing an economic or social movement becomes a slogan or fetish the time has arrived to define it.

What, then, is a coöperative, and wherein does it differ from a corporation?

In attempting to answer that one immediately finds that the word "coöperative" is "a sad example of that curious perversion to which words are subject when they become too popular."

Coöperation has been defined as an organized attempt by an association of individuals to control the production and distribution of commodities for the satisfaction of their wants.

Masquerade Under Term.

But also masquerading under the term are organizations of workers producing goods not for themselves but for the general trade and likewise farmers' associations designed to market the producers' goods in such a way as to return to the producer the greatest possible share of the consumers' dollar.

The kind of coöperative depends on whose it is. The consumer's coöperative is owned by an association of customers, charges standard prices, pays a nominal return on invested capital, and periodically splits profits among consumer owners on the basis of the amount of goods bought.

Is Labor Proposition.

The "producers' coöperative" is strictly a labor proposition, the workers owning and operating a plant and competing with other companies in selling goods for as much profit as possible. Such experiments have been largely failures, due to insufficient capital, inability to meet the demands of the market, lack of proper management, and a tendency toward transforming them into ordinary joint stock companies when they begin to make money.

The farm coöperative is a mutualized corporation. Residual benefits go to member patrons rather than to stockholders, but the contact between the coöperative and the individual member is so remote that the latter is hardly conscious of direct participation.

There is no fundamental structural difference between the coöperative and the corporation. Both are associations of people and property for purposes of production and distribution.

Management More Restricted.

The degree of integration of property and credit is usually less in a coöperative and management is more restricted. To overcome this handicap it has to foster an esprit de corps among its members. It is a half and half affair, partaking of the functions of an ordinary corporation and depending on a labor union psychology.

Coöperatives have officers and directors. Their capital setup includes stock and sometimes bonds. They pay dividends. They frequently have subsidiaries, thereby elevating them to the grade of holding companies. The general counsel for the federal farm board in a recent address at Manhattan, Kas., declared that subsidiaries for receiving and handling may be justified in order to bring in capital through preferred stock, bonds, or debentures, thereby relieving the coöperative of direct obligation. Many consumers' coöperatives own wholesale and producing enterprises.

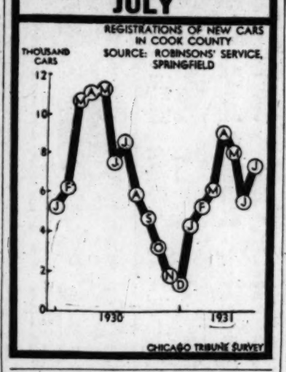
Both Eye Middleman's Profit.

The consumers' coöperative and the farmers coöperative both seek to dip into the middleman's profit. But one wants it for the buyer and the other for the seller.

This remark by Dr. Warbasse in his book, "Coöperative Democracy," is illuminating:

"The ultimate aim of the coöperative consumers' movement should be to purchase the land from the farmer and employ the latter as an agricultural worker."

AUTOMOBILE SALES IN COOK COUNTY INCREASED SHARPLY DURING JULY



STOCKS OF OIL IN U. S. FALL OFF 3,592,000 BARRELS DURING JUNE

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—The commerce department today said stocks of oil in the United States dropped 3,592,000 barrels during the month of June.

The total new supply during May was 88,523,000 barrels and domestic production was 81,164,000 barrels.

Crude petroleum produced during June totaled 75,166,000 barrels, compared with 77,164,000 in May. Natural gasoline produced was 3,521,000 barrels against 3,814,000; benzol, 160,000 against 186,000; imports of crude petrcleum were 3,978,000 against 4,512,000, and imports of fine products, 2,396,000 against 2,847,000 barrels.

The grand total of all stocks of all oils was 652,620,000 barrels against 656,212,000 barrels at the end of May. This constituted 221 days normal supply compared with 230 days at the end of May.

Although production of new stocks showed a decrease as compared with May, the daily average domestic production was 2,627,000 barrels compared with 2,618,000 barrels in May. This was explained by bureau officials as due to the fact that June had only 30 days as compared with 31 in May.

Texas established a new high daily average output for the country during the month, with 982,000 barrels. Virtually all this increase came from the east Texas district, which yielded 355,000 barrels daily as compared with 308,000 in May. Production in Oklahoma showed virtually no change, while Kettleman Hills field of California recorded a gain.

More Cheerful Note Now Sounded by Trade Review

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—A more cheerful note is evident in trade reports from forty leading centers of the country, Bradstreet's will say tomorrow. This seems partly due, the authority indicated, to a slightly greater amount of interest shown in fall orders and also, apparently, to an improved feeling regarding the business situation in general.

In general, however, Bradstreet's continues, retail trade was a little less active than during the preceding week. Hot weather was held responsible for deterring shoppers in many cities, as well as the fact that much of the summer buying already had been done. On the other hand, the agency reported, the heat did help further sales of seasonal lines.

Some Orders Appear.

"Wholesaling and jobbing," the survey said, "about held their own after the slight spurt of the previous week. Inquiries in fall lines are beginning to come in and some orders have been booked. Industry continues in its seasonal lethargy, without any pronounced upturn as yet expected. The reports show collections at about the same slow state of the past weeks. The cotton crop is generally in good condition. Corn in the middle west and south is well advanced, but in the northwest, due to drought, prospects are decidedly less favorable. Spring wheat in this section also is in poor condition. The harvesting of oats shows a small yield.

"Volume of retail trade compared favorably with 1930, but in some cities the decrease was estimated as high as 15 per cent. Clearance 'sales' are still a feature among stores, and moderate success in medium priced merchandise has been the rule in the disposal of summer stocks.

Helps Sustain Volume.

"Demand for hot weather apparel, especially hosiery and women's ready to wear, has been the chief factor in sustaining volume. Shoes also have sold well, and confectionery has had fairly satisfactory call. Auto accessories have been in moderately good demand.

"Dry goods and notions continue generally quiet. In Boston the retail jewelry business was considerably off from 1930. St. Paul reports smaller inventories, with less credit extended and more business on a cash basis. In Newark radio dealers are finding their best trade in household electrical appliances. In New York City no retail concerns showed better sales than in 1930, but shoes, men's and women's clothing and women's specialties did a volume of business equal to last year. Retail failures for the week were considerably decreased."

SWIFT & CO. NOW NEGOTIATING FOR ST. LOUIS CONCERN

An official of Swift & Co. last night confirmed reports that the company is negotiating for the acquisition of the St. Louis Independent Packing company, a reported $4,500,000 concern engaged in the packing business in St. Louis, Mo., with branches in Pittsburgh, Pa., and other cities.

The Swift representative denied that the deal had been completed or that a reported purchase price of $1,500,000 had been agreed upon.

The plants and yards of the St. Louis firm cover 17 acres with buildings with 820,000 square feet of floor space. Equipment for all lines of meat packing is owned by the concern. Earnings of the company have been irregular for the last several years. The latest figures available are for 1929 when the firm reported net income of $29,000. It was recently reported that the company declared a back dividend of $7 on the preferred stock which covered arrearages from Nov. 1, 1928 to Nov. 1, 1929.

FINDS EASTERN STEEL OUTLOOK IS ENCOURAGING

Cleveland, O., July 31.—The Daily Metal Trade today says: "Eastern structural steel outlook is the most encouraging in more than a year. Additional tonnage coming into the market indicates that 125,000 tons will be bid within the next two to three months. Eastern sheet prices lack a test due to meager buying. At Chicago expected resumption of some foundry activity gives promise of a slightly heavier pig iron melt. Shipments now are somewhat lower. Copper is quiet and unchanged today at 7.75c, Connecticut. Straits tin is slightly easier at 24.20c. Lead holds at 4.22½c, East St. Louis, as does zinc at 3.87½c, East St. Louis."

MEXICAN MONEY MARKET MERELY NOMINAL IN N. Y.

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Only a nominal market for Mexican exchange has existed in the New York market since publication of the Calles decree nearly a week ago declaring silver the legal tender, and that gold would be regarded as merchandise.

Banking interests concerned in affairs in Mexico said they would not alter the quotations on Mexican exchange until the decree had been construed by their legal advisers, and until today the price of the silver peso was nominally 39.25 cents, without any business being transacted.

Today, however, there appeared an unlimited supply of the silver peso at 28 to 30 cents, without any buyers, and the outlook seemed to be one in which a much further reduction in the silver peso will be sustained. The gold peso was held at 50 cents, without any actual transactions.

Will Not Tax Foreign Accounts.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—(AP)—After many persons with bank accounts in foreign money had transferred their funds outside Mexico in fear of the Calles monetary reform measures, Secretary of the Treasury Luis Montes de Oca announced today that the government would not place a tax on foreign money accounts.

He also promised that the government would issue silver bills only when the necessity arose and only in quantities to meet real needs.

THREE BANKS IN NEW YORK FORM MERGER COMPACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—Plans for the merging of the Straus National Bank and Trust company into the Continental Bank and Trust company, and the acquisition by the merged institution of the business of the International Trust company were announced today following meetings of the directors of the three banks. The combined institution will operate under the name and charter of the Continental Bank and Trust company, which was founded in 1870.

The combined resources of the three banks, as of June 30, 1931, the date of the last statements of condition, amounted to $71,588,807. Of this amount the Continental accounts for $44,136,506, the Straus National $15,015,563, and the International $12,436,738. The total deposits of the banks aggregate $43,493,805.

Marshall Field & Co. Votes Regular Dividend

Directors of Marshall Field & Co. yesterday voted to maintain the $2.50 annual dividend rate on the common stock through the authorization of a regular quarterly disbursement of 62½ cents a share. The dividend has been maintained since the first public offering of the stock early in 1930.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 31.—The stock market was a bit wabbly on its pins today. Trading was a half-hearted affair, and prices zigzagged about with little regard for the proprieties. The trend was irregularly downward.

Selling was pronounced in a half dozen or so popular specialties, indicating to some observers that the professional bear operators were up to their old tricks again in spite of the truce they are supposed to have agreed to with the opposing speculative element at the instance of the exchange and the big banks of the street when the German economic situation became so acute. Case Threshing Machine and Westinghouse were two especial targets of the selling, the first named going off nearly 5 points and the other about 3. American Can, Auburn Auto, and Allied Chemical and Dye were other victims of the bear shellfire.

Case was battered down to a new low for the movement in a steady stream of selling accompanied by talk of poor crop prospects in some sec-

Hotel St. George Bonds.

Please give me information on Hotel St. George series A certificates.—C. R. W.

Clark Henry corporation [Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, N. Y.] is a subsidiary of Bing & Bing, Inc. The hotel occupies the entire block bounded by Clark, Henry, Hicks and Pineapple streets.

The $8,000,000 series A 5¾ per cent certificates due serially Nov. 1, 1932, to Nov. 1, 1943, are secured by a first mortgage on the land owned in fee and the buildings. There are also outstanding $330,000 6½ per cent certificates series B issued under the same mortgage, but subordinated to the series A certificates.

According to information received from the underwriter, net earnings before interest for 1930 were $597,073. Maximum interest requirements on the series A certificates were $460,000 and on the series B certificates, $21,450. Early in 1930 a new addition to the property was completed. Earnings figures for 1930 reflect interest charges against the whole property for the entire year. The underwriter stated that it was necessary to build up the occupancy of the new portion during that time and the full benefit of the year's operation of the new property was not experienced in 1930.

At the close of the year the new addition was approximately 86 per cent rented and the older portion was approximately 89 per cent rented. The underwriter stated that this indicates that the company experienced practically no decline in the occupancy of its old building during the time occupancy of the addition was being promoted.

Complete figures for operations during the first half of 1931 are not available. Approximate net earnings before interest were $464,706. Interest on the series A certificates totaled $230,000.

RAPIDITY OF FALL IN JULY WHEAT STUNS MARKET

Trade Finds Slight Basis for Slump.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices established a new low up to the present time, yesterday, no comparable low being available beyond 1895 when wheat in Chicago sold below 48¾c in January of that year and later had a big bulge on crop scare.

That the market was practically devoid of short interest was demonstrated by the break of 3¼c in July wheat from the high, most of it in the last five minutes, dropping 1c at one time with practically no trading.

At the low point the delivery sold at 48 cents. The close was 48⅛c. Selling was started by Lamson and followed later by Bache. It was the biggest surprize in the wheat trade for the season because of the rapidity of the slump, there being no news to account for it, other than the appearance of the brokers who are supposed to trade for the Farmers National. This created gossip about the latter being long July wheat and short corn. An official of the Farmers National, however, denied they had any such spread.

Expect Larger Receipts.

Expectations are for increased receipts next week, as a reduction of 15 per cent in freight rates in the southwest goes into effect today and it is said farmers there have been holding back their wheat in expectation of lower rates. Traders, however, said any increase in the movement would likely depress prices so that farmers would realize little or no benefit from the freight reduction.

Crop news from the northwest, while unfavorable, was somewhat modified in its effect as a market factor, owing to reports of fair to good rains over a part of the American and Canadian northwest. It induced a little selling at times, as also did the weakness in Liverpool, but the market in all was not a big affair.

July Corn Quieter.

An absence of sensational developments attended trading in July corn. The leading longs had previously arranged to put all the corn on the market that buyers needed at 72¼c and they were willing to buy all there was for sale at 72¼c. The start was at 67⅝c, or ¼c lower than Thursday's close and the finish was 72⅛@72⅜c, a net advance of 4¼c for the day. It was estimated that around 2,300,000 bu changed hands.

The open interest at the start of trading was 2,261,000 bu. Early deliveries were 661,000 bu and total for the day 1,852,000 bu and for the month of July, 8,468,000 bu. It is understood that the leading longs paid for the bulk of this corn. The grain that has been delivered on track will be moved into storage inside of a week, it was announced by those in a position to know. It is seldom that so much corn is delivered in the month of July. No. 3 yellow in the sample market sold at 55¼@60c.

Oats Prices Decline.

Hedging pressure, combined with liquidation in oats, carried prices to new lows, which developed buying support from shorts and pit traders, causing a rally, especially in July, which closed 23⅛@23¼c, up ¼c.

Crop reports are less favorable and there is an increased disposition to buy on all breaks.

There was another slight rise in the market for choice grades of cattle yesterday and closing sales were made at the highest level of the week. Mixed yearling steers and heifers averaging 769 lbs. brought the top of $9.15, while 769 lb. heifers averaging 769 lbs. sold at $9.00.

Armour, Swift and Wilson paying the extreme top some of the best grades of cattle are selling around 50c above last week's close. Butcher stock met better demand yesterday and some of the recent loss was regained. Calves were stronger with and show gains of $1.00@1.50 compared with a week ago.

Heavy Hogs Bid $8.20.

The weight hogs for next Monday's delivery were bid $8.20 on the "to arrive" market yesterday. September delivery trades were sold at $7.25 on the same day and mediums for the same month were bid $7.50. August light hogs were offered at $8.75 and bid $8.00. Medium and heavy grades for next December delivery were offered at $6.90. Hogs sold steady to 25c lower on yesterday's erratic session, with some of the best showing 25@50c loss at the close while some of the city butchers and smaller packers withdrew from the market with the smallest droves in several weeks. The extreme top weighed life at $8.30, while the general top showed a loss of $6.50. Persistent rumors of sales at $8.35 and $8.40 failed to materialize. Larger receipts were more willing buyers when prices slipped down at the close and sold 1,000 head, the largest purchases made by them since Tuesday of last week. Receipts of hogs are running exceptionally small. The total at leading markets this week stands below the corresponding period in more than 3 years.

Lambs Sorted Harder.

Buyers were more strict about "sorts" yesterday and pounded plain quality and culls down about 50c, while the market for good fat offerings held steady to 25c lower, a big share feeding the decline. Fancy handy weight natives were scarce and city packers were eager for top kinds at $7.60@7.85, but the rank and file of sales and wether natives went to local packers at $7.50@7.75. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and steady. Feeding lambs were quoted at $5.00@5.75.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 5,000 hogs, and 2,000 sheep, against 498 cattle, 4,119 hogs and 1,338 sheep, the previous Saturday and 220 cattle, 5,612 hogs and 200 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago next Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 45,000. J. T. Brown marked 2,000; C. Southwick and G. W. Chandler, 2,000; F. Knutzen, 33,000; W. T. Lasher, 34,000; H. S. Turner, 25,000; R. Waterbury, J. M. Waters and F. Young, 36,000; R. Trullinger, 37,000; C. C. Egan, 35,000; F. M. Sherman, 30,000; R. B. Ellis and P. Allen, 43,000; and P. H. Foster, 45,000.

BUTTER AND EGGS EASY

Sharp break in eggs and a good advance in butterfat featured the trading on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Extra cars of potatoes up 10@45c, with buttery but the fairly good potato trading was in the lower grades. Better lagged. Poor to fancy 92-score butter sold 1c lower to 1c over a week ago. The four grades were not less than last year, brought by the same combined, short covering & satisfied the main support and new buying came from Idaho and round lots sold up to the highest points of the day. April, Green Mountains and Elgin were a new high record for the year, the latter resulting from more buying by the better news carried a bearish influence in addition to the weather, which is beatitant, preferring to the storage rate for a short time. Receipts, 67 cars; exports, 207 cars; potatoes, 37 cars. Prices follow:

COTTON PRICES DROP

Cotton sagged to new low levels in all active months yesterday, under pressure by liquidators and an evening up movement in satisfaction of end of season figures. Weak, and the close was 19@30 points net lower.

Prices in New York were off 25 points at 8.35c compared with the last previous day of 7.50c in 1914. New Orleans was 15@30 points lower; Houston 8.05c; Galveston 8.15c. Dull weevil infested reports considered of sufficient proportions to become a market factor in the next four weeks, should weather continue unfavorable in affected areas. Prices follow:

PIT NOTES

The trade starts today with the wheat well cleared and prices at levels that have never been known by a majority of the present-day operators. Despite the sensationally low prices for wheat, there are close observers of market conditions who believe that a further irregular decline of a few cents is not impossible and that the market must have more short interest and a better support than has developed for some time past.

Interest is considered a weather prophet and crop reports are sufficiently strong to make a two-sided market. Should receipts are expected and selling pressure, it is said, may not be sufficient to force a lower level of prices. Sharp reactions are to be expected. What will be done with the "corpse" is the problem for the bears.

Trading in May wheat starts off big today and will be quoted regularly along with prices on other deliveries. A trade or two was made on the curb today at 5c over September, and there were sales yesterday of around 50 bu at 4¾@5¼c over September. It is May corn is expected to bring a premium over the September, which closed at 50¾@50¼c.
